A pretty face can fool you in carpets, too.

A carpet ought to have a pretty face. You're going to be looking at it for a good long time. If you don't fall in love with it, don't buy it.

And if you do fall in love with it, make sure it'll be faithful over the years. (After all, it costs a pretty penny.)

Are the yarns great yarns that'll weather the living? Or inferior yarns that just a few years will erode away?

Are the dyes good dyes, tested and true? Resistant to sunlight and cleaning? Or unstable dyes that won't hold their color as long?

Does it have a good strong back that'll keep it firm and young? Or a weak back that'll let it wrinkle, or stretch, or distort?

Has it been watched over, checked from the time it was a mere fluff of yarn until the day it comes into your home?

There's only one way to tell.

Find out if the carpet has a good name.

Lees.

Lees uses the best kinds of yarns, the tried and true dyes, durable backs (tightly bonded with latex), and an inspection system that starts back with the fiber or yarn, and never ends until the carpet is ready to ship.

When a carpet's been through our mill and passed, we print our name on the back, along with a number. Registering another first-quality carpet by Lees.

That's our promise that a Lees carpet won't fall flat on its pretty face.

For a lot of good, down-to-earth reasons, "those heavenly carpets by Lees."

Write us. We'll tell you where to find them.

STUDY ART IN SPARE TIME

as a way to a richer life

by RAPHAEL SOYER
Washington School of Art Collection

DO YOU find yourself doodling interesting designs? Wanting to sketch and capture on canvas a sunny lake among the trees, or paint a likeness of a loved one? Then you should know more about the 50-year-old Washington School of Art's completely new home study Course prepared by world-famous artists. In your spare time you can learn to draw, paint in oils and watercolor, gain a broad general knowledge of art, actually do all kinds of work in different media . . . under the supervision of an instructor who will correct your drawings and paintings on overlays, criticize you gently, and become your "friend by mail." Two 22-piece art outfits (worth $25.00) will help develop your hidden talent. Learn commercial art, painting, illustrating, cartooning, fashion drawing, TV graphic art for $6 a month.

There are golden moments and maybe thousands of dollars waiting for you. Send for our FREE 36-PAGE BOOK. You'll be surprised at how little ART costs and how much it brings you. THOMPSON'S COLOR WATER SEAL does two-jobs-in-one. ⊡ Stops costly water damage and weather wear. Penetrates deep to seal any porous surface. ⊡ Puts new color and life in wood without hiding grain; adds new beauty to concrete and masonry. Choose from a wide range of rich decorator color tones. Apply quickly to unstained or stained surfaces—brush, wipe, roll or spray on. Ideal for interior paneling, furniture, shingles, shakes, finished or rough siding, fences, arbors. For color samples and complete information, send for free brochure. E. A. Thompson Co., Inc., Merchandise Mart, San Francisco 3, California.

Grandmother's Clock...today

Magnificent reproduction of yesterday, heirloom of tomorrow, the CAROLINE is constructed of either genuine Appalachian maple or cherry fruitwood by the South's finest craftsmen. All moving parts and dials are handmade by Western Germany's leading clocksmiths. The movement has five Westminster chimes (on 1/4, 1/2, 3/4 and hour). All clocks are thoroughly tested before shipment and are warranted for one year against defective parts.

What a wonderful gift for anyone with a nice home or country place!

So many ways BETTER than a wheelbarrow plus so many other uses!

This wonderfully handy CART holds TWICE as much as an ordinary Wheelbarrow!

It easily carries loads up to 300 pounds!

The weight balances on the axle—you don't carry it in your hands. Push or pull with ONE HAND. Won't tip over. SO much easier going thanks to TWO BIG 20-inch wheels! Rubber tires. Ball bearings. Only 30" wide to go through narrow doors and gangways.

Built by Vermont craftsmen to last a lifetime. Leave it outdoors all year long if you wish. Hard use won't hurt it. Tight, welded all-steel construction. Loose sand, dirt, etc., won't spill out the sides. Flat bottom keeps pots, pails, bottles, etc., from tipping over!

Satisfaction guaranteed. Use the Cart for three full months. If you are not delighted, just send it back for full refund!

SEVERAL MODELS!

Even a "Build-It-Yourself" Kit!

This handsome Lawn and Garden CART, which we build up here in Vermont, could be the perfect gift for someone you want to please very much!

For birthdays, anniversaries, Christmas, Mother's Day, Father's Day, for special occasions like weddings or when someone retires or moves to a new home or when you want to say a special "Thank You" for a pleasant visit or other reason—or just anytime you want to make some one very happy, please think of our CARTS.

Some of the reasons they make such grand gifts are:

- Everyone in the family enjoys using them—mother, father, grandmother, grandfather, all the young people and the hired man, too, if there is one!
- They are useful the year 'round, and are so many ways better than a wheelbarrow plus having so many other uses! (Please see illustrations.)
- Our Carts are built to last for years and years. You know the moment you see and try one that nothing but the most careful workmanship and the best of materials went into building it. They are a compliment to even the most beautiful of homes.
- They are ideal for GROUP giving . . . as for the whole family to give mother or father or to both on a wedding anniversary—or for the "Boss" for Christmas, or for a congregation to their minister, or for club or fraternal members in appreciation to a retiring officer.

There really isn't any gift we know of which is so appropriate in so many situations, which will be enjoyed by so many, and which will be used and appreciated for so many years. You'll feel good because you'll know you have done something just right when you give one of these CARTS!

There are several models, different sizes and prices, even a "Build-It-Yourself" Kit for those who want one—so please mail the coupon below for a FREE Catalog and complete details. Shipment can be made to you or directly to whomever you say, transportation prepaid.

We haven't said so above, but we believe the chances are pretty good you and your family will want one of our CARTS for yourselves. If so, we have some very Good News for you about that, too. So please do mail the coupon now. We'll send you that FREE Catalog and that Good News by return mail!

Gay Gifts for GOLFERS!

FOOT WEDGE. This ingenious wedge-head straps to the toe of your right shoe, and is always handy for those troublesome shots out of the rough or from behind trees. Even better than a hand-mashie for trap shots. Greatest little stroke saver since the eraser. Made of hydramite and giftboxed with goofy instructions. $1.00.

FAMOUS GOLF COURSE GLASSES. Eight famous course layouts, from Pebble Beach to Augusta, accurately outlined in gold and green—with par, course record and location imprinted on 12 ounce sham-base crystal. The favorite glass of linksmen wherever golf is spoken. Even if you don't play a scratch game at least you should talk one! $7.95 set of 8.

KNEEL AND PRAY PUTTER. This crazy looking thing really works: You have to kneel to use it, meanwhile offering a silent prayer for accuracy. Hydramite head with 6" plastic handle, and a leather thong to hang it on your bag. Perfect for the "morning after" as you don't have so far to fall; and no one can see your knees knocking on those tricky downhill three footers. The hole is only as big as it looks, and with this putter you're in an ideal position to see the hole and read the green! $2.00 Giftboxed, with zany instructions.

Gourmand's paradise

It was just six o'clock when I reached Skaneateles on the lake of the same name—the first of the Finger Lakes. (For the benefit of New York City hicks and out-of-staters: the name is pronounced "Skinny-atlas.") But already a small crowd had gathered in the square entrance hall of the white clapboard house which is the Krebs, reputedly the best restaurant west of Albany. People were just being admitted into the dining room, a dazzling, rambling expanse of pure, starched white—white tablecloths, white slipcovers on the straight chair backs, standard white uniforms on the waitresses. If you want a drink you can go upstairs to the little pine-paneled bar which is well stocked with hard liquors and dry sherry. But there is no beer (I never found out why), and no drinks at all are served in the dining room.

Once you are seated at the table, the ladies in white take over. They give you, verbally, a choice of two or three appetizers, then of two soups. After that you have nothing to say in the matter until dessert. You are simply served dish after dish, all excellent, and if you try to decline one, the waitress, a solicitous mother, urges you on until you relent. I was served: shrimp cocktail (with a wonderful creamy sauce topped by a cocktail sauce), chicken broth, lobster Newburg, rare roast beef, half a broiled chicken, creamed mushrooms, fresh corn and peppers, hot cinnamon buns (plus the nut bread on the table), a green salad, ice cream with hot fudge sauce, frosted angel cake. (I chose ice cream because I had noticed the angel cake and brownies were being pressed on my neighbors in addition to their strawberry shortcake or lemon meringue pie.) No check is presented. The hostess stands at the door and collects six dollars from each guest as he staggers out. And there is no tipping since you have a different waitress for every dish that is served.

The temple houses

Ever since I had left home I had been carrying in my mind the picture of a tree-shaded upstate street, solidly lined on both sides with Greek Revival houses. My memory labeled it "Auburn" but when I arrived in that city and drove through the downtown area, I was sure I was wrong. Just where the business section ends, however, Route 20 makes a right-angled turn to the right. I missed the sign, continued straight ahead and behold: here was the street, here were the houses! Big houses with tall elegant Ionic pillars. Smaller houses that were almost duplicates but in three-quarter scale. Really small story-and-a-half cottages with stubby Doric pillars and painted iron grilles in the upstairs windows. Here was striking evidence of the intense individualism at the core of this style—often called America's first indigenous architecture—that swept across New York State in the wake of the covered wagons, continued into Ohio and Michigan and eventually inspired the "Taras" of the South. My favorite on this Auburn street was a slightly severe story-

Tonetic Wood Stain Butternut on wall paneling. Fruitwood on cabinets: Lyt-all Flowing Flat Triton Green on wall in foreground, Sherwood Green in background.

How charming, how elegant wood finishes can be!

As you can see, both charm and elegance are contributed to this pleasant scene by paneling and cabinets of wood enhanced by the finest of wood finishes . . . Pratt & Lambert Tonetic Wood Stain and "38" Pale Trim Varnish Satin.

Tonetic Wood Stain brings out and preserves the natural beauty of fine woods; makes less expensive woods appear better, too. "38" Pale Trim Varnish stays pale, doesn't discolor, always looks beautiful. Both products are easy to apply, fast drying and not affected by strong light or heat from the sun.

The beauty of this floor, finished in P&L Varmor Satin, will last up to twice as long as it would if finished with a conventional varnish. Varmor is a super durable, clear finish for wood, so mar resistant that even if the wood is dented the finish won't chip or crack.

Use Pratt & Lambert... the brand most frequently specified by architects, acknowledged by painters to be definitely superior.

You and your home

Have you looked inside your insurance package?

Today most homeowner's insurance, like frozen strawberries, comes in packages. But if you're typical, your insurance package probably goes into the deep freeze of the family filing cabinet and remains there unexamined—unless an emergency compels you to see just what you've bought.

The moral is obvious: Before you buy an insurance package, make sure you know exactly what's in it.

Whether you buy your insurance from a single company in all-inclusive form (as 80 per cent of home-owning families do) or as a series of individual policies, three kinds of insurance protection are essential: property (specifically, the house itself), personal property and personal liability.

Property insurance

If a bank holds a mortgage on your house, it will require you to have fire and "extended coverage" insurance. Extended coverage protects you against several kinds of damage, notably those caused by wind, hail, explosion, smoke. If you wish, you can also buy broader coverage to insure your house against damage caused by vandalism, falling trees, the weight of snow, ice or sleet. (Much to the regret of families who own shore property, however, damage caused by flooding is not insurable anywhere in the U.S.)

The bank's interest in your house is limited to the amount of mortgage money it has loaned. Naturally, you have a greater stake; if your house should be totally destroyed, you would want enough money to replace it.

In buying property insurance, don't confuse the current market or cash value of your house with its replacement value. The truest replacement value you can place on a house should reflect today's costs—in short, how much you would need to duplicate it today. So make sure your insurance policy is based on replacement, rather than any other kind of value.

Replacement value is equally important in the case of the partially damaged house. Suppose, for instance, the roof of a twenty-year-old house is destroyed by fire. Must you settle for the depreciated value of an aged roof, or will your insurance company pay the full cost for a brand new roof? If replacement is guaranteed, you'll get a new roof at no expense to yourself.

How do you establish replacement value? It's up to you to make an accurate estimate, but you would be wise to enlist the help of an expert appraiser—either an architect, engineer or building contractor. Insurance companies make their own appraisal only if you buy a very expensive house.

Building your own house imposes a special set of insurance requirements. While the house is under construction, you or your general contractor must take out insurance protecting you against workmen's compensation claims, damage to the building in progress, theft of tools, materials and equipment.

Personal property insurance

Unlike your house, its contents (furniture, clothing, jewelry, paintings, art objects) can be insured only for cash value, not full replacement value. Quite often personal property insurance today provides "on-premises" protection against loss of possessions and also limited coverage while you are away from home. Common examples: Your overcoat is stolen in a restaurant, or your luggage is damaged or lost on a trip. Some policies will cover such losses.

The personal property provisions in most insurance package contracts, however, are not designed to protect you against the loss of extremely valuable possessions. You will need specific insurance coverage for such things as valuable musical instruments, coin and stamp collections, furs, jewelry, paintings and sculpture.

As you might expect, the rates for insuring furs and jewelry are much higher than for protecting valuable paintings (a diamond brooch can be spirited away in a thief's pocket, while a six-foot-tall canvas poses both a concealment and a disposal problem).

Personal liability

Since we live in one of the world's most litigious societies, no homeowner can afford to be without comprehensive protection against lawsuits stemming from personal injury. By law you are liable if the milkman should decide to sue after tripping on your door mat and breaking his leg. Even your best friend may have a legal basis for suing you if he tumbles over a scatter rug in your house and hurts himself on his way to the buffet table.

But your personal liability is not limited to your property; it is in fact world-wide. You can be as readily sued for injuring a golfer with an errant shot in Hong Kong as in Scarsdale or Winnetka.

Even when you expressly forbid trespassing on your property, you may still be held liable for accidents that occur there. Numerous lawsuits have been directed against property owners by parents whose children have been injured while sledding on a backyard hill or diving into a swimming pool—with or without permission. In such cases, the hill or the pool is defined legally as an "attractive nuisance."

Swimming pools in most states require specific insurance coverage—and at stiff premium rates. The go-carts or motorized soap-box racers so popular with teen-agers in certain areas are usually not insurable at all, and outboard motors of high horsepower are not covered by conventional liability insurance (the reason: insurance companies have learned by experience that high-powered motors are a prerequisite of water skiing—and the incidence of accidents in this sport is actuarially discouraging). But golf carts are covered.

Unfortunately, many Americans who carry hundreds of thousands of dollars in auto liability insurance will settle for a bare minimum—usually $10,000—in personal liability coverage. Most insurance counselors recommend that you carry as much personal as auto liability insurance. It is a sobering fact that the amount of liability coverage you have does not limit the degree of your responsibility. A person faced with a $150,000 personal-injury settlement can draw small comfort from a policy that guarantees payment of only $10,000. Equally sobering is your liability for the consequences of your actions away from home, such as injuring someone with a golf ball.

The cost of insurance

Contrary to popular misconceptions, there is no bargain-basement insurance. Each of the fifty states carefully regulates the insurance industry, and all companies must play by the same rules. Your best chance of a sound and adequate insurance program lies in dealing with a fully trained counselor who represents companies known to settle fairly and efficiently all legitimate claims—including the many borderline cases that inevitably arise. Experienced underwriters discourage the very human inclination to do your brother-in-law or cousin a favor by letting him handle your insurance. Some brothers-in-law may be competent insurance men, but an unrelated professional is in a better position to analyze your needs impartially.

Most policies contain "deductible" clauses, similar to the deductible clauses in auto insurance. The advantage of such policies is economic: they state in effect that if you are willing to assume the financial obligation for damages up to a certain figure (perhaps $100—the exact amount varies in different policies and in different states), the cost of the insurance will be appreciably reduced.

But price is far less important than comprehensive coverage of your house, its contents and your personal liability. The poorest of all economies comes from scaling down your insurance protection in order to save a few dollars on your yearly premiums.

HOW TO SPOT A BASIC BEST BUY

Anyone can tell a good investment, once the dividends come rolling in. To detect the signs beforehand is something else again. What, for instance, are the generic earmarks of big-yield investments for your home? How do you spot one when you meet it in the market place?

The first axiom, H&G believes, is an inexorable one: You can only measure a good buy in terms of its value to you. Unlike stocks and bonds, which pay off impartially to everyone who puts his money down, investments for living are gilt-edged only if they satisfy your own needs and tastes and dreams, only if they contribute handsomely to the way you like to live.

Everyone, of course, takes for granted certain physical comforts: a leakless roof, a good bed, a table to eat from, an easy chair. Yet even for these, the yardsticks vary from person to person and place to place. And comfort is only one of the dividends sought. Time-saving, labor-saving, space-saving benefits are other profits to be counted. Or the hoped-for return on a basic investment might be purely visual—a beautiful room, an enchanting garden spot. Or it might be as intangible as quiet, privacy, or a friendly small-town atmosphere (in the heart of a big city) for your child to grow up in.

After some months of reviewing dozens of houses, scores of rooms and carloads of furniture, H&G has concluded that all basic best buys have three shining characteristics:

1. A BASIC BEST BUY PAYS EXTRA DIVIDENDS. It promises you a bonus beyond the returns you would normally expect for the money you spend.

2. A BASIC BEST BUY HAS WIDE-ANGLE VALUE. It enhances the usefulness or the beauty of everything within its orbit (often saving you money thereby).

3. A BASIC BEST BUY HAS LONG-RANGE VALUE. Not only because it lasts (which it should), but because it is adaptable to change.

The excellence of a basic buy is not a matter of size or price. The investment that yields supersatisfaction may be as small as a paring knife or as big as a house. It may be the best of its kind, expensively made of expensive materials. Or it may be, relatively and intrinsically, very modest indeed. But what it contributes to your living will be, like the wisdom of the proverbs, more precious to you than rubies, more to be cherished than fine gold.

of basic best buys,
every one of them

AN INSPIRED SOLUTION TO A VITAL NEED

It is probably true that when it comes to solving such household problems as lack of space, storage, comfort, beauty, practicality and sound economy, there is more than one way to skin a cat. But even the most prolific problem-solver will agree that there is always a best way to do anything. Sometimes, in a house, it is an easy way, sometimes not, but in an amazing number of instances the coup can be brought off with a single stroke: a basic best buy in the form of a piece of furniture, a rug, a built-in, a source of music—even a lamp. These solutions may sound simple, but they are not pulled out of a hat. They require thoughtful planning and they must be shopped for with painstaking care.

On the following eleven pages is a series of rooms in which certain challenges—quite common, in part or whole, to the average American household—have been well met. For example, everyone, at some point, is faced with buying an important piece of furniture such as a sofa. How are style and comfort to be gauged, true value assessed? The sofa may also have to be a bed—but must it look like a bed? How do you choose a pair of chairs that coddle the complexities of the human spine, yet keep you erect enough to read and watch television without falling asleep? How can a stereo system, radio, television and record storage be compressed into a cabinet of modest size? How, without a dining room, do you dine in a reasonable facsimile of state?

These are fairly general needs, and most of us are familiar with them. Others may be more individual: How, for instance, does a young family on the move invest in a really good rug that can travel from apartment to apartment and color scheme to color scheme and remain a constantly compatible asset? What would be a good buy for two people who work all day and like to retire the minute dinner is over—yet want to read and watch TV (in bed) without getting cricks in their backs?

The answer to every one of these is a basic best buy chosen, as you will see, not nearly so much from the point of view of cost (this may be moderate or as high as you can go) as for sheer aptitude—the ability to perform as a good actor performs when he is perfectly cast.

THE PROBLEM: A place for two children to sleep in a pied-à-terre apartment with a living-dining room and only one bedroom. The living area already has its quota of furniture, and is too formal to brook anything obviously bed-like.

AN INSPIRED ANSWER: The dining area—a raised platform at one end of the living room. Country dwellers most of the time, Mr. and Mrs. Selig Burrows maintain a city apartment to which they occasionally bring their children for holidays, a concert, the theatre. Built within the confines of a warehouse loft, the apartment's spatial limitations are rigid. The children either had to sleep on the sofa, which was not feasible, or a bedroom had to be manufactured out of thin air. In a sense, it was. Interior designer Josephine Sokolski filled one wall of the dining area with a handsome expanse of rosewood cabinetry that looks like a sideboard flanked by two floor-to-ceiling closets. The sideboard is in fact a sideboard, but the closets do not store dining accessories. Equipped with touch latches, they open to reveal a pair of Murphy beds which, on children's nights in town, swing down to flank the dining table. There is plenty of room for the children to navigate without barking their shins, and the living area remains undisturbed.

How to make sound investments in comfortable seating

BASIC NEED FOR EVERYONE, EVERYWHERE: A comfortable sofa that will stay in style and endure wear and tear.

WONDERFUL SOLUTION TO THE FIRST: A sofa 84 inches long—a commendable size, small enough to go into an elevator (something for apartment dwellers always to remember), long enough for a 6-footer to lie down on. The lines are simple, but not trite: The Lawson roll of the back and arms is very pleasant, and the Tuxedo style is as compatible with antiques as it would be with contemporary furniture. Loose back and seat cushions have polyurethane cores wrapped with polyester fiber to produce a feeling of down, yet they have "memory": They spring back into shape without the aid of plumping up. The covering of hard-finished silk in H&G's Citron has a Scotchgard finish—a wise precaution for light colors. And for a change of mood, slipcovering—because of the sofa's straightforward design—is comparatively simple. Sofa by Tomlinson. Interior design: Julia Gosliner.

ANOTHER BASIC: A pair of comfortable chairs for two bookworms who like television almost as well as reading.

A SECOND BULL'S-EYE: A pair of wing chairs, Danish in inspiration, and an ottoman large enough for four feet. High enough in the back to support a constant reader's head (this is important), the chairs wear a contemporary version of Victorian antimacassars in polished walnut—a pretty and practical precaution. Even though the pebbly textured, Antique White covering has a Scotchgard finish, the arms—always susceptible to soil and handling—are doubly protected. Comfort is assured by the broken cant of the backs, the seat cushions filled with polyurethane and Dacron. The chairs are deep enough to relax in without slumping, and the ottoman, covered in the same soil-repellent fabric used on the chairs, is commodious enough—27 inches long and 19 inches high—to be really worth its salt, yet not bulky enough to be cumbersome and difficult to move. Chairs and ottoman by Selig.

How to camouflage an open kitchen with color

THE POSER: To segregate to a degree, and without loss of airiness, sparkle or practicality, a kitchen open on two sides to a family-dining room.

GOOD SOLUTION: To screen one end of the kitchen with a bank of cabinets, and to create, with color alone, an unkitcheny look resembling the varicolored squares and rectangles of a Mondrian painting. Architect James Sherrill accomplished this in Mr. and Mrs. James E. Phillips' kitchen in Hickory, N.C., with two basic best buys: wood cabinets made by a local carpenter—and paint.

For sheer workability, the kitchen is exemplary. Mrs. Phillips, who believes in wasting neither steps nor space, can operate with minimal effort in an area, left, above, only 4 by 8 feet. And although she was agreeable to the kitchen's being partially visible from the dining area of the family room, she wanted no part of it to be seen from the more formal, sitting section. Hence the freestanding wall, opposite page, which presents a decorative façade to the family room, and a hive of utility to the kitchen, left. There, a broom closet, a pantry, and two wall ovens, one above the other, are arranged like one, two, three.

To derive full benefit from the triangular gable-end windows, the cabinet wall stops well short of the ceiling. And to make the kitchen as gay to work in as to look at, all the drawers and cabinets are painted in bright flower colors, all the walls, H&G's Curry. There are a few black accents, purely for punctuation: the seats of the wicker-backed breakfast bar chairs, the oven doors, the legs and base of the cabinet wall, the sculpture displayed in one of the wall's niches. All paints: Nu-Hue colors by Martin-Senour. On page 258: another basic kitchen buy. For shopping information, please turn to page 248.

Three dreamy ways to sleep without stirring

NONBEDROOM BASIC: A sleep-sofa that doesn't betray its purpose at first—or even second—glance.

BEAUTIFUL PARADOX: An elegant sleep-sofa, opposite page, giving not the faintest hint, until it is slept on, that it offers solid sleeping comfort. Designed for double duty in a one-room apartment (or a part-time guest room), the sofa is pleasantly streamlined—83 inches long, 32 inches deep, with cane ends, three loose back cushions and Sunflower yellow upholstery. At night, the cushions come off and sheets and a blanket or two go on the foam rubber mattress. Thus is Morpheus won. Sleep-sofa by Richardson/Nemschoff. Interior design by Patricia Harvey.

NURSERY NEED: Where to put a pint-sized guest.

HOSPITABLE SOLUTION: A trundle bed, right above, an age-old space-saving invention that never grows obsolete, and a ready answer to Junior's recurring plea to let Bobby stay overnight. The master bed (Junior's) is a sturdy specimen of polished oak, 80 inches long, with a guard rail and simply ornamented foot and headboards. It fits neatly into a corner of a small child's room, yet is sizable enough to accommodate growing pains for a long time to come. The trundle (Bobby's), like the upper section, has a box spring and a mattress, but consumes additional floor space only after dark, only when in use. By Williams.

PERSONAL NEED: Beds as comfortable for resting and reading as they are for sleeping.

LUXURIOUS DISCOVERY: Adjustable beds, right, with push-button controls for the two little electric motors that operate independently to form a back rest, to raise the knees, or both. In a bedroom thus equipped, a couple eager for rest (but not quite for sleep) could take to their beds as early as they please, push-button themselves into any position they find relaxing (the control is a simple device on a cord), watch television without getting stiff necks and read themselves gently to sleep. Adjustable beds by Simmons. All the other furniture is by Harvey Probber, Inc. For complete shopping information, please turn to page 248.

a home office for two a one-piece music center

COMPLEX DEMAND: For an acquisitive family ever on the move, flexible storage for books, records, hi-fi, miscellanea.

COMPLEX, BUT WONDERFUL: Three armoires, above and right, that add up to a powerhouse of storage. Given a 10-foot wall, they can be lined up side-by-side to hold everything from television and hi-fi to shirts and table linen. In the absence of a long wall, the armoires can be separated and used anywhere they fit—singly, or as a pair plus one, solo. Good travelers, these cabinets represent a remarkable basic best buy for a peripatetic family. All by Thomasville Furniture.

SIMPLE DESIRE: A home office for two people who live—and do homework—in a very small apartment.

SIMPLE FULFILLMENT: A double desk, opposite page, in a corner of the living room. Of walnut, it is 72 inches long (each worker has a full yard's span of work surface), 26 inches wide and 29 inches high. The suspended bank of drawers is adjustable, can be hung at the center or either end. For people who must keep fairly extensive files, two drawer units—one opening from each side of the desk—would be advisable and available. Desk and chairs by Mt. Airy Chair & Furn. Co.

SPECIAL NEED: A small, self-contained music center for a live-with-music, unblessed-with-space family.

PRECISE ANSWER: A stereo console, right, in dark walnut, compact enough to require only 46 inches of wall space, yet designed to hold its own record changer, tuner-amplifier, speakers (at the back of the cabinets), television (at right) and records. In a non-TV household, both lower sections could be used for storage—records, what-you-will. Ravenswood.

CHALLENGE FOR ENTERTAINING: To dine, not in stiff-necked grandeur, but formally, without a dining room.

MADE-TO-ORDER COUP: An extension dining table that telescopes into a cabinet-console. Of mahogany, 42 inches long, 20 inches deep, 31 inches high and designed to meet the restrictions of limited space, this combination of server and table would be particularly apt in a foyer specifically designed for dining—a plan much favored in new, smallish apartments. Two, four or six 15-inch leaves can be added to the table to make room for four, six or eight guests. At dinner time, the console top performs as a server. Closed, the cabinet plus two chairs are all the foyer needs by way of furniture. Extension Server by Extensole. Interior design: Julia Gosliner.

ANSWER TO MANY A HOUSEWIFE'S PRAYER: An elm burl chest, left, masked with a bright veneer of gold leaf that belies the name of cedar chest. Masquerading as a coffee table, this cedar-lined closet-in-miniature is roomy enough (38 by 15 by 16 inches) to hold, in summer, a modicum of blankets, sweaters, or any of the precious woolens for which cedar is traditional protection against the all too inquisitive moth. By Lane.

CHALLENGE IN DECORATING: To choose a rug that will be congruous with the demands of successive color schemes.

ALL-THINGS-TO-ALL-ROOMS. *A multicolored rug, opposite page, strikingly vivid, yet with its colors so equally divided that none steals the show. Instead of blue and violet, the companion furniture could just as well be covered in any of the rug's pinks or reds, or in the deep Raspberry of its background, or white, or even—for the exotic-minded—certain shades of pinkish orange. With this built-in versatility, the rug can complement a series of color schemes for as long as it lasts—which should be a long time, since it is pure wool, hand-tufted, and has a luxurious, 2-inch shaggy pile. THE PROFITABLE PLEASURE OF A LONGED-FOR LUXURY

A basic best buy can be anything from new kitchen cabinets to a trundle bed. But in addition to filling a particular and practical need, a basic best buy can also be measured in terms of the emotional or esthetic need it fills—in the most personal sense. In this case, the reasoning behind the acquisition becomes more basic than the buy itself. Acquiring one thing that you really long for can give you more rewards of pure pleasure and personal satisfaction than investing in half-a-dozen mere necessities. Someone who has always dreamed of owning an antique grandfather clock, say, or an opulent oriental rug will derive far more of a lift from the actual possession of that clock or rug than from getting a new chair for the living room. Yet this isn't as irresponsible as it may sound. We all have a touch of the hedonist in us and we all benefit from pampering that side of our nature every now and then. This kind of self-indulgence should not be frowned on as selfishness, since the pleasure of the purchase rubs off on everyone else in the house. For more details of these luxuries with which to pamper yourself or the other members of your family, please turn to page 252.

FOTAGES

At night, from the terrace, the house has the magic of a stage setting. Lighting can be accelerated to brilliance, dimmed to a soft glow—all with the twist of a dial.

The glass-walled gallery is a court-side promenade, a showplace for paintings, antiques, pewter and Lowestoft, and the living room's second source of daylight.

The most basic of best buys can be sheer delight. Here, for example, in an urban oasis, is

A COUNTRY HOUSE IN THE CITY

Ten minutes from the White House in Washington, D. C., there lies a wedge-shaped acre of land ringed with trees, surrounded by pleasant houses and paralleled by one of the city's main arteries. Secluded, yet wonderfully accessible, green as a little park, the land was coveted for years by any number of Washingtonians about-to-build. After close examination, it also remained, until two years ago, consistently unpurchased. As far as accommodating a house was concerned, the site, half gully, half hillock, was impossible—or seemed so until Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hahn Jr. saw what it offered.

The Hahns, who were then living in a Colonial "box" buried deep in a Maryland woods, were about to build a new house, but they hadn't the faintest idea where. Mrs. Hahn loved the country; Mr. Hahn, although fond of greenery, the city. A busy lawyer, he was bored with commuting. An avid gardener, Mrs. Hahn was weary of "trying to grow zinnias in the dark." But there, on the acre everyone had passed up, was the country in the city—a problem site, yes, but one the Hahns were willing to cope with simply to live where they wanted to live, grow zinnias, get to the office on time and give their three children sunlight instead of shade.

It took architects Deigert and Yerkes, landscape architect Thomas Church and all-out Hahn persistence to find a way to build the house. Since the hilly half of the plot obviously had to be flattened and extended to hold anything more than a cliff dwelling and to provide room for gardens, the terrain was completely remolded by an upheaval of trees, rocks and bulldozers—a small cataclysm that eventually, when the dust cleared, revealed a handmade plateau, still nicely fringed with trees, and eminently suitable as a site for the house to come.

It took about nine months from the day of the first bulldozer to moving-in day. Low, white, sprawling, the house consists of a long rectangular center section with a square wing at one side and a crescent-shaped section at the front. It is the crescent that greets the visitor's eyes as he approaches the front door via a little curling road (once a sort of wide footpath) that leads from the street to the macadam-surfaced turn-around for cars in front of the house. (Continued on page 189)

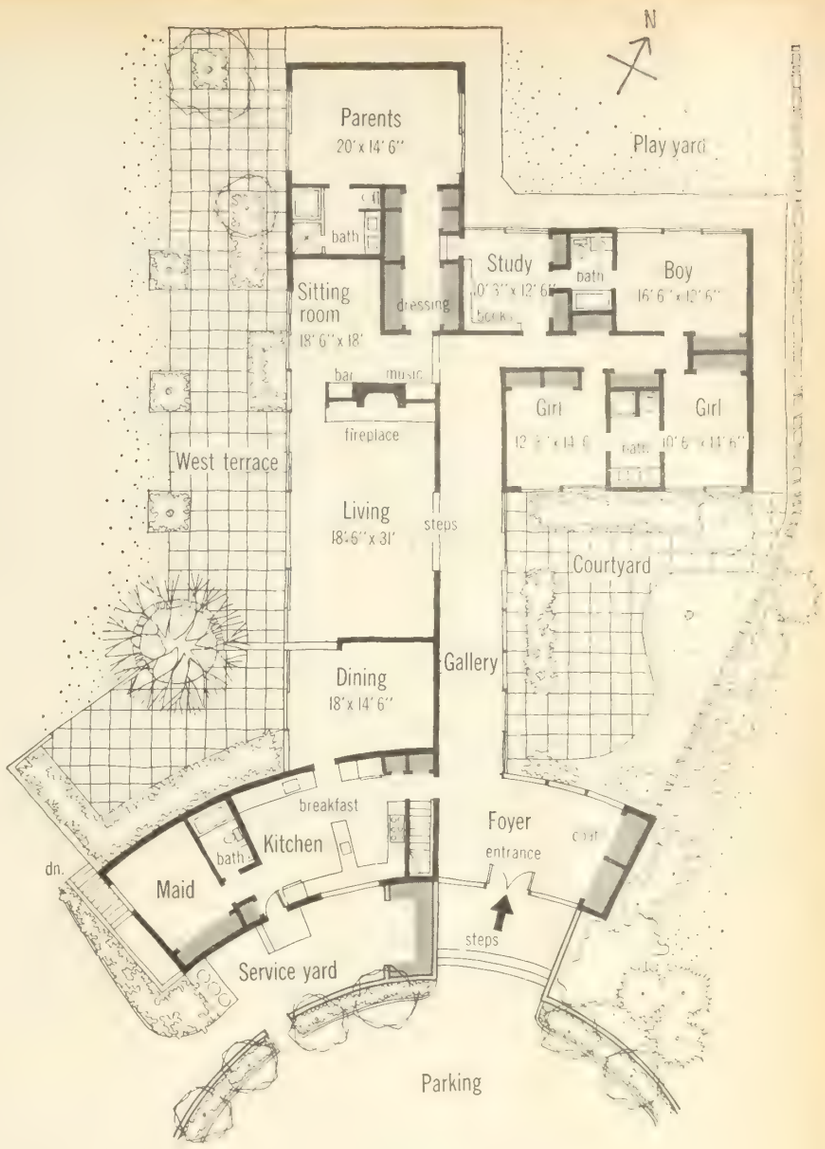
At entrance, a crescent-shaped wall conceals a service yard at left, protects the inner court at right.

A long paved terrace runs the length of the living room wing. Privacy is absolute although a busy thoroughfare, hidden by trees, lies a stone's throw away.



A corner of the living room is used for breakfasting, lunch, tea. The sitting ro beyond the book wall includes a bar, pertorms as a fun-and-games ann

Contemporary in design, yet furnished with antiques, the house embraces the old and the new with complete harmony

In urban Washington, houses of contemporary design are a rarity, and the Hahns had no desire to be conspicuously off-beat. But since their site precluded a traditional town house, their architects designed a contemporary house with classic overtones: a curved façade, an atrium-like inner court. Mrs. Hahn also wanted a heavily textured exterior surface—preferably of old brick. So old brick it is, tracked down in Baltimore (all of Washington's old brick is still in service), trucked over and, despite the fact that the brick was the color of old coral, painted pure white. "Sacrilege, but only temporary," the Hahns explain. The texture is all there, and they like the idea of a house that starts out white and as it grows older will weather gently into frosted pinkness. The whiteness also gives the house a pleasant, floating feeling and a saltiness the unpainted brick would not have had.

When asked by interior designer Edward Benesch what colors she would like inside the house, Mrs. Hahn replied, "Anything wonderful, anything way out." Wonderful the colors are, and far out enough to please even Mrs. Hahn, a lady who takes no pleasure in the beaten path. Since the dining and sitting rooms are both open to the living room, the same scheme of orange, carnelian red, hot yellow and pink (colors found en masse in an old Persian painting) is used in each room, but in modulated intensities—quiet in the dining room, fortissimo in the living room and, to a lesser degree, the sitting room.

With one exception—a bright orange wall at the end of the gallery (see page 187) hung with a painting by Mrs. Hahn's mother, Minda Hess (one of her few ventures into "pop" art)—all walls are white to underscore the spaciousness Mrs. Hahn had longed for all during the years of the Colonial box-in-the-woods. Since space is costly, she was quite willing to forgo the luxury of elaborate bathrooms and what she calls a "dressed-up" kitchen in order to spend the money elsewhere. (Actually, the baths and kitchen are excellent. But they are servants, not still lifes.) Consequently, instead of bathroom pomp and kitchen glitter, the Hahns have a neatly secluded three-bedroom, two-bath wing for the children, an equally secluded bedroom, bath and study for themselves, a maid's bedroom and bath, and—between kitchen and bedrooms—a sweep of space (the axis of the house) divided into dining, living and sitting rooms. Bordered by a terrace on one side and a long, glass-walled gallery paralleling the inner court on the other, this free-wheeling arrangement is designed to answer a hostess' prayers. (Continued on next page)

The three wings of the house—service, living and sleeping—are folded around an inner court to utilize every inch of a former hillock, now flattened. A ravine was filled in to make space for the west terrace and sloping lawn.

OWNERS: Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hahn Jr.
ARCHITECTS: Robert Deigert and David Yerkes
INTERIOR DESIGNER: Edward Benesch
LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT: Thomas Church
LOCATION: Washington, D. C.
SIZE: 4,285 sq. ft. without basement

Three walls of glass open to the courtyard which is paved and walled on the fourth side with a double stone tier built like a hanging garden. At the narrow end, you can see straight through the foyer; at the right, you can look into the picture gallery.

On party nights, the painted tin dining room chandelier is unplugged, unhooked and stored away so guests can dance without ducking.

The courtyard is an outdoor party room;
the children's wing,
an ivory tower for fledglings

Like most Washingtonians, Mrs. Hahn entertains at the drop of a hat. A pillar of the Washington Gallery of Modern Art (she studied art history at L'École du Louvre), she fills the house with artists and artists' patrons, lawyers (naturally) and lawyers' clients, and, for the sake of catalysis, "just people." The parties are sizable—thirty to ninety guests, and always buffet. Cocktail parties, per se, are avoided—"too impersonal." For a thirtyish supper, Mrs. Hahn is happy—and quite able—to do all the cooking. For a really big rout, however, she steps down and lets a caterer take over. But thirty or ninety, the guests can flow through the house in a happy, unjostled wave to eat anywhere they like: inside, outside on the terrace, or in the sheltered, flower-bordered inner court.

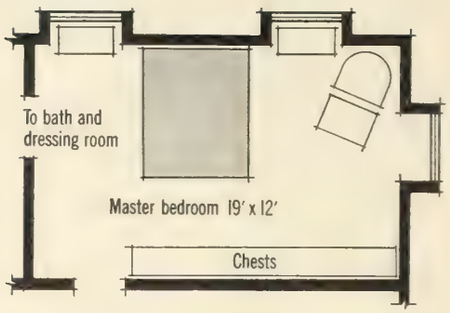
Alone, the Hahns dine in a pretty room with Spanish chairs stained a color Mr. Benesch calls khaki green—an invention of his own. The vivid living room colors appear only in splashes dyed into the white fur rug. (To take permanent hold, this had to be done twice—the second time in Greece, where the rug came from. Greek goats seem to prefer Greek dyes.) A beautiful little portrait by Marian Cannon (Mrs. Arthur Schlesinger Jr.) hangs over a simple wall-hung sideboard (Mr. Benesch's design) with orange lacquer drawer pulls, and there the color stops.

The bedrooms are equally serene. Ten-year-old Gilbert's room is a peaceful equation between blue and green (even the armchair, a relic from his grandmother's attic, is amusingly half and half), and 7-year-old Amanda goes to bed in a flurry of little-girl pinks. Polly, the 3-year-old, has a pale pink room of her own, and shares a pink bath with her sister.

The playground outside Gilbert's window will eventually swap its swings for a swimming pool, but not until Polly is big enough to swim without supervision. By then, the planting, which is now only a year old, will have reached reasonable maturity, the lawn sloping down into the circling trees will, with any luck, have overcome its growing pains, the white-painted brick will be showing glimmers of pink, and the house will have come into full, uncommon, ungarden-variety flower—a country house in town.

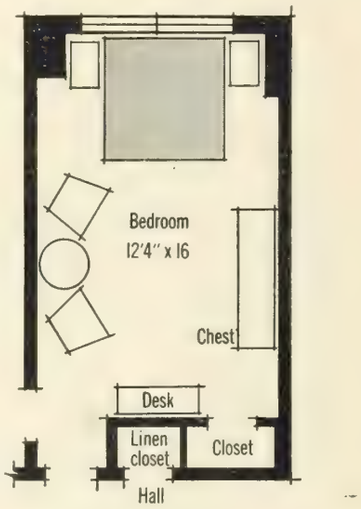
Daughter Amanda's room can welcome a guest, it is also her study. The whole point of the children's wing is independence for small fry and parents.

Gilbert III's bedroom is a small boy's bailiwick with a color scheme of his own choosing, and quick access via the study next door to the hillside playground.



how beds began to grow

Beds are getting bigger all the time. And it's well that they are, because people are getting bigger all the time. In the past fifty years, the average height of both men and women has shot up 2 inches, and beds once considered perfectly adequate are too short for today's lengthened limbs. In addition to extra length, our needs for more width have grown, too. This is particularly true for couples who like double beds. A standard double bed measures 54 inches wide by 74 inches long. If you split this space in half, each bed mate gets a 74-inch plot only 27 inches wide—exactly the width of a baby's crib. According to the sleep experts, any adult needs more than 27 inches of width, and anyone over 5 feet 4 inches tall needs a bed longer than 74 inches. The ideal sleeping space should be at least 39 inches wide and 10 inches longer than the height of the sleeper. Researchers have also found out that a sleeper turns twenty to fifty times a night. If you lack enough room to turn easily without bumping into your bedfellow, you remain slightly tense, hold yourself in a cramped position and sleep too lightly to wake completely refreshed.



So, if you value a good night's sleep (and who doesn't?) an oversize bed would surely qualify as one of your basic best buys. You have a choice today of four regular super-sizes: "queen-size" (60 by 80 inches) and three sizes called "king" (72 by 84; 78 by 80; and 78 by 84). These bigger beds give you from 6 to 24 extra inches of width plus 4 to 8 extra inches of leg room. And mattresses to fit them are now being made in all the standard mattress types—innerspring, foam rubber and the new plastic-foam—along with box springs of matching dimensions. Foam mattresses are good for large beds since they are light enough to turn easily and do not necessarily need a box spring. (A new outsize foam mattress is hinged along the middle to fold in half for even easier turning.) You will also find sheets, blankets, and bedspreads in the new large sizes—for a sampling, turn to page 254. On page 255 you will find a chart that tells which size to buy for which size mattress and on page 253, instructions for converting a standard double bed into a queen-size.

Fitting an oversize bed into an average bedroom is not as difficult as you might suspect. On the opposite page are two ways of doing it. Or you might create extra wall space by blocking off an unnecessary window with prefinished plywood paneling or a set of inside shutters and using these as a backdrop for the bed. If standard hinged doors opening into the room rob you of usable space, you could substitute sliding, fold-back or accordion-fold doors. You can even save the extra few inches taken up by a bedstead by using a box spring in a metal bed frame on casters or by placing a foam rubber mattress on a trim plywood platform. Beneath the platform you might build drawers to enlarge the room's quota of storage space.

Strategy for a queen-size bed

If you have as much as 60 inches of wall space between two windows, you can center the bed there and minimize its width by treating bed, wall and windows as one unit. In this room, the two windows are hung with flowery curtains and the wall between, with a panel of matching fabric that makes a backdrop for the bed and unites the window treatments. To balance this arrangement (and at the same time consolidate storage space) two chests of drawers are lined up against the wall opposite the foot of the bed. New place for a king-size bed

In a modern air-conditioned apartment where you rarely open the window, you can use the window as if it were wall space. Here, the whole window wall is hung with curtains of off-white wool in a nubbly textured weave that makes a soft backdrop for the bed (a smooth weave would have seemed too stark). The bed itself is covered with a wicker-weave spread in H&G's Antique Gold that blends well with the brass and mahogany headboard. As a result of the space-saving placement of the bed, enough room is left for a sitting area, a desk as well as a chest of drawers, and an uncluttered area for dressing. Bed by Harvey Probber. GILT-EDGED INVESTMENTS FOR ENTERTAINING

A chafing dish doubles as a warmer-server for soup

Lightweight trays can serve as well as carry

The same logic that links the basicness of a best buy with your own special needs and the way you like to live is the yardstick for determining a profitable investment in party-giving paraphernalia. What kind of party do you like best to give—buffets, seated dinners, cocktail parties, informal luncheons? Having defined the "how" of your entertaining, the rest should be easy. For buffets, your object will be quantity (of matching dishes, silver, linens), but for small dinners, you would probably prefer to have a variety of pretty ingredients, in smaller numbers, in order to ring changes on your table setting. In addition, of course, there are certain appurtenances which are basic no matter what kind of party you give. Crystallizing your entertaining needs in this manner will help you avoid the frenzy of last-minute buying—of hurriedly acquiring for one party, for instance, an outsize casserole or a batch of extra glasses only to find them performing no more than a one-night stand, since they do not really go with your other possessions. A realistic plan for assembling party basics will save storage space as well as dollars—and much of the time consumed by pre-party try-outs.

For buffet parties, outsize serving dishes and plenty of individual props: chafing dish, lap trays, all-purpose wineglasses, man-size napkins, imaginative decorations

FOR A LARGE BUFFET

Among the best investments for the buffet hostess, opposite page, is a large chafing dish. Not only does it hold enough of the main dish to serve a crowd, but it is also a shining addition to the table. Other rewarding buys: a stack of individual trays big and sturdy enough for guests to use as lap tables; all-purpose 8- or 10-ounce classic wine goblets to hold any kind of wine; white damask napkins of a size large enough to cover a guest's lap. The basics of this buffet setting: Wallace's "Soliloquy" sterling silver flatware; West Virginia Glass' 600 line goblets; Franconia's "Reverie" Bavarian translucent china.

FOR AN INFORMAL SUPPER PARTY

To qualify as a rewarding investment, party equipment should be adaptable to many more uses than those you bought them for originally. The same chafing dish can be used to serve soup (or a hot wine punch) at a supper party, above left, or without its heating element to hold a large cold dessert. The wine goblets can be used for cocktails, above right, and the trays to serve canapés or sandwiches.

FOR A FULL-SCALE DINNER

A pretty table setting to entice your guests is the first requisite for a dinner party, since the food—the leading enticement in a buffet setting—does not appear until later. And since you do not need such large quantities of any one appurtenance, you can spread your investment over several basic buys that will dress up your table in different ways. One excellent investment is a large, interesting container you can use for a centerpiece, such as the footed tôle bowl, opposite page, that can be filled with flowers or fruit. Another is a supply of classic goblets (in at least two sizes—one for water) that will go with any kind of china. Other good buys for seated dinners would be: a set of stacking compotes in crystal or china to use for cold soups or desserts; a set of special silver for fish, fruit or steak—depending on which appears most often on your favorite menus. Contributing to the charm of this dinner table: Wallace's "Sir Christopher" sterling silver flatware and hollow ware; Baccarat & Porthault's "Coppelia" crystal goblets; Royal Worcester's Grand Manor "Blue Belvoir" bone china; Henredon's "Custom Folio One" fruitwood table and secretary and painted chairs; Cohama's "Quadrille" and "Ventura" fabrics (at windows and on walls); flooring of dry pressed tile from Scandinavian Marketing Association.

FOR A DESSERT PARTY

The same tôle bowl, below left, can be filled with crushed ice and splits of champagne or white wine. Or the bowl might be used for fruit, below right, and wheeled into the living room on a teacart along with fruit plates and coffee. A teacart, in fact, makes a splendid basic buy for dinner party entertaining—it saves so much shuttling back and forth between table and kitchen. You can set up everything for one course (like salad or dessert) on the teacart in advance, then wheel it onto the scene in one move. When shopping for a teacart, look for easy maneuverability and sufficient shelf space. You will also find rolling servers today with built-in drawers or electrically heated tops, but these will be basic best buys for you only if they fill your individual needs.

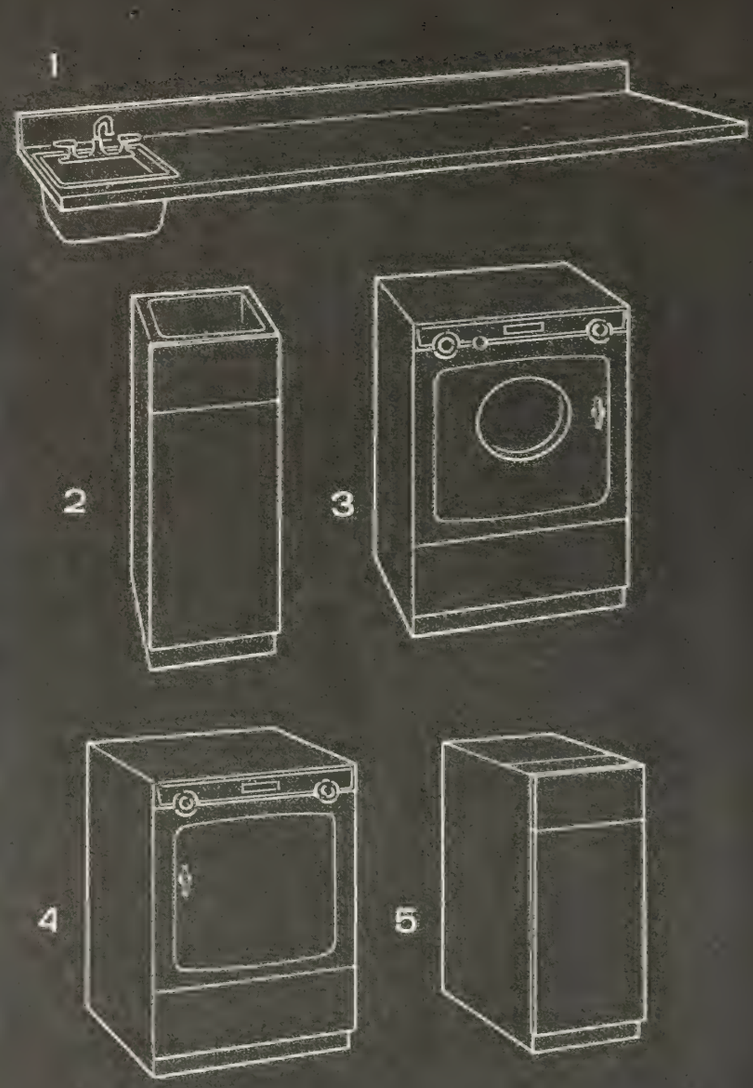
VERSATILE WHITE CHINA

No matter what type of entertaining is your particular forte, you will find certain acquisitions basic to every context. Plain white china, opposite page, to vary your patterned dishes is a number one investment. When buying white china, there are several things to keep an eye out for. Try to find a shape to harmonize with your other china. Also, try to match up whiteness: if the white body of your patterned china has a strong ivory or blue cast, look for plain china in a similar white. The quality and the thickness of the china should be the same, too.



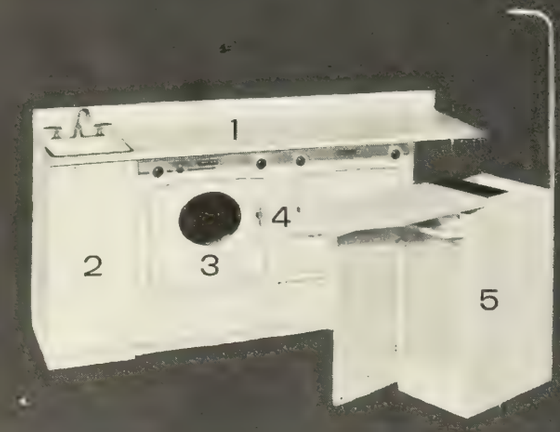
INDISPENSABLE ASSETS FOR SERVING

A generous-sized tureen, like those above left, is truly a gilt-edged investment for a wardrobe of party equipment because of its tremendous versatility—you can use it to serve soup or any hot or cold food, and it also makes an attractive table decoration. You will find tureens in metal, china and earthenware in all kinds of designs from simple contemporary shapes to fanciful ones with lids formed like vegetables. A really big tray, such as those above center, is another indispensable accessory for serving tea, after-dinner coffee or cocktails. Be sure a large tray is sturdy enough to tote a sizable load, has easy-to-grasp handles and a gallery or rim to keep things from sliding to the floor. A large tray placed on some kind of a base can also be used as an impromptu table. Or you might invest in a modern version of the traditional butler's tray with legs that flip down at the touch of springs under the handles. Nests of bowls, above right, in china or glass, plain or decorated, serve endless purposes—to hold salads, desserts, sauces, cocktail snacks. The simpler and more basic the design, the more smoothly the bowls will blend with your other china. Silver Paul Revere bowls make a particularly good investment for dessert courses. You might have a large one plus a matching pair in a smaller size: the large bowl could hold ice cream or berries, the small ones could hold dessert sauces or whipped cream and sugar. And don't forget how lovely and dewy silver looks when chilled.

Extra reserves of white plates, cups and saucers can supplement your patterned china

A five-part laundry

you can arrange as you please wherever you please



The five parts of the laundry include: (1) a plastic-laminate topped counter with a small sink, (2) a storage cabinet with a well for the sink, (3) a washer, (4) a dryer, (5) a second cabinet containing a pull-out ironing board. The arrangement below takes up the least space. The one on the opposite page offers the additional advantage of a sit-down work counter. Washer and dryer are both heavy-duty models that can cope with such cumbersome loads as a 10-pound shag rug which would weigh about 25 pounds wet. The equipment comes in turquoise, pink, yellow, a soft coppery tone or white, and the cost for all five parts is under $600. The plumbing installation would be extra.

Most families would consider laundry equipment a basic buy. But, frequently, although their need for it is great, the space they have to put it in is smaller than small. The new complete laundry recently introduced by Westinghouse, however, takes up little more room than today's sofa. The laundry consists of five separate components—a washer, a dryer, a cabinet ironing board, a small sink and a counter top—that you can put together in any combination you please and install any place in the house that proves most convenient. All you need is a stretch of space 83 inches long by 25 inches deep. Since that is standard cabinet depth you could add the laundry to a row of base cabinets in the kitchen and have a neat flush line-up. Or you could install the equipment along one wall of a breakfast room or even a family room and conceal it with ready-made folding doors of lightweight plastic such as those in the breakfast room, opposite page. Another strategic spot for such an arrangement would be in an upstairs hall, within a few steps of bedrooms, bathrooms and linen closet.

The key to the flexibility of these components is that you can mount the dryer on top of the washer instead of placing them side by side. Although such an arrangement takes up a little more space, it leaves enough knee room under the counter so that the work surface can be used as a sit-down center for sorting laundry or doing the mending.

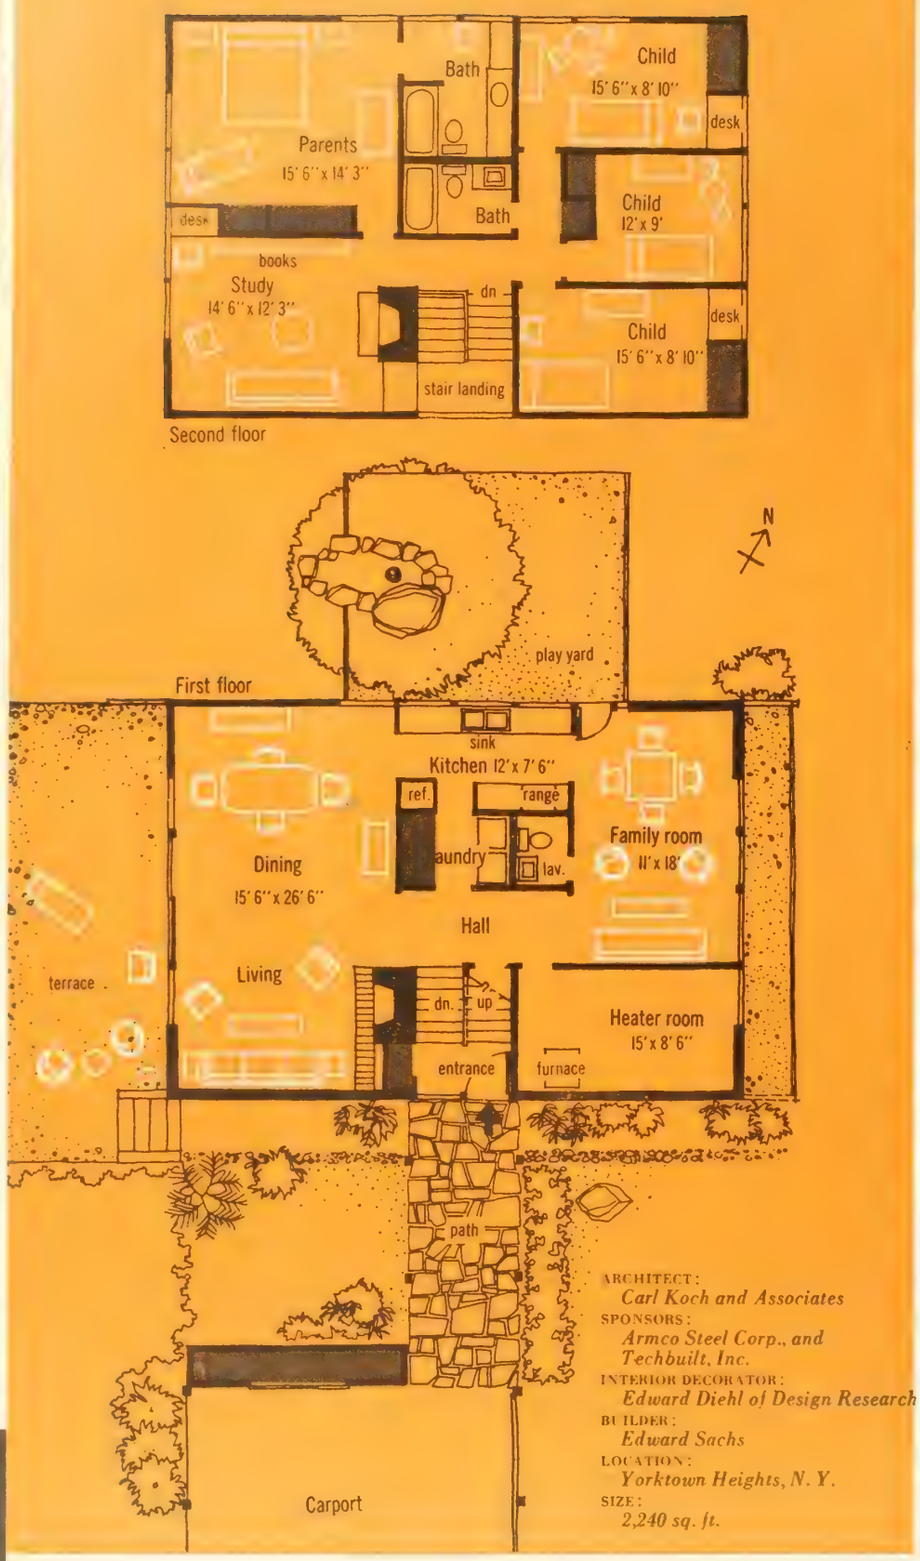
Building buy with extra dividend:

A ROOMY STEEL-FRAMED HOUSE PRICED UNDER $30,000

The qualities that give certain houses special values for certain families vary widely and may well be intangible and immeasurable. But the basic assets that make a house a good buy for almost anyone are constant and can be measured: the amount of space offered for the money; the kind of space; and the durability of the materials and construction. This should go without saying. But anyone who has trekked through the average builder's tract knows that when a house carries a moderate price tag, it is often at the expense of one or the other of the basics. Yet this need not be so. A new ready-built designed by Carl Koch clearly proves it.

Several years ago architect Koch made handsome use of ready-made wood components in the first and now-famous house he designed for Techbuilt, Inc. (see H&G, May, 1954). Now he has enlarged his original concept and applied it to a house of steel. The framework is steel, the walls and roof are formed of special ready-made steel panels, and as a result, the house is as fireproof, termite-proof and generally long-wearing as a house can be. Since all the exterior finishes are baked or bonded to the steel, there will be no need soon to repaint the walls or trim, no need ever to replace the roof. Yet perhaps the greatest value the house offers—especially in light of its under $30,000 price tag—is the extraordinary amount of space contained in the two stories: four bedrooms, two and a half baths and three different kinds of living rooms. This is a house where a young family would have plenty of room to grow.

Although mass-production techniques have been used to keep down the building costs, you would never suspect this to look at the exterior. The original model, built on a gently rolling site in Yorktown Heights, N.Y., reposes quietly among the tall old pines that surround it. Because the house was designed for sloping sites, the main entrance, located at one side, is midway between the two floors, from which point you go down seven steps to the living rooms, or up seven to the bedrooms. Furnished and decorated for a young family with three small children, this prototype will be open to visitors on Saturdays and Sundays until mid-November. Unfurnished replicas are available in the Midwest through dealers of the Armco Steel Corp., for whom the house was designed, and in the Northeast through Techbuilt, Inc., builders. You can also get the same construction with variations of the basic plan.



Why it qualifies as a basic best buy:

- Space for the money: For under $30,000 you get a 2,240 square foot house (without land) containing four bedrooms.
- Well-allocated space: The plan includes a living room plus a family room plus a study.
- Stout construction: You get all the virtues of steel construction for the price of wood framing.
- Durability: The house is fireproof, termite-proof, has built-in maintenance.
- Inviting interiors: There are warm wood surfaces in all main rooms, a brick fireplace on each floor.

At the back of the house, opposite page, where both stories are above ground level, sliding doors flanked by fixed panels of glass open the living room to a terrace partially screened by the extended sides of the house, partially sheltered by the deep overhang of the roof and a sunshade grille that contributes a lacy pattern of light and shade. A band of white porcelain-finished panels separates the downstairs glass area from the bedroom windows above. The gray-green of the walls and the charcoal of the window frames are baked-on acrylic finishes with a life expectancy of at least ten years.

At the front of the house, left, because of the slope of the land, only a story and a half rise above the ground. A covered walk leads from the carport to the main entrance which is located in the windowless side of the house, at a point midway between the two levels.

The house is a warm and spacious setting for a young and active family

The plan of the house frees a maximum amount of space for varied and generous living areas by keeping hallways and such to a minimum. From the landing inside the front door, steps go up to the bedrooms and down to the ground floor, where the 26½-foot living-dining room runs the full width of the house. A central utility core consisting of kitchen, pantry-laundry room and powder room serves as a buffer between the living-dining room and the family room. Next to the family room is a heater room big enough to use also as a workshop. Upstairs, the utility core contains two bathrooms which, with the stair hall, separate the parents' bedroom and study from the three bedrooms for the children.

In the big living-dining room, above, warm woods, natural brick, vivid color and lots of sparkling white create a glowing, vital atmosphere. Scandinavian furniture contributes to the gay, young mood of the model house, yet the rooms would be equally happy backgrounds for American or French Provincial furnishings. Both the living area and the dining area at the other end of the room, far right, share a wide-open outlook on the terrace and the woods beyond. The family room on the other side of the kitchen, right, has a sunny yellow door leading to the play yard, and this room might perhaps be reserved especially for the younger generation. It is generous in size, and its convenience to the kitchen makes it an excellent party room as well as a good place for family breakfasts and young children's meals.

The upper floor provides plenty of room to grow in 1 Upstairs, the study supplies still another kind of living room which might be used initially as a playroom for young children and later, when they have reached their teens, be converted to a parental sitting room or home office. (There is a built-in desk at the far end of the bookshelf wall.) The fireplace—a made-to-order spot for children's bedtime stories—uses the same chimney as the living room fireplace below, and, together with the bookshelves beside it, screens the stairway. Wall at top of stairs and one wall of study are paneled with vertically grooved walnut plywood.

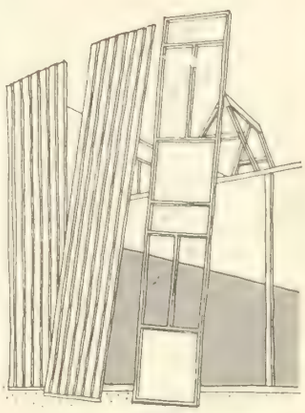
2 The master bedroom has its own, good-sized bath-dressing room with a mosaic-tile floor and a built-in dressing counter at the end of the lavatory. Since the bathroom fixtures are all at the other end of the room, the dressing area, visible through the open door, can be furnished as an extension of the bedroom. The door, like all the others in the house, is close to ceiling height which emphasizes the continuity of space from one room to the next and adds a special touch of elegance. Bathroom windows and adjoining window in bedroom overlook the play yard (convenient for parental supervision), but two windows in the wall on the other side of the bed overlook the living terrace. All the windows in the house have a special type of unframed sliding sash with locks just above the sills.

3 In the children's rooms, the plain white walls and tall doors promote a feeling of added space, and make it possible to use bunk beds without having the rooms looked cramped. White also makes a wonderful background for the bright colors children love. Here the rails of the bed and the drawer fronts of the chest (all of solid birch from Finland) have been painted to match the Danish plaid blankets that double as bedspreads.

4 Each of the two larger children's bedrooms has a desk counter built in below the window and, next to that, a 5-foot-long closet. The bed used in this room is a trundle version (a wonderful way to make room for children's overnight guests) of the bunks in the room above. (The spotted reptile coiled on the plaid blanket made the trip from Scandinavia along with the rest of the furnishings.) All of the rooms on the second floor of the model house have been covered with sandy beige carpet which makes an excellent background for the bright area rugs that give each room individuality.



How ready-made components cut the cost of building

The house is assembled from specially designed, interlocking steel panels that form whole sections of the walls, the roof and the upper floor. As a result, much costly labor is eliminated, and construction is so rapid that the whole shell of the house can be erected in a matter of days after the foundation is in place. THE ROOF, top of page, consists of interlocking steel panels coated with heat-resistant aluminum. The steel framework spans the width of the house, so space inside can be divided at will, since the interior partitions carry no load. Along the roof ridge are special ventilating caps that circulate air under the roof. The gable ends are sheathed with steel sheets stamped with a diamond pattern in low relief which not only keeps the steel rigid, but also contributes a pleasant textured effect.

THE FLOOR between the first and second levels, above, is composed of broad steel pans which act as ducts for the forced-air heating system and as carriers for electric cables—thus eliminating some of the costly hand labor of building duct-work and installing cables. A plywood floor is laid over the steel pans, to be covered with carpet. The ground floor of the house is a concrete slab. THE WALLS AND WINDOW FRAMES, below, come in one- or two-story-high units that are simply lifted into place. Window frames are designed to hold fixed or sliding panels of glass or steel. Wall panels interlock so there are no visible joints.

FURNITURE WITH A LONG FUTURE

fits neatly into small rooms and small budgets

As anyone knows who has ever tried it, making a one-room apartment delightfully livable calls for juggling several targets: You want every piece of furniture to have a distinctly living room look, yet pay its way in round-the-clock usefulness. You must find room in comparatively limited space for all the many different things you need and make room for them likewise in your budget. And since no one expects to live in a small apartment forever, each major investment ought to have a predictable future in larger quarters.

In this small-apartment dining area, these complex requirements are met by a new group of furniture called "Crown Colony." The reproductions were based on the special version of the Queen Anne style that originated in the colonists' houses of early eighteenth-century Bermuda. Since the houses were small and many of the rooms tiny, the designs were necessarily small in scale—a very welcome asset for today's apartments. Also welcome to young couples furnishing such apartments on small budgets is the not-so-common opportunity to acquire eighteenth-century furniture at modest prices. And the variation of finishes—warm brown mahogany on some pieces, soft antique white on others—helps to further the deft blend of Queen Anne dignity with the relaxed cool-cottage look of semi-tropical Bermuda.

The round mahogany table that recalls the tea tables of early Colonial living rooms performs in this contemporary living room as a permanent game table. At the same time, its shape and scale are friendly and comfortable for dining, and later, for a separate dining room, its 44-inch diameter can be expanded with leaves into a generous oval. The chairs, wed to the table in style but not in finish, avoid the dining room look of a matched set, can even be borrowed when needed to supplement the sofa and upholstered chairs at the other end of the room. Later, for a separate dining room, they can be augmented by host and hostess chairs, possibly in the mahogany of the table. The sideboard makes a low, unbulky living room console. But topped with the corniced open-shelf hutch designed to go with it, this piece would become an important element in a dining room. And the two components of the étagère might later be used separately: the cabinet base as a lamp table, the shelves in a foyer.

Contributing to the young, gay look of the furniture is the light-hearted flower pattern that covers the chair seats and papers the folding screen. Its casual, informal design makes a delightfully unexpected accompaniment for furniture of this style, and its colors animate the entire room. All this variety of line, color and pattern is quietly unified by a one-color background: walls and carpeting in H&G's Bronze Green crisply accented by the white moldings.

GUERRERO

A TERRACE FOR ALL SEASONS

Paved for practicality, set amid fine turf and handsome flowering plants, this garden room is furnished for both summer comfort and all-weather durability

If you put as much thought into planning your garden terrace as you put into planning your house or choosing your furnishings, a long and happy future will be yours, outdoors and indoors. If, in addition, you take advantage of the built-in self-improvement qualities of living plants, you will find outdoor obsolescence to be a myth and increasing beauty your portion as the seasons pass. Then, to top it all off, if you reduce the problem of maintaining your terrace and its environment to an annual cleanup and something roughly equivalent to a once-over-lightly with a feather duster, you will have the particular kind of terrace we are talking about. A lot of ifs. But to prove it could be done, we did it.

We began with a bill of particulars. We wanted beauty above all, as befits any garden site. We wanted practicality and convenience, on the defensible theory that a terrace that was a lot of trouble to maintain would be unlikely to foster either recreation or relaxation. We wanted durability that would withstand the vagaries of outdoor weather without harm or even serious deterioration. Finally, and perhaps especially, we wanted what might best be termed availability—a sense of invitation and ready welcome at all times of day and year and for one or two people or a gardenful. And we wanted our money's worth. All this was a large order. But by making full use of a site that was practically ready-made to our hand, we got what we were after. On these and the four following pages, and in Gardener's Month, page 262, is the detailed story of how our best-buy terrace was planned and built, how it is cared for and planted.

The nature as well as the plan of the terrace, above and opposite page, is most readily apparent if you climb into the big sweet-gum tree that shades it and look down on it. Its surface of foot-square paving in checkerboard alternation with squares of turf is almost as serviceable for furniture as your living room floor. The terrace paving stones are 1½-inch-thick bluestone; the grass, 70 per cent Merion Kentucky blue and 30 per cent creeping fescue. Like the trees, the flowering evergreen shrubs enclosing terrace are quite literally at home in their places. Lead urn, pedestal and plant shell by Florentine Craftsmen, I and cast-aluminum furniture by Brown-Jordan, from Mayhew.

HOW THE ALL-SEASON TERRACE WAS MADE

There is no more agreeable paving for a garden terrace than good turf. And there's the rub. For the maintenance of an all-turf surface under the wear of day-to-day use and the tear of chair and table legs—not to mention spike heels—is virtually impossible without an army of retainers. But give your turf a fifty-fifty split with solid stone and you immediately slay a number of landscape dragons. First, and least important, you reduce, by exactly half, the amount of grass you must care for. Second, and more important, you halve the wearable, tearable areas of the terrace itself. Third, and perhaps most important, if you adopt such a checkerboard design of 1-foot squares as we used, you make it possible to place either a chair leg or a foot almost anywhere and find a durable platform beneath. This means that sitters won't teeter, tables won't totter—that even when the grass is damp, guests will be able to move dry-shod across the surface.

Once you have settled on a design that promises long-range satisfaction, the methods you use to build your terrace deserve careful attention. If you start from scratch on an undeveloped site, you should follow the ordinary grading procedures of all good landscaping, from the subsoil up. If, as we were able to do, you start with a rather uneven but vigorous crescent of established turf, you simply provide the thick frosting on top of the landscape cake. That is to say, you build up a good bed of new soil, varying from 3 to 5 inches and raked to a real but unobtrusive slope adequate to handle rain run-off, and lay your stones on it—or in it—according to a pre-set pattern. After that you let the whole business settle for three or four days. Between the stones you will then place your all-important turf.

Right here is where your terrace can really become a best buy instead of a prolonged exercise in virtuoso lawn-making. Because you will fill in the squares between the stones not with sifted topsoil and seed but with custom-grown, impeccably weedless, inch-thick squares of instant turf. (Grown in meticulously cultivated fields, in pure strains or grass mixtures to suit every purpose, such turf is becoming an ever more important recourse of busy gardeners who are willing to care for good grass, but dread the chore of raising it from seed.) Cut in the morning in precise 1-by-4-foot strips, our sod was delivered to terrace-side by the nursery before noon, was cut and laid on fertilized soil before the end of the afternoon. A firm rolling and a sun-down spray from a patiently wielded hose completed the job.

Our terrace was the more easily made, we must admit, because the original underlying lawn was long established, the soil fertile, the surrounding plants suitable to their location and use and lovingly cared for. It was the more difficult to make, we hasten to add, because the whole grade needed truing up over the slumberous roots of the big sweet-gum. This required enough soil to do the job without suffocating tree roots or disturbing the satisfactory pattern of the shrubbery bed. The step-by-step details explain how it was accomplished.

Nondescript is the word for the original sitting area (1). It had looked like this for a dozen years and would be good for twenty more—but what an unglamorous prospect. So it was, quite literally, buried.

First practical step was to lay out paving stones, according to prearranged measured plan, on old grass surface (2) and establish fixed reference points.

Once stones were laid to plan, necessary adjustments were made (3) to bring relations of squares and over-all shape into harmony with shape and mass of shrubbery. Then stones were lifted and piled out of the work area.

Thick but not too thick layer of new soil (5 cubic yards of workaday topsoil) was laid to the new grade marked by stakes and string on center line, and key rows of stones were set in the well-raked surface (4). The bluestone was standard 11½-by-11½-inch cut, laid 12 inches apart and trued with a plywood straight edge at both right angles and diagonally. Soil was added as stones were laid, then left to settle.

Specially grown turf (now widely available), pre-cut to 12-inch width and 1-inch thickness, was easily cut into squares with ordinary turf edger. Sods were laid on fresh layer of topsoil liberally laced with handful of superphosphate (5), to speed root formation. When pressed down with hand, sod was just above level of stones.

Care in laying stones and sods paid off when whole new terrace surface was finally rolled with medium-weight roller (6). Since stones had had time to settle, and since sod was set in layer of new soft soil, the rolling helped consolidate final surface, leaving grass easily mowable and maintaining drainage planned at the outset.

Success of new-laid sod depended on fine tilth of new soil beneath and speed with which surface mat of grass roots extended downward for nourishment and anchorage. Watering (7) was all important, from the time sods were in place until growth was well established. (This may take a fortnight or more, depending on weather and season.) Once started, good sod should remain weed-free and vigorous, should last almost as long as stones.
For tools and techniques of maintenance, see next page.

RALPH BAILEY

HOW THE ALL-SEASON TERRACE IS CARED FOR

The ultimate value of almost any investment you make, for whatever reason, is likely to depend on the way you protect it. In other words, neither first cost nor intrinsic worth can avail much in the face of neglect. This goes double for such landscape elements as terraces that are subject to the vicissitudes of weather and the changing seasons. The same goes for living plants such as grass that are always changing anyway: they change for the better only if you cosset them a little. We began by building our terrace of the most durable materials, animate and inanimate, that we could think of. We built it as well as we knew how. Then we furnished it with virtually everlasting tables, chairs and ornaments (prettied up with seasonal flowers to go with the ornaments, and seasonal cushions to lily-gild the chairs). After all that, we should have been either foolish or remiss or both to plan anything less than adequate routine care, but with the minimum of time and elbow grease.

The half-dozen implements we selected to care for our best-buy terrace and its immediate environment have all been tested thoroughly, on this particular terrace as well as elsewhere. Some are new to homeowners this season. All are of sound design and fine quality. All cost more than the general run of merchandise generally offered to accomplish the same ends. All are available the country over (H&G's Reader's Service can help you with shopping details if you need them.)

All the functions of this equipment may be used to advantage in caring for this as for any terrace. Grass must be mowed at least once a week with a mower capable of doing all the mowing required. The turf must be fertilized at least once and preferably twice a year with a modern, delayed action turf fertilizer. In dry times the grass must be watered (not sprinkled—watered) deeply and evenly. This is especially important in late summer with all strains of Kentucky bluegrass. Since a terrace can be an abomination if its grooming is slighted, H&G was especially exacting in choosing tools for trimming the grass and the new gasoline-powered vacuum sweeper with which we keep our whole terrace clean. Finally, for the all-important story of the planting, turn to page 262.

GOOD LAWN MOWERS are not hard to find. But the prudent homeowner may do well to invest in a thoroughly professional model such as Jacobsen's new Commercial 20 rotary. Built for park and landscape use to withstand heavy duty and last many years, it has large ball-bearing wheels, a magnesium housing, a 5-quart gasoline tank and a 20-inch blade. It is easily maneuvered over turf edges, around trees, gives a remarkably clean cut.

FERTILIZER DISTRIBUTERS are generally of either the drop type or the broadcast type. For our irregular area, we chose the Cyclone broadcaster, with a horizontal application in a feather-edged swath that minimizes the risk of skips and misses encountered with drop-type machines (which work splendidly on rectangular lawns). Fertilizer, lime, seed, even pesticides and weed control materials may all be applied with this rotary device.

RALPH BAILEY

TURF TRIMMERS are as varied as the blades of grass some of the worst of them fail to cut. None is of better design or finer quality than the two long-handled shears, above. Blades are of near-stainless sword steel that holds its edge, with good care, for half-a-dozen seasons without resharpening. The upper model cuts vertically, is especially useful for trimming wayward edges of turf around trees and along beds where no mower can serve. The lower model cuts horizontally, is best for trimming under, and close to, low or vulnerable objects such as lead shells or tree bark. Both tools are English, by Wilkinson Sword, Ltd.

TERRACE SWEEPERS are Johnny-come-lately's among garden tools. Outdoor sweeping is no longer the housemaid's function (if only because there is no housemaid). Gilson's new gas-powered lawn vacuum, above right, whisks up, at one quick pass, grass clippings, leaves, cigarette butts, paper and just plain dirt. Its zippered bag holds a big partyful of rubbish.

SPRINKLERS (an inadequate word for what a drought-plagued lawn really needs) are almost a dime a dozen. Not this one, right. Of bronze, with a dependable, efficient piston action, this Skinner Spray Wave has many useful but not nonsensical adjustments, puts out water fast but gently.

THE FRIENDLY STOVE

Confederate of man's pleasures, it often approximates human behavior

The other day, when I was shown the resplendent microwave oven ("a meal turned out in a few minutes") that a well-off friend bought for his understandably pampered bride, I remembered a farmhouse stove of my childhood. Grandiose in a very different way, it was of nineteenth-century vintage and belonged to a husband-loving aunt of mine. She always refused to get rid of the handsome monster. In pleasurable accord with its mysteries, she was never daunted by its huge coal fire, cumbersome oven, complicated flues, hobs, trivets, griddle piece, pulley chains and "jack" for open roasting, fender, coal scuttle, pokers and ash-raker.

She treated this stove, which lay in a chapel-like alcove of the enormous kitchen, with a diplomatic respect and wheedling devotion often given to the Author of our being. And well she might. The oven's massive iron door had an inset panel on which was carved, in the center of a design of wheat sheaves, a bearded figure of God on a throne, hand benignly raised in blessing. Every morning she black-leaded the entire main body of the stove, beginning by giving God's nose a generous dab, then, singing, burnishing the whole to a silvery black lustre. It was like a matinal offering.

Her products from the revered stove were wonderful. I would be allowed to tear away the warm golden crusts overhanging her tins of bread, and it was of them I thought when, years later, I copied down a churchyard epitaph for a village baker:

> Like to a Baker's oven is the grave
> Wherein the bodies of the faithful have
> A setting in: and where they do remain
> In hopes to rise, and to be drawn again:
> Blessed are they who in the Lord are dead,
> Though set like Dough, they shall be drawn like Bread.

What is a cooker without a loving cook? What, that microwave oven without an approach of willing devotion? Even our severely utilitarian and almost foolproof ovens of today, with their marvelous ingenuities for saving time and temper, ask for that appreciative sense of creation I'm sure my aunt felt when she accosted her provider of ever-renewed bliss. After all, apart from that great comfort, the bed, the stove is the most important object in the home. It certainly has a personality of its own, and often approximates human behavior. If treated with contempt, or if looked on as an energy thief, it can retaliate with a bad dish.

Man always felt the need of a cooking stove, and his affinity with it is not likely to leave him. From its beginning as a heap of hot stones in which baked a clay-encrusted bird or, perhaps, a piece of a captured tribal enemy, it has been essential to our well-being and wish for variety. (Look at a man enjoying the recovered satisfaction of barbecue cooking today!) Of course, a stove can be brutally misused to the point where the will to eat is assassinated. The stove has helped to wreck marriages and caused bleak phobias in children. But also it has contributed to the greatness and prosperity of a nation.

We know that France had no culinary reputation until Catherine de Médicis brought Italian cooks to Paris and began that country's long era of treating the stove as of royal importance—a visionary move, both culturally and commercially. The number of foreigners whose initial urge to visit France is the unashamed prospect of a meal must still be enormous. On the other hand, we know that French worship of the stove can be carried to extravagant lengths. In the vast list of French gourmets there was the bland Alexandre Dumas, with his receipt for cooking young elephant's feet and his "soak 15 young shark stomachs for 24 hours"—an outrageous glutton who did not stop short at eating donkey. The French had, too, the illustrious Vatel, the chef who committed suicide because he failed Madame de Sévigné in a little matter of fish.

England lagged, and still rather lags, in recognition of the stove as a friendly confederate of man's pleasures. Did Puritanism bring this shunning? There's a nutshell jibe, attributed to Prince Caracciolo, that England has "sixty religions and one sauce." Hawthorne, in 1858, was less impatient: "I doubt whether English cookery, for the very reason that it is so gross, is not better for man's moral and spiritual nature than French." We must allow that, while France was eating, hordes of adventurous men left England and colonized the greatest Empire in the world, though it is far-fetched to assume that the cooking stove drove them from their native hearths.

In the ordinary home the stove is still too exclusively a woman's possession. Surely all men should learn to conquer it, along with their prospective wives? Not only is there the advantage of the husband having independency in time of trouble, but the possibly grateful wife will not feel so victimized by her daily routine. Utopian though it may seem, cooking should be as mutual as other manifestations of conjugal affection. After all, the most celebrated victors of the stove have been men—no doubt due, at least partly, to their being less prone to uncontrolled emotional turmoil. Cooking needs the cool precision of surgeons. A housewife's howl of anguish or venomous curse over a spoiled dish (probably she is thinking of her dear ones) is simply true to her feminine nature.

Then we have that breed of professional women cooks traditionally given to choler and terrible displays of rage. As were queens in history, they are either much loved or much feared. Timid they seldom are. I can remember two such tempestuous ministers.

During the war I was calling at a village policeman's cottage when a locally employed cook arrived with her packed suitcase. She was in boiling condition and denounced her mistress to the policeman. Food rationing was at its most severe just then, and the mistress was obtaining unlimited goods in the black market. But the revelation by this real prima donna of the oven was not prompted by patriotism. Her tirade over, she wept and, pacified by the policeman's tactful wife, admitted that her basic grievance was her employer's refusal to replace a troublesome old range with a modern stove. Her wail simmered down to this: "She dresses fit to kill, eats like a horse, but she won't spend a penny on a new cooker." The moral: give your cook the latest model if you want her to purr.

The other example was a Scotswoman in London who, though obtained from a respectable agency and given an unimpeachable stove, must have had affiliations with the baleful trio of witches in "Macbeth." I was one of four guests when she sent to the table a dish of beans with a large dead cockroach laid prominently on top. The hostess looked melancholy; her explanation was that the cook's lover, a driver on the underground, had abandoned her.

Such cooks disgrace their sacred workbench. Their behavior indicates that there is room for psychiatrists specializing in neuroses derived from even the labor-saving stoves the manufacturers now shower on us. Mrs. Beeton, that great Victorian crusader for the potentialities of the stove, that august British grandmother of such privileges as we now enjoy from the inescapable domestic object, would not have minced her words about such antics. She looked at a suckling pig, took it to the stove with a calm and holy sense of creation, and the pig became poetry.

An official halo has yet to be given to a cook. St. Lawrence and his gridiron, once the emblem of a guild of Paris chefs, had no kitchen status except that the martyr is reputed to have cried out bitterly to the judge watching his torments, "I am roasted enough on this side; turn me round and eat." But I know of one talented lady who, I feel, now enjoys heavenly perfection. Adelaide was the undaunted cook at a boys' charity orphanage and waged ceaseless warfare with the matron, an austere woman given to cheeseparing economies. Adelaide usually won; the orphans, love-children for the most part, were given imaginative meals. In particular she insisted on producing edibles appropriate to numerous saints' festivals, some of them obscure or celebrated only locally—a subtle move in her warfare, since the orphanage was of religious guardianship. The boys ate St. Bride bannocks on the first day of spring, and the feast of St. Catherine found them wolfing what Adelaide called Cattern cake: treats not given even at Eton. Childless Adelaide also encouraged them to learn the marvels of her trade. One day, too, a hotly pursued little delinquent ran into her kitchen for sanctuary; she hid him in one of the ovens, which was capacious as her heart. Her old boys remember Adelaide fondly.

When I asked the domestic science mistress of a primary school if education at the stove included lessons in appreciation of our loyal friend's civilizing, poetic, moral and even humorous values, such as Mrs. Beeton (in the original full editions of her book) and the famous if sometimes besotted French writers have blessed us with, she replied "No." The girl pupils were only taught how to prepare and cook the mundane everyday dishes. This seems to me shortsighted; it will not help to overcome the still too general English and American attitude toward the stove's greater luxuries and pomps as something faintly reprehensible. She told me, however, that her school was experimenting—a good step forward—with inviting boys to take evening classes in cooking. The response had been gratifying, though the boys, so far, tended to treat the stoves as a means of rewarding them with particular dishes for which they personally were avaricious. But, unlike the girls, they always proudly and delightedly bore their products to her to sample. She agreed that their creative instinct was stirred, as it is in such satisfactions as painting or constructional mechanics.

"The discovery of a new dish does more for the happiness of man than the discovery of a star." Brillat-Savarin's pronouncement might not get a nod of agreement from nations bent on reaching the planets. But it should not be forgotten when next we acquire a new stove. The makers encourage us with the enticing array of gleaming and dexterous models we see waiting in the showrooms, like actresses in the wings. Those stoves will not respond with their best performance if we fail to respect their true worth or feel they demand martyrdom from us.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Only the demands of editorial consistency persuaded us to discard Rhys Davies' own title for this essay—"The God on the Oven Door." Its emphasis reflects the atmosphere he grew up in—a Welsh coal mining valley that he has described as a turbulent place of high-minded religious disputes, industrial warfare and singing festivals known as Eisteddfods. Wales, in fact, has been the background for most of his stories and novels from "The Withered Root" to "The Painted King." In addition to his aunt's oven, one that has long fascinated him is the device a Victorian Welshman, Dr. William Price, built for his own cremation. (It fulfilled its purpose admirably but fell apart in the process.) "A far cry from that oven," muses Mr. Davies, "to our pale conventional cooker of fowls and tarts. But perhaps it should make us pause to reverence the pleasures which the latter can give."

News: THE ENGLISH COUNTRY LOOK revitalized for today's rooms

Throughout all the shifting tides of taste, one style that has persisted over the centuries with imperturbable grace is the warm, spontaneous and flower-fresh look of the country houses of England. Recently revitalized by the bright, clear colors of the contemporary palette, it offers a manner of decorating that can flower again in today's rooms in a hundred different ways. The essence of this style is informality touched with elegance. Its components—soft, deep upholstery; pattern piled on pattern; textures daringly mingled; the spice of chinoiserie; the companionable warmth of mahogany —combine to create an effect as unconfined as a rambling old-fashioned garden.

To achieve it requires no clean sweep in decorating, for you can build on what you already have, just as successive generations of English families added to their ancestral homes their own new acquisitions. The potpourri look that emerged from this natural growth was epitomized by the Royal Pavilion at Brighton. Completed in 1820 as a summer palace for George IV, it harbored under its minareted roof a scintillating mélange of styles that influenced English decorating for the rest of the nineteenth century.

As interpreted today, the English country look can be as far out and fanciful or as downright cozy and comfortable as you please. The rooms on these four pages were designed by Blair Catterton of B. Altman and Company, N. Y. who combined antique furniture and accessories with newly minted reproductions, some made in Europe, some made for Altman's in the U.S., by the Baker Furniture Company.

The exotic tang of chinoiserie that began to spice English country houses in the days of Queen Anne enlivens a dining room of today. Twin pagoda-like cabinets stand as lively exclamation points against pink, yellow and white striped wallpaper, and bring out the Chinese flavor of the white table and yellow chairs. The interplay of straight lines and curves is itself an important, lively element in English rooms. Here, the total effect is less an echo of the past than a freshness and airy charm that is timeless.

GRIGSBY

The carefree piling of pattern on pattern and the medley of furniture styles give a city living room the cozy informality of an English country house. Rose-splashed chintz sets a theme, recurring in the Aubusson rug, the crewel pillows, the appliquéd curtains, that unifies the room. Characteristic touches of elegance are the French chairs, and the straight, slender lines of the glass-doored cabinet by Baker, in which books are at once displayed and protected as the treasures they are.

A spacious, uncrowded arrangement of furniture brings out the individuality of such diverse delights as an ornate little lacquered table, an Italian chair in the Directoire manner and Baker's bamboo-turned Canterbury and lyre-base writing table. Soft green flocked wallpaper and a contemporary shag rug in beige make a richly textured background.

The fantasy finishes that gave English Regency houses much of their rich flavor are apt choices for today's painted accent pieces. A reproduction of a cabinet painted in faux tortoise, an old bamboo chair and a flowered rug make a glowing off-beat combination at one end of a living room.

A liberal dash of chinoiserie provides decorative excitement for a modern foyer. But everything is carefully related in scale and spirit: the arabesques on the brightly painted old chest and the painting above it (a modern fantasy) and the flowery tracery in the antique rug.

MARVIN T. GILBRETH

Traditional designs rejuvenated by contemporary color create in a bedroom an atmosphere both spirited and serene. The bird-and-flower print lavishly used for bedcover, hangings, curtains and chair covering is a fresh combination of today's bright pastels. Copied by Baker from a Chippendale bed, the grand four-poster is enameled bright green, the green chaise is sparked with blue buttons and large splashes of white—the background of the print, the porcelain birds, the cornices and moldings—make every color sing.

Best buys for parties in the offing

By James A. Beard

Fall opens the year's busiest social season, the time for cocktail parties and dinner parties. All too soon, so it seems, it will be Thanksgiving, and then Christmas. The efficient host, contemplating the entertaining ahead, checks over his liquor cabinet and wine cellar and makes plans to replenish his stocks. The wise host studies the catalogues of his local dealers and orders with an eye to future entertaining—from small dinners to big buffet suppers and open house parties. For dinners where the menu and wine are of paramount importance, he will invest in a carefully chosen few of the great Burgundies and Bordeaux (in magnums, if the size of the guest list merits it), knowing that a lesser wine could ruin a beautifully balanced meal. On the other hand, for more informal buffet meals where a great wine would overwhelm the simpler food, he will choose a lighter imported or domestic wine. He selects a varied list of wines and liquors, knowing that a best buy is essentially what best suits the occasion.

How to buy wisely and well

If you foresee a run of big parties (cocktail parties, buffets, holiday punch parties), it is always a good idea to buy liquor by the case, provided you have the storage facilities. This almost always means a saving and is a safeguard against running out of supplies over a hectically social weekend. In some states you can also buy popular liquors such as bourbon, rye, gin and vodka in half-gallon, full-gallon and even five-gallon jugs—and the advantage in price is considerable.

How do you serve liquor from such large containers? You don't. You use decanters. Many people consider this a far more attractive way to serve liquor than from the bottle. Decanters need not be expensive. You can find good-looking yet modestly priced decanters of contemporary design. If you like unusual old decanters, antique stores and second-hand shops often have them in a wide range of prices. Collecting these additions to your serving paraphernalia can be both interesting and rewarding. Be sure, though, to hang identifying metal, pottery or porcelain labels around the necks of the decanters. Otherwise you might mistake rye for bourbon or gin for vodka. If you object to decanters because you feel your guests might expect to see the label on the bottle, remember that the quality of any liquor is in its taste and no one should need a label to proclaim it. (If they do, they do not genuinely appreciate the product.)

It is also sensible to buy your favorite wines by the case—not just for the saving, but also because good wines are usually in limited supply and sell out quickly. You can't always be sure of being able to get the same wine you liked last month. When buying by the case, sample a single bottle before ordering. This applies particularly to unfamiliar wines, toward which many people are gravitating these days as the increasing demand for great wines of outstanding vintage has sent their prices sky-

HOUSE & GARDEN'S

Hot Hors d'Oeuvre Cook Book

By Elaine Ross

Wittily dubbed by the French amuse bouche, the hors d'oeuvre is intended to pleasure the sense of taste, to titillate the palate and to whet but not fatigue the appetite. A prime virtue of the hors d'oeuvre is its adaptability. In addition to being a cocktail appetizer or first course, certain hors d'oeuvre, if stepped up in quantity, make a light but satisfying main course. When it comes to figuring out how many hors d'oeuvre to serve per guest as a cocktail appetizer before dinner, err on the side of caution. A fair estimate would be three or four if the hors d'oeuvre is minute and not very filling. For a small group, prepare one or two kinds that will complement the dinner to come. Increase the variety in proportion to the guest list. If you plan to serve hors d'oeuvre with drinks in lieu of a first course at the table, pick a substantial recipe such as Münster Cheese Batter Pudding. As a main course, you might team Eggs Vert Galant or Oeufs Vigneronne with a green salad for a Gallic lunch, or whip up Meat Balls Ocho Rios in a chafing dish for a late supper. And should you be feeling ambitious enough to spend time in the kitchen, you might stage an impressive smörgasbord-style buffet party, skipping a main course and serving eight or ten different hors d'oeuvre selected from the four basic categories—vegetables, meat and poultry, seafood, eggs and cheese—and winding up with dessert and coffee. For this kind of big deal, it is essential that hot foods stay really hot, so be sure you have facilities for last-minute cooking or reheating, warming trays and chafing dishes.

Vegetables, Nuts

Guacamole Fritters

4 eggs
1 tablespoon Escoffier Sauce Robert
6 tablespoons milk
1 medium-sized onion, peeled and diced
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash chili powder
6 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup (packed) avocado pulp
1 medium-large potato, peeled and cubed
Vegetable shortening
¾ cup sour cream
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
Salt to taste
2 tablespoons finely minced green pepper

Put the eggs, Escoffier Sauce Robert, milk, onion, salt and chili powder in an electric blender and whirl at high speed. Add the flour, baking powder and avocado pulp and whirl again until smooth. With the motor running, gradually add the potato and whirl until it is puréed.

Heat a large, heavy frying pan, melt 3 tablespoons vegetable shortening in it and spoon the mixture into the pan by tablespoonfuls, making fritters about 1¼" to 1½" in diameter. Fry the fritters over a medium heat until the underside is golden and holes appear on the surface. Turn and fry the other side. Drain the fritters on brown paper. Repeat until the batter is used up, adding generous amounts of shortening as needed. (Preparation may be done in advance.) You should have about 4 dozen fritters.

Mix the sour cream, Tabasco and salt to taste. Fold in the pepper and pour into a small sauceboat.

At serving time, reheat the fritters in the pan, using only a moderate amount of shortening. Drain on brown paper and serve immediately, with a generous dab of the sour cream on top of each fritter.

Potatoes Czarina

8 medium-sized baking potatoes (about 3 pounds)
1 pint heavy sour cream
½ pound large-grain black caviar
2–3 scallions, thinly sliced into rings

Scrub the potatoes and bake them in a preheated 400° oven for 50 minutes, or until soft. Halve the potatoes lengthwise and scoop out the pulp. Mash the pulp, add the sour cream and beat until light and fluffy. Spoon into a pastry bag fitted with a star-shaped tube and fill the potato shells with the mixture. Shortly before serving time, reheat the potatoes in a preheated 400° oven for 10 minutes. Top each potato with a spoonful of caviar. Scatter scallion rings over the caviar and serve immediately.

Stuffed Mushrooms Chesapeake

24 large mushrooms
¼ pound butter
1 cup water
1 teaspoon lemon juice
⅓ cup minced shallots
16 oysters, drained of their liquor
3 tablespoons dry seasoned bread crumbs
8 drops Tabasco

Remove mushroom stems, dice them finely and reserve. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a large skillet over medium heat. Add the mushroom caps, water and lemon juice and cook for 5 minutes. Drain mushroom caps and set aside. Melt the remaining butter in the same skillet, over a medium heat. Add the diced mushroom stems and shallots and sauté until the shallots are golden. Add the oysters and continue to cook until the edges of the oysters curl. Remove from the heat. Chop oysters with the mushroom stems and shallots and add the bread crumbs and Tabasco. Mound this mixture in the mushroom caps and place on a greased baking sheet or shallow ovenproof dish. Chill until serving time. Bake in a 400° oven for 5 to 7 minutes, or until piping hot. Serve immediately.

Watercress Cheese Canapés

24 rounds white bread, 1½" in diameter
4 cups (loosely packed) watercress, trimmed of heavy stems
2 tablespoons butter
½ pound Port de Salut cheese, finely diced

Toast the bread on both sides and keep warm. Chop the cress. Melt the butter in a heavy saucepan. Add the cheese and heat, stirring constantly, until the cheese melts. Remove from the heat, stir in the cress, mound the cheese-cress mixture on the toast rounds and serve immediately.

Artichokes Cesare

2 large artichokes, trimmed
16 large oysters
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons cream

Boil the artichokes in acidulated water for 30 minutes, or until tender. While they are cooking, remove oysters from their shells, reserving the liquor. Poach the oysters in the liquor until the edges curl. Measure 3½ cups of the liquor (add water if necessary). Purée the oysters with the liquid in an electric blender, a portion at a time. Strain through a fine sieve, discarding pulp and reserving liquid.

Melt the butter in a saucepan over medium heat. Add the flour and stir until smooth. Gradually add the oyster liquid and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add the salt, remove from the heat, stir in the cream and keep hot.

Thoroughly drain the cooked artichokes. While they are hot, remove the leaves and cut out and discard the chokes. Cut the artichoke bottoms into triangular wedges and spear each with a toothpick. Arrange the leaves and wedges in a chafing dish. Put the hot sauce in a heatproof bowl, set in the center as a dip.

Chestnut Bouchons

1 pound chestnuts
2 tablespoons oil
2 egg yolks
¼ pound cooked ham, finely minced
¼ cup heavy cream
Butter
Salt and pepper to taste
2 egg whites, slightly beaten
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs

Cut a gash across the rounded side of each chestnut. Heat the oil in a heavy skillet, add the chestnuts and sauté until the gash splits open. Then roast the chestnuts in a preheated 350° oven for 8 minutes. While the nuts are still hot, peel off the shells and inner skins. Boil the nuts in water to cover for ½ hour, or until tender. Drain the nuts and mash them. Add the egg yolks, ham, cream, 2 tablespoons butter and salt and pepper to taste. Stir until the mixture is well blended and shape into about 30 small cylinders. Brush on all sides with egg white and coat with bread crumbs. Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a heavy skillet over medium heat. Sauté the bouchons until golden on all sides, adding more butter as necessary.

Eggplant Boereg

1 medium-sized eggplant
½ pound Wisconsin brick or German beer cheese
⅔ cup minced parsley (loosely packed)
3 eggs, lightly beaten
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash white pepper
4 tablespoons butter (approximately)

Cut off and discard the stem end and bottom slice of the eggplant and cut the eggplant in half lengthwise. Place 1 half on a board, skin side up. Starting from the bottom end, make a crosswise slice ⅛" thick, but not all the way through, then a second slice ⅛" thick all the way through. (Each double slice forms a little book.) Continue slicing until you have 24 double slices.

Grate the cheese coarsely, add the parsley, ⅔ of the beaten egg and the salt and pepper. Blend the mixture thoroughly, place a portion in the middle of each double slice of eggplant, and secure with a toothpick. Dip into the remaining beaten egg. Melt the butter in a heavy skillet over medium heat and sauté the eggplant about 6 minutes on each side, or until tender and golden. Add more butter if necessary. Discard the toothpicks and serve immediately.

Hearts of Artichoke Enrica

2 1-pound cans artichoke hearts
Rolled anchovies
½ cup fine dry seasoned bread crumbs
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 tablespoon minced chives
6 tablespoons olive oil

Drain the artichoke hearts, cut a thin slice off the base of each so it will stand upright in a shallow ovenproof dish. With your finger, make a depression in the center of each heart. Place 1 anchovy in each depression. Mix the bread crumbs, parsley, chives and 2 tablespoons oil. Place a portion of this mixture over each anchovy. Dribble the remaining oil on top and bake in a preheated 400° oven for 20 minutes. Serve immediately.

Meat, Poultry

Frankfurters Femina

2 medium-sized apples
24 cocktail frankfurters
1½ tablespoons catsup
1½ tablespoons mustard

Peel and core the apples and cut them into 24 equal slices. Make a deep incision in each frankfurter, long enough to accommodate a slice of apple. Mix the catsup and mustard and dip the apples in the mixture, coating them completely. Insert the apples into the frankfurters and secure them with toothpicks. Bake them on a greased baking sheet in a 400° oven for 15 minutes. Serve immediately.

Canapés Pauvre Homme

6 beef marrow bones, about 5" long
24 slices narrow French or Italian bread, cut ½" thick
6 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons catsup
⅓ cup minced shallot
½ cup dry white wine
2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs

Place the bones in a large saucepan with water to cover. Bring to a boil, reduce the heat and simmer gently for 20 minutes. Remove bones and let them cool for a few minutes. With a marrow scoop or a slender knife blade, remove the marrow from the bones. Spread the bread with half the butter and cover with the marrow. Spread the catsup over the marrow. Simmer the minced shallot in the wine for 5 minutes, drain and scatter over the catsup. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and dot with remaining butter. Place on an ungreased baking sheet. (Preparation up to this point may be done in advance. Refrigerate until shortly before serving time.) Place the canapés in a preheated 375° oven for 5 minutes, or until bubbling. Drain on absorbent paper and serve immediately.

Pane con Salsiccia (Sausage Bread)

1 package dry yeast
1 cup warm water
1½ teaspoons salt
2⅔ cups flour
2 tablespoons olive oil
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
1 medium-sized onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 ounces Greek black olives, pitted and sliced
¼ pound Italian sweet sausage
½ pound spinach
1 ounce prosciutto, sliced paper-thin

Dissolve the yeast in the water. Add salt and 2 cups of the flour. Beat until smooth. Place the remaining flour on a board, place the dough on top and knead until all the flour is absorbed and the dough smooth. Place in a greased bowl, brush the top with oil, cover and set in a warm place to rise until double in bulk.

While the dough is rising, make the filling. Cook the mushrooms in a heavy skillet over a high heat, stirring constantly, until they brown and start to render their juices. Reduce the heat to medium, add 1 tablespoon olive oil, the onion and garlic and sauté until the onion is golden. Add the olives and the sausage, removed from its casing, and cook, breaking up the meat with a fork until it loses its red color. Wash the spinach, remove and discard the heavy stems and cook the spinach in the water that clings to the leaves, just until they wilt. Press out as much moisture as possible, chop it coarsely, add to the meat mixture and cook 2 minutes.

Punch dough down, divide in thirds. On a lightly floured board, roll out each third to a rectangle ⅛" thick. Brush with the remaining oil and continue to roll until the rectangles measure about 13" by 15". Scatter the filling over the dough, leaving a 1" margin uncovered. Cut the prosciutto in thin strips and put on top of the filling. Fold each side margin of dough over the filling, then roll up as for a jelly roll and place seam side down on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a preheated 400° oven for 40 minutes, or until golden brown. Cut each roll into 12 slices and serve immediately.

Lancaster Miniatures

1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1 cup mashed banana pulp
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 tablespoon bourbon
Butter for frying
½ cup chutney
16 country sausages, fried according to package directions

In a mixing bowl, combine the flour, baking powder, salt and brown sugar. In a separate bowl, combine the banana pulp, eggs, milk, melted butter and bourbon. Beat with a whisk until smooth. Pour into the dry ingredients and just mix until combined, without trying to eliminate the lumps.

Heat a large frying pan or griddle over medium heat until a speck of butter sizzles on contact with it. Brush the pan or griddle lightly with butter, ladle the batter onto the pan by scant tablespoonfuls and bake until holes appear on the surface of the pancake and the edges start to dry out. Turn and bake the other side. Keep the cakes hot in a low oven or over a pot of simmering water until all the batter is used up.

Place ½ teaspoon chutney on each cake. Cut the sausages into thirds and place 1 piece on top of the chutney.

Makes about 4 dozen hors d'oeuvres.

Lebanese Chicken Pastry

¼ cup vegetable shortening
1 cup flour
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon vegetable oil (not olive oil)
1½ cups (packed) minced cooked chicken
2 tablespoons light raisins, chopped
2 tablespoons sesame seed paste or mayonnaise
1 tablespoon catsup
2 tablespoons Escoffier Sauce Robert
½ teaspoon cinnamon

With a pastry blender or 2 knives, cut the shortening into the flour until the mixture forms coarse crumbs. Add the water and oil and stir with a fork until the dough holds together. Roll out the dough on a lightly floured board, making a long strip about 5″ wide. For the filling, combine the remaining ingredients and spoon down the center of the pastry. Fold both sides of the pastry over the filling and place, seam side down, on a baking sheet. Bake in a preheated 425° oven for 15 minutes, or until pale golden. Cut into 20 to 24 slices and serve immediately.

Cocktail Heroes

1½ pounds Italian sweet or hot sausage
3 large green peppers
1 long, thin loaf Italian bread
½ pound Mozzarella cheese
¼ cup capers

Prick the sausage skin and place the sausage in a skillet. Sauté over low heat, turning occasionally, for 25 minutes. Prick the skin frequently to release the fat. Remove sausage and cut into 24 slices. Cut the peppers in half, discard the stem and seeds and cut each half in two lengthwise, then crosswise. Cook the peppers in the pan drippings over low heat, covered, for 10 minutes. Cut the bread in half lengthwise. Slice the cheese and arrange it on the bottom half of the bread. Sprinkle the capers over the cheese, cover with the peppers and sliced sausage. Replace the top half of the loaf and wrap in foil. (Preparation up to this point may be done in advance.) Twenty minutes before serving time, place the loaf in a preheated 400° oven and bake for 15 minutes, or until the cheese has melted. Open the foil, set the loaf on a long platter and cut into 24 slices. Serve immediately.

Chicken Livers Kwong Sang

1 pound chicken livers
½ cup Chinese oyster sauce (available in Oriental food shops)
¼ cup orange marmalade with finely shredded peel
½ teaspoon scraped fresh ginger root, or powdered ginger
Vegetable or peanut oil

To make slicing easier, put the livers in the freezer until they start to freeze, then cut into slices ¼″ thick with a serrated knife. For each piece of liver, cut 1 piece of waxed paper 5″ square, and lightly grease 1 side. Place a piece of paper in front of you, greased side up and with one point toward you. Coat 1 piece of liver on both sides with oyster sauce and place on the center of the paper. Top with a dab of marmalade that has been mixed with the ginger root or ginger. Fold the point of paper nearest you over the liver, then fold the 2 side points over that. Bring the top point down as far as possible toward you and tuck it under the folds of the side points to make a sealed envelope. Repeat with the remaining pieces of liver.

Heat oil to 370° for deep frying in an electric skillet or heavy saucepan. Place a few packages at a time in the oil with the folded side up. Fry about 1 minute on each side. Drain for a few seconds on absorbent paper and serve the little packages unopened.

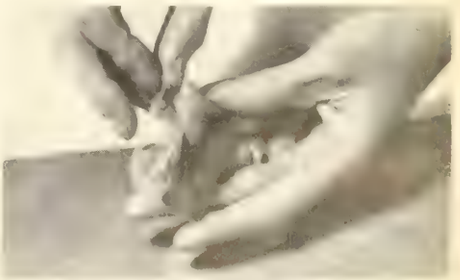
Almond-Crusted Chicken Croquettes

Butter
2 tablespoons flour
¾ cup milk
½ teaspoon Angostura bitters
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1 egg yolk
2 cups (packed) minced cooked chicken
Salt, pepper
1 egg white, slightly beaten
⅔ cup ground almonds

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a small saucepan over medium heat. Add the flour and stir until smooth. Gradually add the milk and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from the heat, stir in the bitters, mustard, egg yolk and chicken. Add salt and pepper to taste. Spread the mixture on a plate in a ¾″-thick layer and chill until firm enough to handle. Shape into 20 small round croquettes a scant ½″ thick. Brush each croquette on all sides with egg white, then coat with ground almonds. Allow the croquettes to dry out for 1 hour at room temperature. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a heavy skillet, over medium heat. Sauté the croquettes until golden on both sides, adding more butter as necessary.

How to make Chicken Livers Kwong Sang

Put liver on wax paper, top with marmalade.



Fold point of paper near you over liver.

Fold one side point over first point.

Fold second side point over first side.

Bring top point down as far as possible and tuck it under folds of sides, like envelope.

Drop envelopes in hot oil, folded side up.

Meat Balls Ocho Rios

Butter
1 large onion, minced
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup light rum
½ cup wheat germ
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 pounds lean beef, ground
2 teaspoons flour
2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
1½ cups chicken stock
4 small gherkins, thinly sliced

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a skillet over medium heat and sauté the onion until golden. Beat the eggs lightly, add seasonings, ½ cup rum, wheat germ, parsley, beef and sautéed onion. With your hands, blend the mixture until smooth. Moisten hands and shape mixture into 40 balls. Heat a large heavy skillet over high heat and add 2 tablespoons butter. When the butter is hot, add the meat balls. Brown them on all sides, shaking the pan frequently so that they keep their round shape. Add the remaining rum and flambé. Mix the flour, brown sugar and mustard. Add the stock and stir until smooth. Add to the meat balls, reduce the heat to medium and simmer for 5 minutes. Add the gherkins.

Chicken Livers Giovanni

1½ pounds chicken livers (about 24 livers)
¼ cup flour
½ cup olive oil
¼ cup French's mustard
¼ cup fine seasoned bread crumbs
3 tablespoons minced parsley

Pat the livers dry and coat them on all sides with flour. Heat the oil in a large heavy skillet over a high heat. Fry the livers, turning constantly, until they are brown and firm to the touch. Remove livers and set aside. Mix the mustard with the pan drippings and coat the livers on all sides with the mixture. Mix the bread crumbs and parsley and coat the livers lightly. Refrigerate until serving time. (Preparation up to this point may be done in advance.) When almost ready to serve, broil the livers about 4" from the heat about 2 minutes on each side, or until brown.

Seafood

Crab Meat and Bacon Brochettes

Lump crab meat
Slices of lean bacon, cut crosswise in thirds

For each crab lump, allow ⅓ slice bacon. Fold the bacon around the crab meat and thread on skewers, not too close together. Place the skewers on a broiler rack and broil 3" from the heat until the bacon is crisp. Transfer the contents of each skewer to individual hors d'oeuvre plates and serve at once. (These are fork, rather than finger, food. They can be served as appetizers or as a first course.)

Portable oven cooks hot hors d'oeuvre to order

See-through glass door and timer help the hostess keep tabs on fresh supplies of hot hors d'oeuvre. Miniature Bagels and Lox brown under broiler of electric table oven, are then popped piping hot onto individual lacquer trays for easy serving. For shopping information, please turn to page 248.

Miniature Bagels and Lox

12 miniature bagels, or 24 slices narrow French bread, ⅓" thick
½ pound cream cheese
3 tablespoons sour cream
¼ pound smoked salmon
3 tablespoons drained capers
Coarsely ground black pepper

Toast the bagels. If using bread, toast on one side only. Mix the cream cheese with the sour cream. Cut the salmon into thin slivers and fold it into the cheese mixture with the capers. Season with pepper to taste. Spread evenly on the toasted side of the bagels or bread. Broil 3" from the heat for 1 to 2 minutes, or until hot and lightly flecked with brown.

Baked Oysters Vera

30 large oysters
6 tablespoons butter
1 cup minced celery
3 tablespoons flour
¼ cup capers, drained and chopped
3 tablespoons cream
⅓ cup fine dry bread crumbs

Shuck the oysters, reserving the juice and 18 shells. Heat the oysters in their liquor just until they plump. Drain, and measure 1½ cups of liquor. (If necessary, add chicken consommé to make up the 1½ cups liquid.) Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a saucepan and sauté the celery over medium heat until tender but still crisp. Add the flour and stir until blended. Gradually add the reserved juice and cook, stirring constantly, until the sauce thickens. Remove from the heat, stir in the capers and cream. Chop the oysters coarsely, fold into the sauce and spoon into the reserved shells. Melt the remaining butter, mix with the bread crumbs and sprinkle over the filled shells. Refrigerate until shortly before serving time. Bake in a 450° oven for 10 minutes. Serve immediately.

Stuffed Mussels Giobbi

2 pounds mussels
1½ cups fine dry bread crumbs
½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup minced Italian parsley
2 cloves garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons olive oil
¼ teaspoon dried oregano

Scrub the mussels under cold running water. With a small sharp knife, pry open the shells and loosen the flesh. Perform this operation over a small bowl to collect all the juices. Discard one half of each shell. (If the mussels are very large, divide in two and place half on each half shell.) This is the preferred method, but if you find it too difficult to open the mussels, steam them open by cooking them in a large covered soup kettle over high heat for about 6 minutes, or until the shells open.

Place the mussels on the half shell in a single layer in a large shallow baking dish. Mix the remaining ingredients, and cover each mussel with a portion of the mixture. Sprinkle with the reserved mussel juice. Bake in a preheated 400° oven for 5 minutes, or until the crumbs start to brown. Serve immediately.

Anchovy Toasts Parmesan

4 slices firm white bread, crusts removed 1½ tablespoons butter
12 anchovy filets
4 egg whites
½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Toast the bread and butter it on one side. Place the toast, buttered side up, on a baking sheet. Place 3 anchovy filets, evenly spaced, on each piece of toast. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry, fold in the cheese and spread evenly on the toast. Bake in a preheated 450° oven for 10 minutes, or until puffed and golden. Cut each piece of toast into 6 equal-sized canapés and serve immediately.

Kumquat Shrimp

24 very large raw shrimp
½ teaspoon freshly grated ginger root
4 teaspoons French's mustard
12 preserved kumquats
1 tablespoon minced preserved ginger

Peel and devein the shrimp and split them almost through down the back. Flatten and dry them. Mix the ginger root with the mustard and spread on the shrimp. Cut the kumquats in half lengthwise and pit them. Replace the pits with preserved ginger. Place a half kumquat, crosswise, on one end of each shrimp, roll up the other end to enclose the kumquat and secure with wooden picks. Arrange the shrimp on a rack in a shallow pan over slowly boiling water. Do not let the water touch the shrimp. Cover the pan and steam the shrimp for 8 to 10 minutes, or until they are pink and opaque.

Smoked Brook Trout Christiana

2 brook trout, about ¾ pound each, cleaned weight
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon French's mustard
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons minced Spanish onion
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 tablespoons catsup

Sprinkle the trout, inside and out, with salt and smoke in a Swedish smoker for about 18 minutes, or until the fish flakes easily. (If you do not have a smoker, purchase the trout already smoked. Wrap in foil and heat in a 350° oven for 20 minutes.) Mix the remaining ingredients and place in a small sauceboat. Serve the fish hot with the cold sauce alongside.

Deep-Fried Squid

Cleaned squid
Flour
Fat or oil for frying

Cut squid into strips 2½" long and ½" wide and dredge lightly in flour. Fill a deep fryer with melted fat or oil to a depth of 3" and heat to 360°. Fry the squid strips, a few at a time, until golden and crisp. Drain on absorbent paper, sprinkle lightly with salt and serve.

Shrimp and Scallops Vefour

24 medium-large raw shrimp
2 teaspoons Italian Seasoning
Tabasco
24 large sea scallops
¼ cup seasoned bread crumbs
¾ cup butter

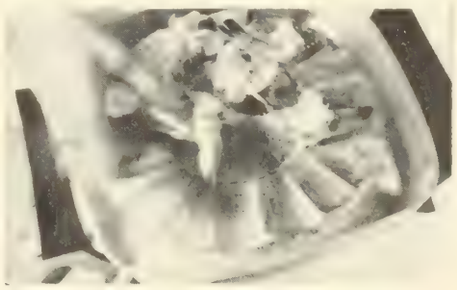
Shell and devein the shrimp and split almost through. Sprinkle the Italian Seasoning and 1 drop Tabasco on one side of each split; fold over the other side. Split the scallops almost through, crosswise, place a shrimp in the middle of each and press the scallop together to enclose the shrimp. Coat the seafood lightly with the bread crumbs and impale on toothpicks. Heat a heavy pan over high heat, add the butter and when it bubbles, add the seafood. Reduce the heat to medium and sauté the seafood until the flesh is opaque and the outside golden on all sides. Replace the toothpicks with fresh picks, and serve immediately.

How to make Kumquat Shrimp

Shell shrimp; leave tail. Cut down back; devein.



Spread out flat on board. Brush with seasoning.

Put kumquat in center, fold end of shrimp over.

Secure rolled shrimp and kumquat with toothpick.

Arrange on rack over water in electric skillet.

Cover and steam shrimp until pink and opaque.

Eggs, Cheese

Oeufs Vigneronne

1 bottle red Burgundy wine
1 large carrot, scraped and diced
4 shallots, peeled and minced
1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1 teaspoon whole peppercorns
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons butter
¼ pound mushrooms, thinly sliced
¼ pound Canadian bacon, diced
8 slices narrow French bread, ½" thick
8 eggs
4 teaspoons flour
8-ounce can snails, drained

Place wine, carrot, shallots, thyme leaves, peppercorns, sugar and salt in a saucepan and bring to a boil over high heat. Cook until reduced to ¾. Meanwhile, melt 1 tablespoon butter in a skillet and sauté the mushrooms and bacon for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Set aside and keep warm. Sauté bread in 4 tablespoons butter until golden on both sides.

When the wine is reduced, strain it into a large skillet and heat to the simmering point. Poach the eggs in the wine, remove with a slotted spoon and keep warm. Strain the wine into a saucepan and heat. Mix the flour with the remaining butter and add this beurre manié to the wine bit by bit and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add the mushrooms, bacon and snails to the sauce. Place a slice of sautéed bread on each plate, top with a poached egg and cover with sauce. Serves 8.

Hungarian Cheddar Triangles

6 slices firm white bread
¾ cup milk
3 eggs
5 ounces Cheddar cheese, grated
2 teaspoons catsup
2 teaspoons flour
1 teaspoon paprika
4 tablespoons butter

Soak the bread on both sides in the milk. Beat the eggs and add the cheese, catsup, flour and paprika. Mix well. Spread half the cheese mixture on one side of the soaked bread. Melt the butter in a large heavy skillet, over medium heat. Fry the bread, cheese side down, until golden brown. While it is frying, spread the remaining cheese mixture on top of each slice. Turn slices and continue frying until the second side is golden brown. Cut each slice into 4 triangles and serve at once.

Highland Eggs

6 hard-cooked eggs, shelled
¾ pound pork sausage meat
1 beaten egg mixed with 1 tablespoon water
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
Deep fat for frying

With moistened hands, enclose each egg in a portion of the sausage meat. Dip into the egg-water mixture and then into the crumbs. Make sure to coat the sausage meat completely. Deep fry at 370° for 5 to 6 minutes, or until brown on all sides. Drain on absorbent paper, then cut into quarters lengthwise and serve immediately.

Eggs Tivoli

4 thin slices pumpernickel
1 tablespoons sweet butter
⅓ pound smoked salmon, sliced paper-thin
6 eggs
4 teaspoons drained small capers
16 small sprigs of dill, stems removed

Spread the bread lightly with butter and cover with the salmon. Scramble eggs in the usual way and spoon evenly over the salmon. Cut each open sandwich into 4 squares. Place ¼ teaspoon capers on the center of each canapé, add a sprig of dill and serve immediately.

Swedish Eggs with Mustard Sauce

2 tablespoons butter
2½ tablespoons flour
1⅓ cups milk
4 teaspoons French's mustard
8 hard-cooked eggs
¼ cup finely diced drained herring in wine

Melt the butter in a small saucepan over a medium heat. Add the flour and stir until smooth. Gradually add the milk and cook, stirring constantly, until the sauce thickens. Remove from the heat and add the mustard.

Cut the eggs in half lengthwise. Mash the yolks, add ¼ cup of the mustard sauce and the diced herring. Mound the mixture in the egg whites and place in an ovenproof dish that can come to the table. Spoon the remaining sauce over the eggs and bake in a preheated 450° oven for 6 minutes, or until hot.

Filled Individual Gougères

9 tablespoons butter
1 cup water
1 cup flour
4 eggs
4 ounces Cheddar cheese
¼ pound bologna, finely diced
4 teaspoons Escoffier Sauce Robert
1 tablespoon fine dry bread crumbs

Cut 8 tablespoons butter into pieces and put in a saucepan with the water. Bring to a boil over medium heat. Add the flour all at once and stir vigorously until the mixture comes away from the sides of the pan and forms a ball. Turn into the small bowl of an electric mixer and add the eggs one at a time, beating thoroughly at high speed after the addition of each egg. After the last egg is worked into the paste, beat an additional 5 minutes.

Finely dice 3 ounces of the cheese and fold into the paste. Reserve ⅓ of the mixture. Spoon the remaining mixture into a pastry bag with a plain round opening (it is not necessary to use a tube) and force it out onto a greased baking sheet in 16 evenly spaced mounds. With a moistened finger, make a large hollow in the center of each mound. Brown the bologna in a skillet in the remaining butter and add the Escoffier Sauce Robert. Spoon a portion of this filling into each hollow and cover with the reserved paste. Smooth tops with a small moistened palette knife.

Coarsely grate the remaining 1 ounce cheese. Sprinkle the grated cheese and bread crumbs over the mounds. (Preparation up to this point may be done in advance. Store the unbaked puffs in the refrigerator.) Bake in a preheated 375° oven for ½ hour and serve immediately.

Eggs Vert Galant

12 eggs
12 baked individual vol-au-vent or pastry shells
¾ cup butter
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons water
8 drops Tabasco
4 egg yolks
Dash salt
¼ pound pâté de foie gras or fine liver sausage
1 medium-sized truffle, cut into 12 slices

Poach the eggs and keep them warm in a pan of hot water. Heat the vol-au-vent or pastry shells in a preheated 400° oven for 5 minutes.

Melt the butter with the lemon juice and water in a saucepan over low heat. Remove from the heat and let stand for 1 minute. Add the Tabasco and egg yolks and beat with a whisk until blended. Return to the heat and cook, beating constantly with the whisk, for a few seconds, or until the sauce thickens. Remove sauce from the heat and add salt.

Place the vol-au-vent or pastry shells on individual plates. Put a portion of the pâté de foie gras or liver sausage in the bottom of each pastry shell and cover with a slice of truffle. Drain the eggs thoroughly, place in the pastry shells and cover with the sauce.

Curried Cheese Whirls

6 large slices firm white bread
5 ounces Münster cheese
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 teaspoon A-1 sauce
2 drops Tabasco
½ cup minced ripe olives
⅓ cup softened butter

Trim the crusts of the bread and flatten each slice slightly with a rolling pin. Mash the cheese, add curry powder, A-1 sauce and Tabasco and mash again. Add the olives. Spread the mixture on the slices of bread. Roll up as for tiny jelly rolls and cut each roll into 8 equal slices. Spread the top of each slice with butter and refrigerate on a baking sheet until serving time. Bake in a 450° oven for 6 minutes, until bubbling. Makes 4 dozen hors d'oeuvres.

Münster Cheese Batter Pudding

1 egg
¾ cup flour
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne pepper
¼ pound Münster cheese

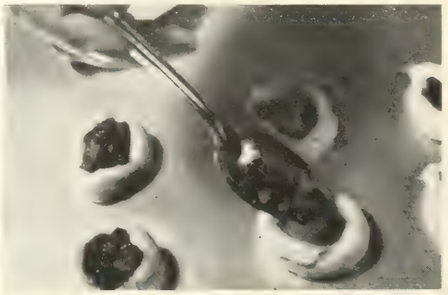
Beat the egg lightly in a bowl with a whisk. Add the flour and half the milk and beat until smooth. Stir in the remaining milk, the salt and cayenne pepper. Let the batter stand for 1 hour. Coarsely grate the cheese and stir half of it into the batter. Grease an 8" Pyrex pie plate, pour the batter into it and bake in a preheated 425° oven for 30 minutes, or until puffed and brown. Scatter the remaining cheese on top and bake just until the cheese is melted. Cut into 24 narrow wedges and serve.

Dijon Cheese Puffs

½ pound Switzerland Swiss cheese
⅓ teaspoon salt
Dash white pepper
1½ teaspoons Dijon white wine mustard
4 egg whites
Cornflake crumbs
Fat for deep frying

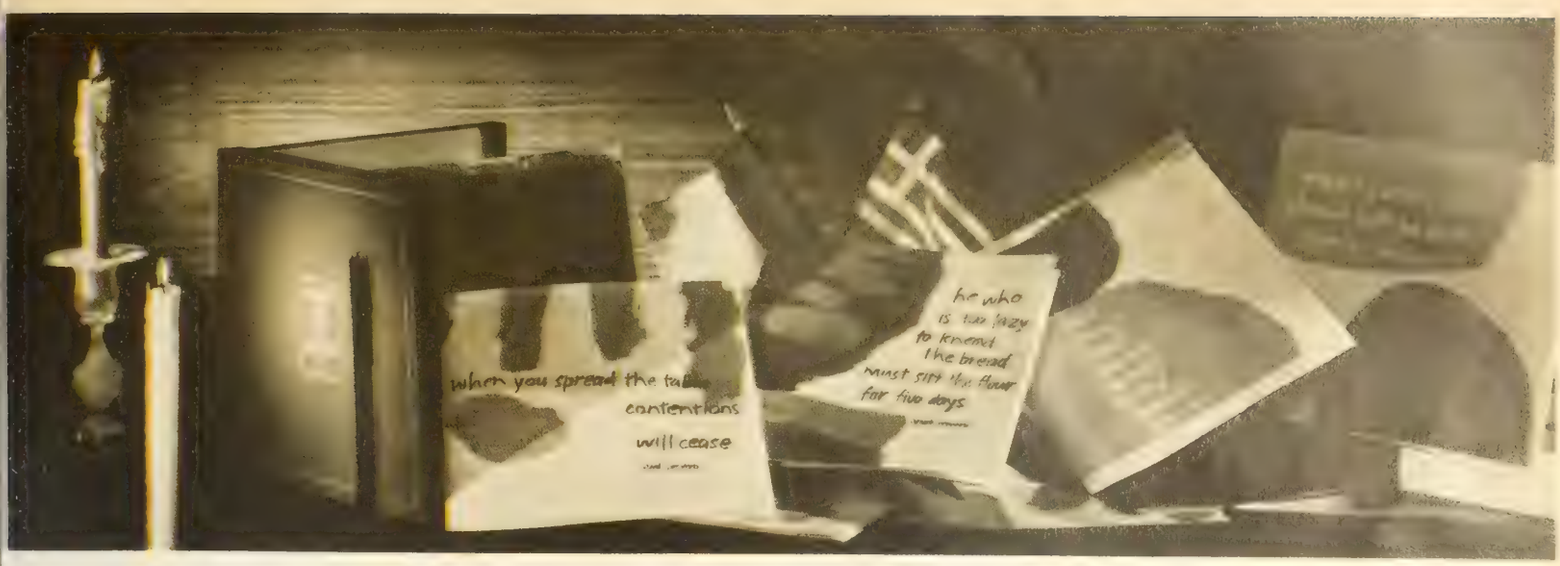
Grate the cheese coarsely and mix with the salt, pepper and mustard. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold into the cheese mixture. Put a small mound of cornflake crumbs on a plate. Drop a rounded teaspoonful of the cheese mixture onto the crumbs, sprinkle some of the crumbs on top and very gently roll the cheese in the crumbs until it is coated on all sides. With your hands, very lightly roll into a ball. Repeat until the cheese is used up, adding more cornflake crumbs as necessary. Let the balls dry out at room temperature for 15 minutes.

Heat fat in kettle to 350° and deep fry the balls, a few at a time, until golden brown and crisp. Drain for a few seconds on absorbent paper and serve immediately. (Or you may fry the puffs in advance and reheat them on a baking sheet covered with brown paper in a 450° oven for 5 minutes.) Makes about 30 puffs.



How to make Filled Individual Gougères

With pastry bag, pipe paste onto baking sheet.



Make hollow in each mound with a wet finger.

Carefully spoon bologna filling into each hollow.

Pipe paste over top. Sprinkle with cheese, crumbs.

AN EXCITING, NEW ENTERTAINING AND COOKING PORTFOLIO

- COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS FOR STARTING A FOOD & WINE CLUB AMONG YOUR OWN FRIENDS.
- 27 AUTHENTIC MENUS FOR BRILLIANT DINNERS (3 EACH FROM FRANCE, ITALY, GERMANY, SPAIN, SWEDEN, INDIA, JAPAN, GREECE AND ISRAEL)
- OVER 200 THOROUGHLY TESTED RECIPES
- APPROPRIATE WINES AND LIQUEURS FOR EVERY MEAL
- SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANNING AND STAGING YOUR PARTIES
- DINING CUSTOMS AND FOOD LORE FROM EACH COUNTRY

More than a handbook of organization, INTERNATIONAL DINING WITH SPICE ISLANDS is a fine cookbook and a distinguished introduction to gourmet dining in many lands.

10 individual volumes, designed by Sister Mary Corita and boxed in a single attractive folio, all for just $4.00.

VOLUME 1.

Covers the various ways you and your friends can form an informal club of your own to enjoy the best of international dining together.

VOLUME 2. FRANCE.

The romance of the French kitchen in dinner menus that feature regional favorites from each of 3 different provinces: Normandy, Burgundy and Lyonnais. Authentic recipes, thoroughly tested and adapted for the American home.

VOLUME 3. ITALY.

The savory diversity of the Italian kitchen demonstrated in menus and recipes from the north, south and central regions of the country. Each of the 3 menus avoid cliches and open a wonderfully exciting new world of dining experience.

VOLUME 4. GERMANY.

A sense-stirring exploration of the German kitchen as it really is — inviting, varied and full with a promise of fine dining. Includes one menu for a Christmas or New Year's dinner you would enjoy in Berlin.

VOLUME 5. INDIA.

This volume proves that the Indian kitchen is pillaus, biriani, kebabs, vindaloos, and boorthas, as well as curries. Each of the 3 different menus (from Madras, Bengal and the Punjab) affords many exquisite new dining experiences. All of the recipes use easily obtainable ingredients.

VOLUME 6. GREECE.

True to a tradition born in the pre-Christian era (the word "epicure" is a legacy from the philosopher Epicurus), the contemporary Greek kitchen, has wonderful ways with food. Many of them are included here in menus from Messina, the Ionian Island of Zakinthos and Thessalonia.

VOLUME 7. ISRAEL.

Being a remarkably young country, Israel has no single cuisine of its own. Rather, it has a number of uniquely different kitchens. Three of these — Sephardic, European and Sabra — are typified with dinner menus included here.

VOLUME 8. SWEDEN.

Three tantalizing glimpses into Swedish home kitchens when "occasion" meals are the order of the day. Menus and recipes for a Christmas Eve smorgasbord, a "company" dinner and national holiday feast in honor of the crayfish.

VOLUME 9. JAPAN.

In addition to Sukiyaki, Tempura and rice, innumerable unusual delicacies enhance the three typical menus included here. Happily, too, the ingredients used in recipes are readily available.

VOLUME 10. SPAIN.

Every pre-conceived notion you may have harbored about Spanish food being "hot" or the "same as Mexican" will dissolve deliciously as you savor your way through the dinners planned in this volume. 3 menus — one each from Catalonia, Andalusia and Valencia.

There's never been a book of food quite like INTERNATIONAL DINING WITH SPICE ISLANDS. Each of the ten individual volumes is, literally, a work of art. For each boasts a reproduction of an original serigraph by Sister Mary Corita, IHM. A distinguished Professor of Art at the Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles, Sister Mary Corita's work hangs in major museums throughout the nation and around the world.

Order your copy (or copies) now with this coupon. The book will not be available in bookstores. The price is $4.00 complete, with 7-day money-back guarantee, of course.

Quick Gourmet Recipe of the Month

Deep-Fried Fish Strips

1 pound lemon sole or flounder filets
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon dry sherry
½ cup flour
¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
½ cup water
1 teaspoon baking powder
Vegetable or peanut oil

Cut the fish into pieces about 1" by 1½". Sprinkle with the sugar, half the salt and the sherry and let stand for ½ hour. In a small bowl, combine the flour, monosodium glutamate and the remaining salt. Add the water and stir until the batter is smooth.

Shortly before serving time, add the baking powder to the batter. Fill an electric deep fryer or heavy saucepan with oil to a depth of 2½" and heat to 370°. Dip the fish, a few pieces at a time, in the batter and deep fry for 3 minutes, or until golden. Drain on absorbent paper and serve immediately. Makes about 20 to 24 fish strips.

rocketing. There is a limited amount of great Burgundy, great Bordeaux and great German wine, and the vintners naturally sell to the highest bidders. For everyday drinking, it would be sheer folly to buy these wines, although there are occasions on which you will undoubtedly feel the cost is justified. There are, however, ways to get good wine at a reasonable price, if you are willing to expend a little time and effort.

1. Study and get to know wines. Many lesser chateau bottlings and little-known vineyards produce amazingly good wine in a great wine year, but the price will be well below that of the famous "names."

2. Be aware that often when a year is listed as only a fair vintage, there are exceptions. Weather varies even within a small district, and a vineyard here or there may actually turn out a very good product although the general result is not up to par. Since the price of all wines of an area is affected by the vintage reports, such exceptions are usually bargains. If you have a good wine merchant, trust his information. If he suggests a little-known wine of good vintage or a well-known wine of a generally poor vintage, he is probably offering you a good buy.

3. Try the delicious table wines from Switzerland, Spain and Portugal available on the American market. Because these wines are comparatively unknown, they are often quite low in price and many are well worth more. You may find them an interesting change. Naturally, they go exceptionally well with their native cuisines, so if you plan to serve such delectable dishes as a Portuguese fish stew, a Spanish paella or a Swiss fondue, use the wine of the country.

4. Buy outstanding wines of our own country. For the best, choose those with varietal names on the labels. Do you recall how pleasant it was to sip a light carafe wine at luncheon in a small Paris bistro or at a country inn in France? These are simple local wines, yet they are refreshing and just right for an informal occasion. You can offer your guests the American version of this French treat if you buy a supply of our own wines in large gallon containers. These are offered by varietal producers in California and by a few New York State vintners. They are extremely inexpensive, yet are most satisfying for everyday drinking and for simple buffet parties and other casual entertaining. Serve them from decanters, of course. The Mountain reds and whites of California are especially good.

In the end, your best guide to wise buying will always be a reputable, knowledgeable dealer. Select your liquor merchant with care and talk your needs over with him. It is his business to give you good advice.

Stock up for cooking

Consider cooking, as well as drinking, when you stock up for the season. Sherry, port and Madeira are a boon in the kitchen. Hams and tongues cooked with sherry or Madeira have a rich flavor, port goes into some main dishes and is delicious with prunes. All add an additional fillip to the sauce department.

These fortified wines vary greatly in price and quality. Try some of the domestic sherries and ports for kitchen use. They are less dear than the imported.

Liqueurs, too, are a great asset in cooking. The less expensive varieties are fine in sauces, for crêpes, soufflés or fruit bowls, but for sipping straight, have a selection of the "greats."

First of a series in which House & Garden examines and evaluates cooking techniques in the light of current developments in food and equipment.

Roasting

Instant foods and made-up mixes (the culinary equivalents of the jet plane and the prefab house) plus a host of invisible and insidious devices have affected the nation's cooking habits—but you would scarcely know it from most recipes. If you have been puzzled to find that a chicken or a roast cooks in less time than stated in your trusty cook book, be reassured. These cooking quirks are not signs that you are slipping as a cook—just natural results of the undercover advances that have affected cooking techniques over the past few years. Animals and poultry are carefully fed and thoughtfully led to slaughter in ways that keep them tender, make them quick-cooking. A new tenderized beef on the market contains an enzyme that is injected into the live animal and activated by cooking heat, thus making it possible to roast cuts and grades of beef that formerly had to be pot-roasted.

Cooking equipment manufacturers have introduced other types of cooking speed-up by building into their ovens improvements that reduce cooking time. The electronic oven signaled the start of this trend, and now there are high-speed infra-red burners that cook quicker by producing greater, more concentrated heat.

Although the roasting charts printed in the majority of cook books and the pamphlets supplied by equipment manufacturers and meat suppliers look comprehensive and foolproof at first glance, few of them take the foregoing factors into account. A closer examination reveals that not only do they vary considerably in suggested oven temperatures, but they also allow considerable leeway in the minutes-per-pound estimate for cooking time. When you reflect that this kind of timing varies according to the grade, cut, size and shape of the roast, the amount of bone and the proportions of lean and fat, you can see that calculating minutes per pound is one of the most haphazard and inexact ways to roast meat (although it works fairly well with poultry, where the nature of the beast remains constant and the weight is the only variant). The only absolutely accurate guide is the meat thermometer that registers the internal temperature of the meat. With its aid you can work out, to your own satisfaction, a satisfactory internal temperature based on the degree to which you like your meat cooked, and stick with it. If you use the thermometer, the same equipment and the same oven temperature every time, you will never be confronted with an over- or underdone roast. It is also a wise idea, especially if your range is not so new, to have the oven checked periodically by a professional to see if the temperature agrees with the reading on the thermostat, for the clip-on oven thermometers sold in hardware stores cannot be relied on.

Equipment you will need for roasting

Forget about the traditional deep, covered roaster, a bulky and limited piece of equipment that steams rather than roasts. Roasting is a dry-heat process, and the greater the surface of meat exposed to direct heat, the better it cooks. Choose a large shallow pan and an adjustable V-shaped rack that will elevate the roast from the bottom of the pan and let heat circulate around and under it. Or you may use an ordinary broiler pan and a flat rack of the type used for cooling cakes. Have on hand a baster with a concertina-like bulb (not necessary for meat if you use the low-temperature, self-basting method, but handy for poultry or for drawing fat from the top of pan juices), a good-sized pair of metal tongs for manipulating meat, a pair of long-handled wooden spoons to turn chickens without piercing the skin and, for lean meats, a sturdy larding needle. Finally, a good meat thermometer. Try to get the kind that is marked to register really low temperatures (from 0° if possible, otherwise from 60°) rather than the type that starts at 140°. Although standard meat charts list 140° for rare beef, 120° is nearer the mark, especially for very rare filet, and you must always remember that the internal temperature of the meat will continue to rise, by as much as 10 degrees, after it is taken from the oven. It is also a good idea to check the internal temperature of the meat before roasting—roasting procedures call for the meat to be at room temperature, 70°, but meat taken straight from the refrigerator will be at 40° and will take some little time to reach 70°, especially if the roast is a large one.

Preparing roasts for the oven

Always let meat and poultry stand outside the refrigerator for at least an hour, preferably two, to enable them to come to room temperature. Frozen roasts or poultry taste better if thawed, although you can cook them from the frozen state if you wish, increasing the cooking time, starting the roasting at a low temperature and then stepping up the heat and inserting the meat thermometer when the inside is thoroughly thawed.

Wipe the roast with a damp cloth and dry well. Season the meat or not, as you wish. Some people prefer to season halfway through roasting, claiming that the salt draws out the juices, but this is purely a matter of opinion. If you want to flavor the roast with garlic, make tiny incisions in the meat and insert garlic slivers with the point of a knife. Place the roast fat side up on the rack in the roasting pan. Lean meats such as veal and lamb may need a covering of bacon, salt pork or suet to make them self-basting and prevent the meat from drying out. This is also advisable for birds such as chicken, turkey, squab, etc. Meats with a goodly proportion of marbling (interior fat) need no such protection. Although animal fat is shunned today because of its supposed calorie and cholesterol potential, and animals are bred to provide leaner meat, with less waste from trimming, you will find that fat keeps meat juicier, more tender, better tasting.

You can put the meat thermometer in the roast either at the beginning of roasting or when the meat has cooked a little, as you wish. Using the steel shaft of the thermometer as a measure, find the center of the meat and then insert the thermometer so that the tip is in the center of the thickest part, not touching bone, fat or gristle. If the roast is thin, insert the thermometer on a slant. For poultry, the thermometer should be inserted in the thickest part of the thigh or, if the bird is stuffed, into the center of the stuffing. If your range is equipped with a meat thermometer and cable that plugs into an oven outlet, with a separate temperature dial, set the dial knob to the required internal temperature, again remembering that it should be 10 degrees lower to allow for a temperature rise after the meat is taken from the oven.

Methods of roasting

Once it was thought that initial high-temperature searing sealed the juices in the meat, but this theory has been abandoned. The recommended method is a constant low-temperature roasting at 325°, with the temperature raised to 450° or 500° for the last 5 or 10 minutes if you want a browner exterior. Another method, recommended for very large roasts, is long, slow cooking at 200° which gives a minimum loss of juices and shrinkage. Check with the meat thermometer, and when the roast registers 10 degrees under the temperature you want, remove it from the oven, transfer it to a carving board or heated platter and let it stand for from 15 to 30 minutes. This not only finishes the cooking, but also makes carving easier as the collagen or connective tissues, softened by cooking, have time to set and the juices to settle.

When you use a standard meat thermometer, make allowance for the fact that the dial markings err on the side of overcooking and do not take into account the rise in internal temperature when the roast stands. Nowadays, many people prefer their meat underrather than overcooked, and what would have been considered medium a few years back would now be called well done by most connoisseurs of rare roast beef or pink lamb. If you like your lamb pink, it should be removed from the oven while the needle is hovering between 140° and 145°; the dial marking for lamb, 185°, means the meat will be really well done.

Small roasts of tender meat which should be served very rare, such as a beef filet or rack of lamb, benefit from quick roasting at a high temperature. The filet should be barded, larded or smothered with butter and will take no more than 25 to 30 minutes to roast. The rack of lamb will be beautifully crisp on the outside. Roll it in a mixture of crumbs and chopped parsley before serving. Chicken will look and taste better if roasted at 400° rather than a lower temperature. It needs plenty of bacon or barding pork and should be roasted 25 minutes on one side, 25 minutes on the other, then turned breast up and basted well. With any poultry, but especially the smaller birds, one of the best tests for doneness is to move the leg up and down. If it wiggles easily, it is cooked to a turn. The following chart gives realistic roasting temperatures which you can adjust to suit your own taste.

Meat	Oven temperature	Thermometer marking (on removal from oven)
Beef, filet	500°	120°
Beef, rare	325°	120° (very rare) to 130°
Beef, medium	325°	140°
Beef, well	325°	150°
Lamb, rack of, rare	425°	120°
Lamb, rare	325°	140°
Lamb, medium rare	325°	145° to 150°
Lamb, medium	325°	150° to 160°
Lamb, well	325°	160° to 175°
Veal	325°	160° to 165°
Fresh pork or ham	325°	175° (temperature must be over 155° to kill trichinae which may lurk in underdone pork)
Chicken	350° to 400°	180° (in thigh)

Your space, your menus, your pet housekeeping techniques are the yardstick for measuring

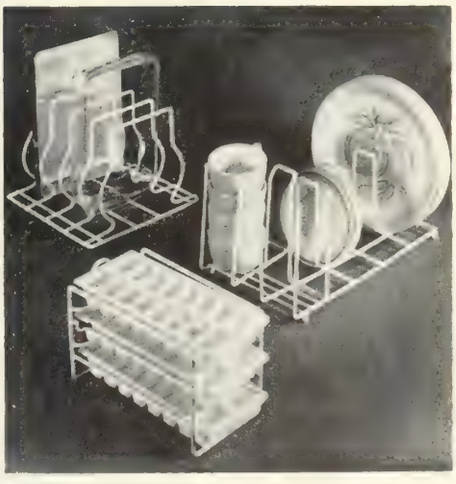
Best buys for your kitchen

Nothing could be more basic or more personal than the things you select to aid you in running your household, in preparing food for your family, in keeping your home shipshape. Again, need is the criterion, and need is very subjectively determined. A basic best buy in kitchen equipment for a busy suburban housewife with four little children might be quite different from that of a young wife with a job and a small city apartment. Or—if they were soul mates—both women, despite the differences in their ways of living, might consider the very same thing quite basic. In a word, if it works for you, it's a good buy.

If your family loves your home-baked bread and rolls, a good buy might be a mixer with a dough hook that kneads dough in about three minutes. KitchenAid, a 4½ quart electric mixer, has fourteen different attachments, including a wire loop whip and a combination flat-beater-pastry knife. $124.50 by Hobart Manufacturing Company.

The active host or hostess whose limited storage space precludes a bowl for every purpose would prize a bowl-of-all-purposes—especially one with the rich, go-with-everything look of tortoise. Made of Thermalene Plexiglas, it can elegantly serve salads, frothy desserts, or would be a knockout overflowing with bright autumn flowers. In five sizes up to 21-inch diameter; the 16-inch, $11 at Hammacher Schlemmer.

Unless you happen to be a collector of knives, you'll be delighted to find one knife that slices almost anything—electrically. New slicing knife zips through meat, bread, vegetables or cheese with ease and precision. For safety, it operates only when finger pressure is applied to switch. $27.95. General Electric.



If scouring pots is the bane of your busy existence, your best buy might be aluminum cookware lined with easy-to-clean stainless steel. Clean-lined Duranel cookware ranges from 5-quart covered Dutch oven, $14.95, to 10-inch square griddle, $9.95. By Wear-Ever.

People who like English muffins or thickly sliced bread at last have a toaster made with oversized wells designed to hold these very things. Switch can be set for one to four slices at a time. In polished chrome with side panels of white porcelain and gold, under $28. Westinghouse.

If you must make fullest use of every inch of cupboard space in your kitchen, these white vinyl-coated wire racks will help you do it. Pan 'N Tray organizer stores unwieldy things like muffin tins, baking pans, pot lids and such, $2.98; china caddy can hold eight place settings (forty pieces in all), $3.98. Caddies that stack three or four ice cube trays, $1.98 and $2.98. Artwire.

GRIGSBY

For a tightly organized household, here's a compact three-way wonder that dispatches several different chores in a flash. A combination electric can opener, knife and pencil sharpener, it comes in white plastic with charcoal and brushed chrome. $22.95. Swing-A-Way.

How does a bed frame become famous?

In 1946, Harvard had an idea: replace bulky wooden bedsteads and creaky slats with metal frames.

It worked just fine. Moved easily. Supported spring and mattress better. And saved people money.

The modern Hollywood bed trend started. Others copied. But Harvard developed new bed frame ideas.

Like Protecto-Caps (those little white things on the ends of the side rails) that protect linens.

Like caster sockets that operate oilessly, noiselessly.

Like railroad track steel that makes Harvard Bed Frames indestructible.

The copiers gave up long ago.

That's why no other frames have these features.

That's why you shouldn't settle for less.

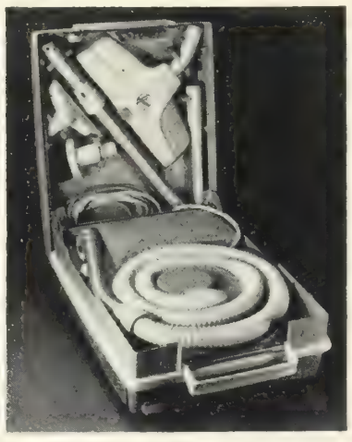
The winesman who must be content with a corner of a closet instead of a cellar can still do himself proud with a supply of stacking bottle holders. Add-A-Combs actually slide-lock together to form a secure pile that can fit a space of any shape. Each holder available in colored plastic $1 or anodized aluminum, $1.50. From Hammacher Schlemmer.



Aficionados of steaks and chops could scarcely find a better buy than an electronic broiler-rotisserie that cooks without flame or smoke. Quartz element cooks with radiant energy as charcoal does, producing a delicious charred surface. Electronic Quartzbroil, $79.95. Electronic Quartz.

The hostess who loves informal entertaining has a rare buy in porcelain-coated aluminum cook-and-serve ware. Colors—flame, orange, yellow, lime, mustard and avocado—are virtually indestructible, and the lightweight ware can go straight from freezer to oven or rangetop to table. The 3-quart covered casserole about $12; the two-tone 9-inch bowl, about $5. From Deslin.

Geneva, at the tip of Seneca Lake, was my stopover that night. Next morning I set out to find "Rose Hill," considered one of the finest Greek Revival houses in America. Unfortunately the house is so sadly in need of paint, I was slow to recognize it. Yet its site is magnificent: a broad knoll with an unobstructed view down to the east shore of the lake and across to Geneva. And the grand scale and beautiful proportions of the house make you wonder why so many people link white-pillared elegance exclusively with the ante-bellum South. I was especially delighted by the three different sizes of Ionic columns, all of the same design and proportions: two-story columns across the front porch, one-story columns across the porches of the side wings, and "miniature" columns flanking the front door.

From Rose Hill I drove back to Geneva's South Main Street overlooking the west shore of the lake, and enjoyed a driver's-seat survey of the beautifully preserved lake-view houses that range in style from post-Colonial and Greek Revival to bracketed Victorian Gothic. Then I followed Castle Street to its dead end to see Geneva's only octagon house, surely one of the prettiest of the eccentric breed that was prompted by the publication in 1849 of "A Home for All" by the phrenologist, Orson S. Fowler. Built of white brick, the Castle Street house sits on a high basement—almost a full story—and its two upper stories are completely girdled by a charming black iron porch. On top of the house is perched an octagonal cupola. I was told that a central mahogany stairway winds in a continuous spiral all the way from cupola to basement.

About ten miles outside of Geneva on the road to Canandaigua (Route 20 again) I stopped to visit Mr. Bill's antique shop, a roomy barn crammed with old glass, tin and china, including some Bennington ware and ironstone. I couldn't resist a leaf-shape English ironstone plate about 8 inches long for $6.50. The furniture on display was not remarkably old but the prices seemed reasonable: pine chests, refinished, for around $150; an American Empire pedestal card table for $45; a small Victorian side chair with a tufted horsehair-covered seat for $15. Almost directly across the road was another antique shop —Pontius—which, like Bill's, had been recommended by a knowledgeable friend in Geneva.

After lunching at Canandaigua Lake I pressed on to Rochester and made straight for the Campbell-Whittlesey House in the city's old Third Ward. An imposing red-brick building with white trim, it has a two-story pillared porch that directly faces the Inner Loop expressway. But there is no door from the porch—the main entrance is on the side. The house is furnished very much as it must have been in its heyday—the prosperous early days of the Erie Canal. Two aspects of the interiors not to be missed are the architectural embellishments and the paint colors.

No one knows whether the whole house was designed by the famous Greek Revival architect, Minard Lafever, or whether the interior details were copied from one of his widely circulated books. But the hall and parlors are richly embellished with his characteristic moldings, rosettes, anthemia and delicate tendril-like designs in plaster relief. There is even a leafy plaster scroll climbing the outside of the stairway that sweeps upward in a beautiful curve to the second floor.

The colors are the result of an impressive piece of research by the Society for the Preservation of Landmarks in Western New York who restored the house and make their headquarters there. By a long slow process of scraping and analyzing the many coats of paints and glazes, they have managed not only to detect the original colors, but to duplicate them in all their subtle variations. The twin parlors alone contain twelve different tones. In the center of each ceiling is a large recessed square painted light blue and outlined by an egg-and-dart molding finished in imitation bronze, then a wide border of deeper blue. The walls are a warm gray accented with lilac panels beneath the windows and flanking the doorways. And seven other tones shade the ceiling frieze, the moldings and the raised decorations—a method of bringing out architectural detail called "shadow painting."

The curator was disappointed that I couldn't wait to hear him play the musical glasses in the mahogany cabinet under the stairs ("brought all the way from New England and not one glass broken!"). But time had run out. Unhappily I realized there would be no time to revisit the Eastman birthplace—the story-and-a-half Greek Revival cottage that was uprooted from its site in Waterville, N. Y., and transported to Rochester where it sits demurely in the garden of the Eastman house on East Avenue. (The cottage is the only one I know of which has been authentically restored and furnished.) There would be no time to revisit the Rochester Memorial Art Gallery, no time for Buffalo. I had spent three days traveling from Albany to Rochester—a trip which an Albany taxi driver had assured me could easily be done in five or six hours.

Embarrassment of riches

Sometime I would like the luxury of covering the same ground in two weeks. Perhaps I might start in Buffalo and take the Cherry Valley route east. But if I were a family driving east next year for the World's Fair (and not a shunpiker), I might be tempted by the northern route and plan to turn off the Thruway for a look at the Jackson & Perkins rose gardens in Newark, the Robineau porcelain collection at the Everson Museum of Art in Syracuse, the Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute's new art museum and Fountain Elms restoration in Utica, Johnson Hall in Johnstown and Guy Park in Amsterdam. Or I might swing south from Buffalo to Jamestown and follow Route 17 east, making detours to the famous school of ceramics at Alfred and the wineries at Hammondsport, then stopping to visit the glass museum at Corning.

Whichever of these three routes the World's Fair visitor might decide on, he would be faced with a problem when he reached Albany. Should he continue down the west side of the Hudson and visit the restored Senate House in Kingston, the Hasbrouck House in New Paltz, West Point, the Museum Village and Sterling Forest Gardens? Or should he cross to the east side and take in the Roosevelt home at Hyde Park, the Innesfree Garden at Millbrook, the newly restored Boscobel, Van Cortlandt Manor and Washington Irving's "Sunnyside"?

The Eastman birthplace, transplanted to Rochester, is typical of hundreds of Greek Revival cottages in small upstate villages.

That was one decision I did not have to make. Since I was due in the office at 9:00 the next morning, there was no alternative for me but to drive straight to the Rochester airport and catch the next plane for LaGuardia.

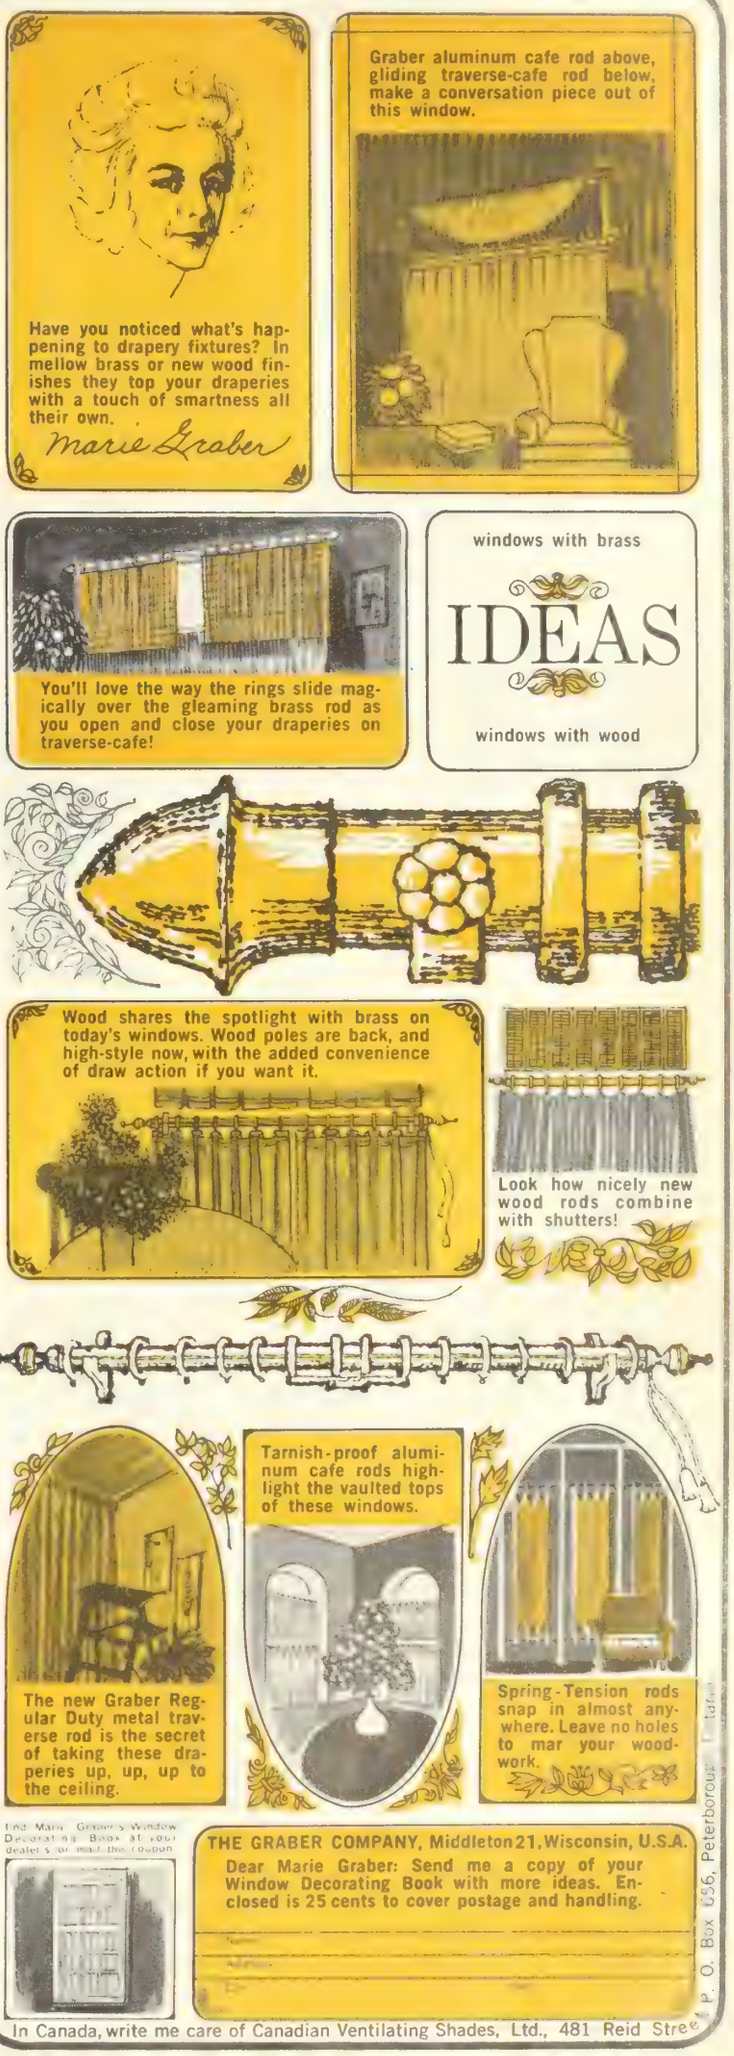
How to decorate a wall without breaking the bank. How to buy efficient lamps . . . keep clothes in the living room without anyone's guessing . . . furnish a room without a fireplace

The basic best embellishing buy for this long wall is multipartite: two simple gilt-framed mirrors and a group of inexpensive prints of works by six very expensive artists: Aristide Maillot, Georges Braque, Leonardo Da Vinci, John Curry, Käthe Kollwitz, Bernard Buffet. Syroco Ornamental mirrors.

Buying a lamp to see by—as well as to look at without displeasure—requires sharp appraisal. This one, designed especially for close work, has a 25-inch brass shaft that telescopes to 37½ inches. Thus, a low concentrated light can be had when needed, and when not, a higher, general illumination. The base is green marble and the pale linen shade conceals a diffuser (no glare from the bulbs). Lamp by Lightolier. Interior design by Patricia Harvey.

Another version of the same lamp extends itself from 4 feet, 2 inches, to 7 feet: a thoughtful span for a succession of readers who may be only 4 feet tall or over 6. A good partner for the desk lamp, above, this floor-stander also has a base of green marble, a shaft of brass and a linen shade which, in accordance with the lamp's greater height, is 16 inches in diameter. Lamp by Lightolier. Interior design by Patricia Harvey.

GR GSBY



Lack of closet space—ever a bugbear—may be handsomely remedied by a fruitwood armoire that can stand with aplomb just about anywhere: living room, dining room, bedroom, foyer. Behind the paneled doors is a bank of six drawers, hanging space for a good swack of garment bags and a shelf—44 by 72 inches—for your hatboxes. By Union-National Furniture.

TOM LEONARD

A living room without a fireplace inevitably cries out for an important piece of furniture—massive enough, good-looking enough to give the room architectural interest and to be as much a focus for a seating arrangement as a hearth. Here, in a mahogany combination of desk and breakfront, is a fine stand-in for a mantel. Its painted, moss-green interior, moreover, is a flattering background for an incurable collector's rare china, precious bibelots. By American of Martinsville.

Remodeler's Notebook

Double-duty building materials

Remodeling, or any kind of building for that matter, used to be like putting a jigsaw puzzle together. The various building parts slowly fitted to one another until the final structure was complete—a process that was time-consuming and tedious. Happily for the remodeler, building product manufacturers are beginning to reduce this painstaking piecing and joining by making available large-sized, prefinished and preconstructed elements for walls, ceilings and floors. Here are several examples of these new materials—all handsome additions to any house.

Like large-scaled tinker toys, these painted steel bar joists and vinyl-coated corrugated roof panels are bolted together to make both the ceiling and roof for a workshop addition to a house. The new wall is made up of ½-inch thick bricks composed of plastic and masonry granules; you merely nail them to a wood frame. Because of the wall's light weight, no heavy foundation is necessary.

The dramatic sawtooth ceiling of a remodeled room for a boy is made of smooth steel panels precovered in a textured vinyl coating. No joists are needed; instead a steel "I" beam running across the window wall holds up the ceiling. Sliding glass doors are framed in metal with an enamel finish which needs no painting. The vinyl floor requires only a few hours to install over plywood.

NOWE I WARD

In a newly remodeled dressing room and bath, the walls, ceilings and built-in cabinets are covered with a colored, plastic-coated hardboard. Available in 4-by-8-foot sheets, the material is smooth to cut and will not warp when exposed to steam and humidity. The plastic coating is dent-resistant and cleans with soap and water. Matching quarter-round moldings are installed with a mastic to hide joints and nail holes.

The same plastic-coated hardboard used in dressing room, top of page, also comes grained to resemble walnut. It is especially useful and practical in a country-style kitchen (real wood absorbs fumes and cooking odors). The floor is of 1-foot square precast vinyl sections imbedded with circles of white to imitate a mosaic pebble pattern.

Happier Birthdays

Thrilling birthdays or just plain Mondays, the child who grows in a home-with-music acquires poise and self-confidence. Parties become times for happy self-expression, when "getting to know you" is as easy as music. In the luxuriously crafted Hazelton Contemporary console, your children will find a piano of such design magnificence and tonal brilliance that it will become a favorite childhood association. Consolettes available from $715, representing one of those rare instances in the American economy when a quality product sells for less.

Open house for birds

How to build a see-through bird-feeding station from an old fish tank

If there is anything a wintering-over bird appreciates on a freezing day, it's a good handout in a sheltered place. The home owner who likes birds and enjoys the mobile color and music they bring to his garden year-round wants to attract and encourage them. Naturally, the best time to befriend them is in winter when they need it most. Birds know where they're welcome; word gets around among them. All you have to do is provide, sit back and let nature take its course.

The most successful winter hospitality center for birds H&G has seen was devised from an empty, standard-type fish tank. The glass at the two ends has been replaced by removable wooden sides held in place by the frame of the tank. A sheltering roof is screwed to the wooden sides and the whole thing can be lifted out when the slate floor needs sweeping. Any wood you like can be used for the roof and the sides of your feeding station. Natural redwood is attractive, or you can paint it or even shingle it.

To make the roof, cut two boards the proper size and fasten them together with brass screws. Cut the end pieces to fit your old tank, make two holes for doors and two little holes to fit the perches. Fasten the end pieces to the roof with brass screws. Remove the glass from the ends of your tank and slide the end pieces into the tank frame. Slip dowel sticks into the small holes for perches. You can put a hole in the roof to facilitate putting food into the feeder if you want.

Once a year you should have your home inspected for termites

This tiny wood-eating insect can do costly hidden damage to your home

You may have termites and not even know it!

From underground nests, countless termites enter your home to eat on understructure, carpeting and woodwork. Brick and concrete do not stop their hidden attack.

Why risk this needless expense when you can find out for certain whether you have termites. Look in your phone book under Bruce-Terminix or Terminix and phone your local company for a skilled inspection and reliable recommendations.

$5000 Guaranteed Protection—Old homes, new homes and ones under construction are being safeguarded against termite damage up to $5000. A special low-cost plan protects homes now free of termites.

HAEGER—THE GREAT NAME IN AMERICAN CERAMICS

How to cultivate birds in your garden

By Jean Hersey

In winter we are a lifeline to our wild birds

A bevy of wild birds in your garden can be as decorative and esthetically satisfying as your prettiest flowers—and they bloom, so to speak, year-round. They can be the crowning touch to a garden in summer, and bring color and life to a gray and slumbering winter landscape. They give so much for so little—involve you in no cultivating, no pruning, no staking, no spraying. When the last chrysanthemums have withered and the last marigolds blackened with frost, when the Johnny-jump-ups have succumbed to low temperature, it is wonderful to have your garden come to life in a new way, when the birds take over. The music of wild birds is pure joy the year around, beginning with the first spring trillings of the tree sparrow, followed by the "cheerily cheer up" of the robin worm-hunting on an early morning lawn, then the rolling melody of the summer thrush at twilight, and on to the midwinter chirping of the chickadee.

But if you would have wild birds with you permanently, you must offer them a little hospitality. In fact, in a blizzardy winter in our part of the world—Connecticut—we are literally a lifeline to these lovely creatures. On a cold morning when the snow is piled deep, a flock of juncos lights on the walk where my husband has just shoveled. As they eye the front door and wait, I realize how vital we are to them. They certainly need us, and in return for a little food and shelter, they provide such beauty, such lively interest and company.

How to invite birds

The chances are almost everyone has some birds about, but there are specific ways of encouraging many more to settle on your acres, or move into your backyard. Here are five:

1. Plant shrubs and flowers that especially attract birds. A white or purple mulberry draws birds by the dozens. So do alder, holly, heather, mountain ash, privet, cotoneaster, pine and fir. Dandelion seed fluffs may be ominous on a lawn, but they, along with thistles, growing at the wilderness edges of your land, bring the goldfinches. To the physostegia, columbine and lilies growing outside my windows comes a ruby-throated hummingbird each summer morning.

2. Put up a number of birdhouses. Wren and bluebird houses bring these charming varieties closer. If in April or May you hang bunches of leftover soft knitting wool on bushes, some birds will appreciatively weave the strands into their nests.

3. Leave a thicket somewhere on your place through the winter. It can be an area of underbrush or a pile of old branches. This provides protection from wind and storms for sparrows and the smaller birds.

4. Have fresh water available all year. In summer the sparkle of trickling water draws the attention of many birds. In winter most loose water around turns into ice. So, especially during freezing weather when there is no snow on the ground, keep a shallow pan filled. A few drops of glycerin in it are harmless and help prevent it from freezing. An old pocket mirror under the surface reflects the warming sun, and also holds off the frost.

5. Feed any and all comers. This is unquestionably the best method of attracting birds. Whether or not you feed in summer is optional, but to feed in winter is not only a great source of delight but is vital to the well-being of the birds in your vicinity. You can buy many types of ready-made feeders; also, they are not difficult to construct. You can make a sheltered one out of a goldfish tank [see page 249]. We made some out of harrow disks we bought in a country junk yard for 25 cents each—just covered the center hole with fine screen and put them on cedar posts.

It is said that more species are wintering north than formerly because they are fed. Twenty years ago it was rare to find a cardinal north of the New York City suburbs. Now these dramatic birds are prevalent during all seasons in Connecticut and further north throughout New England.

We usually feed the birds year-round. (This gives them the impression they have friends they can count on.) We have three feeders visible from indoors, three more a few feet from the front door where we pass many times a day. We bought a bell for our cat—and another for the neighbor's cat. It is terribly important that a feeder be safe. Birds feel most secure if there are trees or bushes nearby for a rapid retreat.

What to feed birds

Birds like an amazing assortment of food. Suet heads the list and is a cold-weather must. (But no suet, please, after March when birds start nesting—suet is improper for newly-hatched babies, and can make them sick.) A number of excellent wild bird food mixtures are on the market. Perhaps the favorite seed in them is the sunflower—at least, these disappear first. Other welcome foods are bread crumbs, leftover pieces of buttered toast, pie crust, peanut butter. Birds think stale doughnuts, even if hard as rocks, are a delicacy. Birds are also partial to raisins; cut up some in the spring and the lady catbird will carry them to her young in the nest. Meat scraps, and the fat you pour off a roast, are also appreciated. When there is snow on the ground, scatter a little coarse sand in the feeders. Like chickens, birds need grit to help digest.

Incidentally, a bird dines on his weight in insects every summer day—insects that might otherwise harm your plants. One hundred tent caterpillars make a meal for a cuckoo, gypsy moths and caterpillars are the diet of tanagers and Japanese beetles are considered a treat by starlings. There is something rather special you can do to lure insect-eating birds which ordinarily seldom come near the feeders: Put some meal worms on the feeders. Meal worms are the larvae of the Tenebrio molitor beetle; you buy them from a pet shop. If kept in a cake tin with shredded-up newspapers and bran and given an occasional moistening, they thrive and multiply. Put only a few at a time in the feeder in winter lest they freeze. Orioles, thrashers, bluebirds, catbirds will come close for this gourmet fare. This same group of birds is also tempted by slices of orange, and strangely enough, by overripe fruit—bananas, grapefruit and the like. A mixture of chopped beef heart, canned dog food, yellow corn meal and suet may keep your garden decorated with bluebirds all winter long. If you would like to do the red-winged blackbirds a favor as well as have a closer look, put out some leftover boiled potatoes when the birds appear in March. (Continued on page 261)

How to stretch a double bed

You can easily convert a double headboard to take a queen-size mattress

Most double bed headboards are almost 60 inches wide, yet since they are designed to take a standard double bed mattress and box spring—only 54 inches wide by 74 inches long—there are 3 inches of extra width to make use of on each side of the bed. Today, several companies make do-it-yourself kits that enable you to enlarge a regular double bed—without changing the headboard—to accommodate a queen-size mattress and box spring, which are 60 by 80 inches. One of the kits, made by Spring Air, consists of an adjustable metal frame, above, that is attached to the headboard with special adapter brackets and replaces a double bed's side rails, slats and footboard. Other kits by Sealy and Simmons are slightly different and consist of special steel side rails that stretch a bed and let you keep both the headboard and footboard. Prices for the kits vary from $10 to $20.

The first step in converting a standard double bed to a queen-size is to check on the headboard width to be sure the headboard has a 3-inch margin on each side of the mattress. If it has, remove the old mattress and box spring and disassemble the bed. The wooden side rails, slats and footboard come apart easily from the headboard. In their place you substitute either a completely new metal frame, or you keep the footboard and add the bed-stretching side rails.

Back to Baroque
Grand Damask by Callaway

If you're so bored with modern solid colors and angular shapes that you could scream—don't. Go back to Baroque with Grand Damask—a great towel by Callaway. Enjoy the slow movement of a curved line, the relaxed richness of the ornate design. Grand Damask is a luxury to use, too. In 15 magnificent colors, at The J.L. Hudson Co., Detroit, and at other fine stores. Callaway Mills, Inc., La Grange, Georgia.

How to buy sheets and blankets for the new outsize mattresses

Bed and bedding manufacturers have not yet co-ordinated their sizes and names for outsize mattresses and bed linens, so there are some slight variations. But to help you get the closest proper size sheet, blanket or bedspread for your big bed, H&G has made a chart of the four basic sizes of today's outsize mattresses and teamed up each with the linens that would be the correct size.

Mattress size	60" x 80" (called "queen")	72" x 84" (called "king")	78" x 80"	78" x 84"
Sheet (fitted)	60" x 80"	72" x 84"	78" x 80"	78" x 84"
Sheet (flat)	90" x 120"	108" x 122"	108" x 122"	108" x 122"
Blanket	108" x 90"	108" x 90"	108" x 90"	108" x 90"
Blanket (electric)	80" x 84"	103" x 90"	103" x 90"	103" x 90"
Bedspread	105" x 120"	120" x 120"	120" x 120"	120" x 120"

Note: Sizes may vary slightly with different manufacturers.

printed in white on white in a lacy, frostlike pattern quite in keeping with their orange-blossom euphoria. A smaller, blue note paper with a baroque frieze embossed in white across the top of the sheet would be a good bearer of weekend invitations, and to remind guest of imminent weekends, white post cards edged in the color of your choice do a quick job of citing train departures, arrivals and where to get off (quite proper, too, for acquaintances, congressmen and shops). Get-well notes written on a pale pink paper with an entire garden growing out of its envelope's lining would certainly cheer a jaundiced eye, and a small white folded note paper with its top flap studded with roses painted in the Chagall manner offers a gay, unengraved way to announce something new: a fiancé, a new house, a new baby.

For the Younger Set

Don't forget the children. The least literary of them will be entranced (or should be) with a coloring kit in which circus figures—lions, tigers, clowns—can be traced onto long sheets of paper, colored and then captioned with the news of the moment. The kit includes instructions, a ruled guide to keep the writer from writing uphill and a directive on how to address an envelope properly—advice that knows no age limit.

for a natural "driftwood gray"

Home in Portland, Oregon. Architect: Van Evera Bailey, Oswego, Oregon. Exterior siding and woodwork stained with Cabot's #241 Bleaching Oil.

Cabot's BLEACHING OIL

When applied to untreated wood surfaces, Cabot's Bleaching Oil imparts a delicate gray tone which, in the span of a very few months, weathers to a beautiful natural driftwood gray . . . . a color effect ordinarily found only in seacoast areas after years of exposure to salt air. This remarkable product, while actually bleaching raw wood, preserves it by protecting against mildew, insects, and decay. Cabot's Bleaching Oil, easy to apply and economical, will not crack, peel or blister . . . is an ideal finish for all exterior wood surfaces where the driftwood look is desired.

No kidding! Some folks don't like shiny furniture. So Johnson's Cream Polish cleans and enriches without shining. Perfect for teak, oiled walnut, all low-luster finishes. Won't leave a smeary, dust-catching film or powdery residue. Regular use does away with periodic re-oiling. Cleans and enriches sealed finishes, too. A few drops on a dust cloth help remove fingerprints, smudges, keep dust from scattering. Try new Cream Polish.

Ready-made kitchens

that fit in anywhere

If you're building a vacation house, a second kitchen is surely a necessity, and it can add equally to the ease and livability of, say, the family room at home. But instead of trying to fit a stove, sink and refrigerator separately into very small quarters, you can buy a whole kitchen in one compact, ready-made unit such as Dwyer's Series 69 (right). Housed trimly together are a three-burner electric range with oven and broiler below; a sink with under-counter cabinet; and a 7-cubic-foot refrigerator. Overhead cupboards and splashback are optional; you can have electric or gas models, storage cupboard instead of oven, or other design variations to suit your particular needs.

A compact snack center (left and above) for almost any room where food would be part of the fun—teen-agers' den, studio, pool house or vacation cabin—is Dwyer's Series 400. Finished in blond or mahogany color and measuring just 48 inches long and 42 inches high, it looks, when closed, like a piece of furniture. Top lifts up to uncover two-burner range and sink; below are a 4-cubic-foot refrigerator and a storage cupboard. For shopping information, turn to page 248.

Winter Dryness can be DANGEROUS to your family's health!

Protect their health with a Skuttle drumatic HUMIDIFIER

Winter dryness in your home is one of the frequent causes of colds, sinus conditions and bronchial trouble. Now, you can eliminate winter dryness by installing Skuttle's new DRUMATIC humidifier in your furnace. Set the Honeywell humidistat for the desired degree of humidity and relax in a healthier, more comfortable atmosphere.

Besides being dangerous to your family's health, dry air causes static electricity in your home; the joints of furniture dry out and crack, and carpeting and drapes become brittle and wear more rapidly. Your fuel bill is higher because dry air requires a higher temperature setting for comfort. The unique operating principle of the DRUMATIC humidifier affords quiet, trouble-free, positive humidification with the highest output at the lowest operating cost . . . LESS THAN ½c PER DAY! Your furnace dealer will be glad to demonstrate the DRUMATIC humidifier; call or see him today! Skuttle manufactures DRUMATIC humidifiers for every size home with capacities up to seven gallons per hour.

How birds will dress up your garden

They say no two flowers are identical, no two leaves, no two stalks of corn. Certainly no two birds are absolutely alike. If you study the chickadees carefully, you notice slight differences in their marking as well as in their character. One is a shade larger, one a trifle stockier. One is aggressive, and one yields the feeder more readily. In the course of a winter you become able to distinguish between them. Chickadees tame easily. A friend of ours has one that daily lights on his hand for a sunflower-seed lunch.

We have several cardinals that live with us summer and winter. There is no sight more stirring than a cardinal on the January snow. There is no sound more stirring than the music of these spectacular birds in the treetops on a sunny February morning. They are among the first to tell us to cheer up, spring is coming.

In winter our regular visitors—chickadees, Juncos, white-throated sparrows and goldfinches—appear dressed up in their winter garb of olive drab. What a pleasure to watch these latter gradually turn gold as spring nears. On special occasions purple finches come, and sometimes we have a flock of evening grosbeaks, like a flutter of gold leaves, fly quickly in and quickly out. On the suet stick there are always, in turn, one chickadee, an upside-down nuthatch, a hairy woodpecker with a dot of red on his head. Usually a bluejay is struggling to be like the hummingbird and hover in mid-air to reach the suet. We attained a peak of excitement one March morning when we had gathered in one feeder at one time: a purple finch, a truly gold goldfinch, a cardinal, and then, to cap the climax, an indigo bunting suddenly arrived—and as quickly departed. Another winter morning we awoke to discover, 20 feet from the house, a half-a-dozen huge ruffed grouse feeding in the limbs of a wild cherry tree. Such handsome creatures with feathers ruffled at the neck and patterned at the tail!

Another dramatic visitor to our feeders is the scarlet tanager. He bathes in our brook in August, right beside a sweep of poppies. Who can say which, in a beam of filtered sunlight, is brightest?

These Wood Sliding Glass Doors put any room in a "new light." Removable glass dividers, in diamond or regular style, create interesting patterns and shadow effects. Then, paint or stain the wood frames to match any interior-exterior color scheme. Wood frames of PELLA Doors eliminate winter condensation, too. And, PELLA Doors are extremely weathertight. Screens close automatically. Write for pictures of them in actual homes. Available in Canada.

Easy to use and maintain MINWAX Wood Finish... brings lasting beauty to wood

Floors never need rescraping
When you put the finish in the wood—not just on it—your floors will last a lifetime. Minwax goes deep into the wood—leaves no brittle surface to scratch or mar. Choose smart dark or natural tones.

Beautifies and protects wood paneling
Simply apply Minwax Wood Finish to well-sanded surface. Then add a light touch of Minwax Finishing Wax. The result is a rich, hand-rubbed look. Both authentic colonial and modern tones are available.

Antiques and unfinished furniture
Minwax Wood Finish brings a rich, warm glow to both old and new furniture. Before applying Minwax to antiques, remove old finish and sand lightly. Choose unfinished pieces with uniform grain and sand satin-smooth. Apply Minwax Wood Finish in traditional or modern colors.

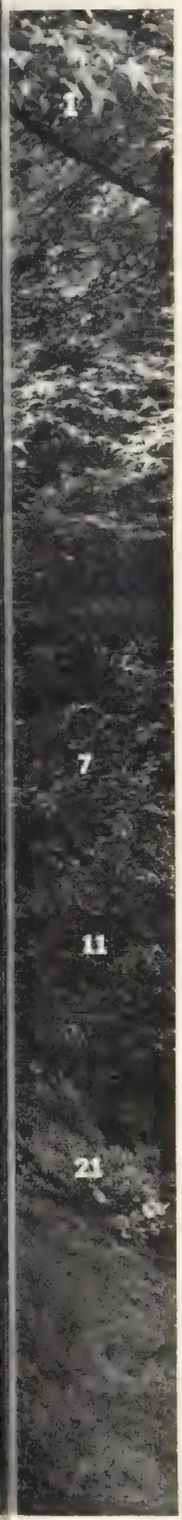
H&G'S GARDENER'S



Best-buy plants that adorn the all-season terrace in living green

MONTH

When does an old garden become new? What makes a good planting better? How basic are plants anyway?

Usually the planting of trees and shrubs follows after the basic landscape construction has been completed. Occasionally the order is reversed, as it was in the planning of our all-season terrace, page 210. Actually it was the plant arrangement—a simple crescent of flowering evergreens, of trees, of a few seasonal flowers and edging perennials—that suggested the location and shape, if not the ingredients, of the new terrace. There is nothing about this planting scheme that could not readily be duplicated in the North Atlantic States or, with but few changes, the Pacific Northwest. Many of the plants, barring some of the broadleaf evergreens, are adaptable to most temperate climate zones. All the trees and shrubs with one exception (glossy abelia) are native to this country and at home in their shade-dappled positions under tall sweet-gums. In this coastal region (Long Island, N. Y.), the only problem to beware of is the effect of late summer droughts. Plant food is supplied by leaves that fall on the shrubs from trees whose roots thrive beneath the well-fertilized grass and by seasonal supplements of cotton-seed meal in the border.

1 SWEET-GUM (Liquidambar styraciflua). Native in the southeastern states, naturalized from Mississippi to southern New England. Distinctive for handsome five-pointed leaves, adaptability to many soils, handsome form (up to 75 feet or more), fine yellow fall foliage, virtual freedom from pests and diseases.

2 FLOWERING DOGWOOD (Cornus florida). Familiar along all flanks and outfalls of the Appalachian chain with its lovely white bracts in May, many-tiered horizontal branching, brilliant red berries and leaves in autumn, silvery twigs and buds in winter. Endures shade and moist ground.

3 CANADA HEMLOCK (Tsuga canadensis). From Quebec to Georgia, one of the most beautiful and adaptable evergreen trees that can be grown in home landscapes. It thrives in full sun, and may be sheared to rigid hedge forms. Ideally, it dwells among other trees and shrubs in mixed plantings, where it will neither overwhelm nor be overwhelmed by any of them. In its habitat it is a true "climax" plant, reproducing itself indefinitely in a stable plant population.

4 FUCHSIAS. Seasonal accessories. These particular fuchsias are ordinary but lovely pink and white forms, bought at the florist's and placed, three to a group, in a wire basket lined with sheet moss (Gardener's Month, June, 1963). Hung from a screw hook in a sweet-gum branch, it will flower all summer, may be cut back and brought indoors.

5 ROSEBAY RHODODENDRON (R. maximum). The biggest and one of the hardiest of the native species, with leaves to 8 or 10 inches long and purplish rosy flower clusters in late June, sometimes into July. In fairly heavy shade, especially under trees, this species and many of its rangier hybrids belong in the background of the shrub border, where they may reach a height of 15 feet or more.

6 GORDONIA (G. altamaha, often listed as Franklinia altamaha, to name but one synonym). This is the "lost gordonia" once found in a Georgia swamp by John Bartram and never found in the wild state in two centuries since. It is an aristocrat among native small trees, with lovely saucerlike white flowers in late summer and early fall. The anthers are golden. The long, light green summer leaves become deep bronze as autumn approaches and flowering continues. The striated bark is steely gray.

7 SWEET PEPPERBUSH (Clethra alnifolia). A matchless shade shrub, making spreading clumps up to 8 feet high, and bearing terminal spires of white, strongly fragrant florets in July and August. (There are few nighttime garden scents sweeter than the clethra's.) It endures wet soil as well as dry. In autumn, the leaves turn clear yellow.

8 CATAWBA HYBRID RHODODENDRONS (derived from R. catawbiense). A mixed lot, mostly rosy lavender, and all run-of-the-garden seedlings selected and moved into this planting because of their pleasant blending colors. Not as large or as rangy as R. maximum, these are used for substantial mid-border effect.

9 RHODODENDRON MINUS. A southern Appalachian species that seldom exceeds 5 feet in height and width and has clusters of small rosy florets. The leaves are glossy, smaller than those of R. catawbiense, and the bushes are open and informal in growth habit. They bloom in mid-to-late June. Here is an appropriate setting for a too-little-known native.

10 PENDULOUS BEGONIAS may be of several types and species. These two plants are cream to yellow, probably as much B. lloydii as anything else. They last all summer, drooping luxuriantly as the season wanes. Long streamers of variegated Vinca major make an excellent accompaniment for foliage.

Your trees need a fall booster—now!

After the long, hot summer with its drought conditions and sudden storms, your trees need a thorough inspection – and a booster – to help offset the effects that insects and disease have on weakened trees.

Davey fall treatment will provide professional protection your trees should have. Trained, experienced experts can give your trees renewed vigor with a deep-root feeding of the new Davey Arbor Green Improved Tree Food, containing special humus-forming material. Trees and shrubs with summer die-back and dead branches, prime breeding places for insects and disease, should be pruned now. Weak limbs should be cabled and braced.

Davey men, using the most modern equipment and latest techniques, can provide everything your trees need – now – before wayward weather can further weaken them.

11 GLOSSY ABELIA (A. × grandiflora). The only alien in the lot, this lovely summer-flowering evergreen is a hybrid between two Chinese species. Its arching sprays of glossy green leaves, which may occasionally winter-kill badly in this northern region, add a unique grace to the solid broadleaf evergreens around it. The innumerable pinkish white bell-like florets twinkle along the stem from early July until autumn.

12 MOUNTAIN-ANDROMEDA (Pieris floribunda). Less common by far but in many ways more attractive than the familiar P. japonica, the lily-of-the-valley-like flower sprays stand erect in spring instead of arching down. The leaves are soft matte green all year, and the plants normally remain below 4 feet in height and width except in great age.

13 DROOPING LEUCOTHOE (L. catesbaei). A spreading, glossy evergreen with flat "fronds" of glossy evergreen leaves and panicles of white florets, similar to those of the pierises, in early spring. Although seldom exceeding 5 feet in height, plants may spread to 8 feet or more in diameter if they are given room.

14 MOUNTAIN-LAUREL (Kalmia latifolia). One of June's handsomest flowering evergreens, with great mounds of shell-like pink florets, fading to white after a few days. This native of sunny slopes and pastures will grow well, and may even bloom, on the north sides of buildings, and requires a little high tree shade to look and perform its best. It may reach 8 feet in height.

15 CAROLINA RHODODENDRON (R. carolinianum). The smallest and one of the most beautiful of the common native species. The flowers are variable in color, including some of the clearest rhododendron pinks as well as lovely creamy and blush variants. More compact than R. minus and a month earlier in flower, it is a fine companion for the fore-edge of the shrub border.

16 HOSTA (called also plantain-lily and funkia). This invaluable herbaceous plant group includes species ranging in clump height from 6 inches to 2 feet, and in flower-spike length from 8 inches to 4 feet, and in flower color from pinkish lavender through bluish white, and in fragrance from none at all to one of the most haunting odors in the garden. In this terrace bed, the visible species include H. plantaginea grandiflora, with sweet-scented late summer flowers, and the huge leaved H. glauca, with white June flowers, as well as several lesser variants. All grow in shade, multiply slowly but dependably, last all but forever.

17 PETUNIA 'Ballerina' with beautifully rippled, rosy salmon blooms make a special accent in the handsome lead urn. These large-flowered F_1 hybrids, like all recent petunias, continue their abundant flowering all summer.

18 FRINGED BLEEDING-HEART is an "everblooming" lace-leaved perennial that tolerates heavy shade, self-sows freely and is an unexcelled gap-filler for the edge of the shrub border.

19 BEDDING PLANTS: Begonias (strictly B. semperflorens) and achyranthes. The begonias on this terrace are mostly bronze-leaved kinds, with rosy single or double florets that succeed one another all summer long. They fill in and spread along the border edge as the season progresses, and may be cut back and potted for a winter life indoors. Achyranthes is a moundlike plant, not hardy in northern climates, with tiny bronze-green leaves and numerous but uninspiring flowers resembling the sugar dots on a chocolate drop. It is a fine and sturdy filler plant.

20 PETUNIAS in every shade and form are available as started seedlings at any florist's. 'Crusader' is but one of the radially striped rose and white ones. It fills its lead shell to overflowing.

21 NEPETA (N. mussinii 'Dropmore'). Kin of the catnip, it is one of the best blue perennials of the late spring border. Its flower sprays fade after June, but the feathery green mats spread and multiply. The plants sometimes become messy in the center, but a hard shearing in the late summer helps to rejuvenate them.

Notes for October Gardeners

The mainstream of the season ends, as it began, in a series of tributaries

First weekend

The kindest cut. You can accomplish two purposes at a single stroke if you prune your berry- and fruit-bearing plants now—provided, of course, that you prune them correctly. Too few gardeners seem aware of the decorative possibilities of berried branches in autumn rooms; too few realize that fruiting in future years may depend in large measure on a judicious thinning of bearing stems on the plant itself. This particular autumnal form of pruning is what you might call "gross" pruning, as compared with the trimming and thinning and heading back you practice in the spring. At that time, you are concerned with the kind of immediate new-season growth that your secateurs will promote. You are concerned with producing the proper number of fruit (blossom) spurs on which all fall berries and fruit depend—as well as the requisite proportion of foliage shoots on which the food-manufacturing leaves must depend. In the autumn (early or late), new soft shoots, vulnerable to frost killing, are not likely to be promoted, since the whole plant is in process of entering seasonal dormancy. But the cutting you do in the fall will affect the whole structure of the shrub or tree, and therefore will affect all later performance.

What we have just said indicates that you should cut even the most obviously surplus berried branches only after you have thought carefully about what may be the result in terms of next year's total growth. There is no space here for a more detailed discussion of fall pruning (which is what cutting branches for your hall console really is). Our immediate concern is the often unrealized opportunity you now have for enhancing your room decoration and for observing how your fruiting plants have behaved during this past season and seasons before that.

Book note. The Garden Club of Orange and Dutchess Counties, New York, has recently published the "Botanic Manuscript of Jane Colden," with a prefatory note by Elizabeth C. Hall, librarian of the N. Y. Botanical Garden. Jane Colden, the first woman botanist of Colonial America, lived only twenty-two years, but she did what can only be characterized as an enormous amount of useful work in the study and understanding of native plants. This book, which is substantially a volume of facsimiles of the original manuscripts and drawings, is primarily a labor of love, but it is of considerable historical interest as well. It is available from the Club at $10.

Second weekend

Basic best pot soil. Each year about this time we suggest the one best means of preparing a winter's supply of potting mixture for your house plants. And each year our one best method changes (there are still several "best" ways we haven't suggested yet). This one, which is in many ways the most satisfactory of all, in addition to being the handiest, makes a special point of weighing about a third as much as the all-earth mixtures. The basic ingredients are sand (heavy as ever), leafmold (fertile as ever

How to succeed in gardening without really trying*

*Plant Dutch Bulbs!

Borrow that armful of "how to" garden books if you must. But you won't have to read them. Buy those expensive garden tools if you have the urge. But you really won't need them. Because the secret of how to succeed in gardening lies in bulbs that bring forth lovely blossoms in their season. And with minimum effort. Here's how. Dig a little hole. Drop in a daffodil, tulip, hyacinth or crocus bulb, right side up. Cover it. Water it. Walk away. That—and three little words—are all you need. The words? Plant Dutch bulbs. It's your guarantee of a world of beauty at your doorstep, come Spring. Be sure the bulbs say "Imported from Holland." For a free copy of "Garden Glory," a full-color, 16-page magazine of helpful information, send 10¢ for mailing costs to: Netherlands Flower-bulb Institute, Inc., 29 Broadway, New York 6, New York, Dept. 9.

Imported Holland Bulbs

and also comparatively light) and perlite (which is mere fluff until combined with the body and fibrous material supplied by the other substances). Perlite, of course, is not only light in weight, with enormous air- and water-holding capacities, but stable and virtually sterile as well. As good a basic recipe as any for average pot use consists of equal parts of each—by volume, of course, and not by weight. Get yourself a few large polyethylene freezer bags (about turkey size) and prepare enough material for a winter's window-sill gardening with little work and at almost no muscle cost.

More and more commercial plant growers are turning to growing media based on synthetic or lightweight ingredients. In fact, many nurserymen are content to fill their containers with either sand and peat mixtures or sand and leafmold combinations. With supplementary feeding such "loamless" materials require, plant vigor can be phenomenal. And if this means real money in the bank to the commercial men, while producing a healthier and bigger plant more quickly, then the amateur should take the hint, at least for exploratory purposes.

While lightweight potting mixtures may be no less bulky than old-fashioned earth potting soils, they are easier and cleaner to store and much more convenient to handle. But don't forget: They will all demand more care in fertilizing.

Third weekend

Winter protection. Garden plants vary in a number of ways in their need for cold-weather protection. Some plants need out-and-out shielding from sudden changes in temperature (camellias, for example). Some plants require protection from winter sun rather than cold winds (many holly species). Some plants need the protection of special locations whose microclimates are in fact milder all winter than the general run of plant sites in the immediate area (Skimmia, to name but one). Other plants need protection primarily for what might be best termed cosmetic reasons—in other words, to keep them from disfigurement during cold weather. Of the latter group, conspicuous examples include many yews, boxwoods (to keep the foliage clean and green) and Christmas-roses (to keep the fall and winter flowering from being stained and flawed).

The winter-flowering helleboruses (Gardener's Month, Dec., 1962) will withstand the actual temperatures of the season in which they normally bloom. But petals may spot and shred under the onslaught of driving rain, sleet, snow and ice. Since the Christmas-roses last so long when cut and placed in indoor containers, to give them less than a good send-off would be silly. All that is required to provide the needed protection is an old storm sash or a basement window frame or even a simple pane of glass a little bigger than the clump to be protected. This glass can be supported on horizontal wood strips between the tops of pairs of stakes. A ground clearance of 18 inches will normally allow for the full height of all flowering stems. The sides may normally be left open to the elements. It is the blemishing of the petals you want to guard against.

Should you wish to grow helleboruses (H. niger is the true Christmas-rose) in areas colder than the normal range for the species, you may wish to provide the protection of an enclosing frame as well as a covering glass. A few ordinary wide boards will serve the purpose.

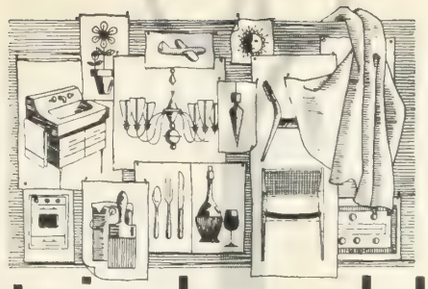
Fourth weekend

Drudgery data. There is no way to make the necessary fall equipment clean-up either easy or interesting. It is a dull and usually dirty job. But unless rapid obsolescence of your tools, mowers, cultivators, sprayers, spreaders and the like is acceptable to you, clean you must. There are a number of special vulnerabilities that apply differently to different pieces of equipment. Categorization might take the following outline:

Gasoline engines. The worst single winter enemy is last season's fuel in tank, feed lines and carburetor. All gasolines, especially leaded kinds (which shouldn't be used in small motors but usually are), break down or acquire water condensate or both during cold weather. The results can be seriously corrosive, and may require complete replacement of carburetors and permanently damage other metal surfaces and parts. All gas tanks should be drained, all gas run out of lines and carburetor. Put a few drops of lubricating oil into cylinders through spark plug ports. Store in a dry, ventilated place. Special warning: Discard all supplies of unused fuel in your storage cans before winter. Don't empty cans on turf or garden soil or asphalt paving. Don't try to burn old gasoline (or new, for that matter). Best bet is to take the cans to your regular service station and ask them to get rid of the stuff for you. Start the spring with fresh gasoline.

Hand tools. Rust is your most insidious enemy; dullness (in edge tools) is your most efficient foe. A steel surface will never again become really smooth once it is rust-pitted. Prevention is the best recourse. This may call for steel wool, kerosene, a dry piece of burlap and then the oil can. A thin film of oil on a clean steel surface will keep it rustfree all winter. A keen edge can be put on spades, hoes, rotary mower blades, axes and the like with a mill file, whetstone or both. (File against the bevel, not with it.) The finer the edge and the higher the temper of the steel, the more care you will want to exercise in sharpening. Coarse cutters (hoes and mattocks) can take coarser whetting than axes and scythes or, especially, secateurs and knives.

Moving parts. An oil can is the most obvious recourse. But beware the mechanical features that come in contact with fertilizers or other materials that lubricating oil would turn to goo. For the bottom of fertilizer spreaders, reel-mower blades and similar parts that move against each other in the presence of other substances, use graphite. This "dry" lubricant is available in small plastic squeeze-tubes.



In all clean-up cases, leisurely (who says so?) fall days are to be preferred to ex post facto salvage jobs when spring rushes up to you.

From Henredon's Documentary Collection, a group of furniture that expresses the elegance of late 18th Century design in every authentic, documented detail.

There's a quality about a home with Henredon

You get a very special feeling in a home with Henredon furniture. A sense of integrity. A feeling of comfort and belonging. You know that the people who live there know good design. And you recognize their personal, and very selective, taste. No matter what Henredon style you prefer —and there's such a variety—the same will happen in your home, too. Because each piece is a brilliant expression of the art of furniture design. And each one is crafted with

INCORPORATING LIVING FOR YOUNG HOMEMAKERS

NOVEMBER, 1963 VOL. 124 NO. 5

On the cover: The kitchen in Mr. and Mrs. Armand Bartoses' New York apartment, Gallic in flavor and as personal as a kitchen can be, is a man's idea of a sensible, attractive setting for a gourmet cook. Architect Bartos designed the room, equipped it, is its chief chef and, upon occasion, its bottle washer. Focal point for food preparation is a marble-topped table banded in steel to protect the stone and centered beneath a reachable battery of pots and pans hung on a matching band of steel which is suspended from the ceiling on steel rods. Just as handy are the condiments, flavorings, pasta and legumes kept in an antiquarian's dream of apothecary jars, old French butter and pâté crocks and chemist's bottles. When Mr. Bartos cooks, he stations himself at the table under the sharp eye of Picasso's "Head of a Jester," and all is within the span of his able arm. Only a few steps around the corner is the pantry, a room even larger than the kitchen, and a meticulously planned storehouse for china and glass —all viewable, get-at-able. To see how Mr. and Mrs. Bartos live when not immersed in the rituals of one culinary bible or another, please turn to page 218.

For today's new world of decorating— a handsome new floor from Armstrong

It's a vinyl floor.

It has intriguing character.

It's pebbly—made of vinyl chips set in translucent vinyl.

It has a gentle, rippling texture.

It has depth you can look down into.

It's called Montina Corlon.

Today, interior designers insist on the importance of the floor. It should make a distinctive contribution to the room.

Armstrong Montina Vinyl Corlon does just that. It's been created expressly to enhance both modern and traditional furnishings and architectural details.

Montina is made of random-sized chips of vinyl. They have flecks of color in them—light flecks, dark flecks, golden flecks.

The chips are suspended in translucent vinyl—giving Montina its pebbly texture and its depth. You can feel the texture. You can look down between the chips. They "float" in the vinyl base—an effect that's enhanced by the lustrous, satiny finish. (On the practical side, these Montina qualities help conceal scuff marks and dents from pointed heels.)

Because Montina Corlon comes in long, wide rolls, this new vinyl floor is almost seamless. You can create all sorts of custom floor designs with Montina, too. And it will go in any part of the home—even in most downstairs playrooms, directly over the concrete.

Send for a free sample of Montina Corlon and a folder showing its many decorator colorings. Armstrong, 6311 Maple Ave., Lancaster, Pa. In Canada, Dept. 113-K, Box 919, Montreal, P. Q.

It all adds up to you

FOUR hundred years ago, Florida Indians spread a welcoming feast for grateful colonists just ashore from France; in less than a year the Frenchmen would be dining on each other. One hundred years ago, a short-tempered eagle received the cheers of a Union army. Forty-four years ago, a say-nothing governor became Presidential timber by — saying nothing.

The sum over the years of such diversity — from pow-wows to political coups — adds up to your American legacy. Know your history well, and you'll know yourself a little better.

The current AMERICAN HERITAGE, The Magazine of History, covers each chapter of the American legacy pictured above. You'll meet Jean Ribaut, whose dreams of a French settlement on the South Atlantic coast ended in despair and cannibalism. Bruce Catton honors "Old Abe," the cantankerous American eagle who, on parade, received a tip of the hat from Sherman and Grant. Francis Russell tells how Gov. Calvin Coolidge was pushed towards the Presidency by the Boston police strike.

There are stories about a famous Supreme Court decision, some surprising religious beliefs of our founding fathers, a realistic look at rough, tough Ethan Allen — and half a dozen other lively articles and picture features. All are intriguing insights into how your country, and you, got to where you are. All are permanently valuable — bound for permanence in white, hard covers, like a fine book. The magazine is big — 8¾ by 11¾ inches, 112 pages with more than 100 illustrations — a third of them in superb color. And no advertising.

Half-Price Introductory Offer

AMERICAN HERITAGE is hard to believe until you've seen it. So a special $11.85 introductory offer (six single copies would cost you $23.70) makes sense all around. The coupon below spells out the details; you needn't send money now. This invitation for the current issue closes when we run out of our spare copies, which can happen quickly. So mail the coupon today — and the rest is history.

questions & answers

BY THOMAS H. ORMSBEE

H&G'S ANTIQUES EXPERT SUPPLIES CLUES TO THE AGE AND ORIGIN OF A SELECTION OF OLD FURNITURE, DECORATIVE OBJECTS AND ARTIFACTS, ADDING, WHERE SPACE PERMITS, A GLIMPSE OF THE PERIODS IN WHICH THEY WERE MADE. NO ATTEMPT HAS BEEN MADE TO ESTIMATE THEIR DOLLARS-AND-CENTS VALUE.

FLEMISH COAT-OF-ARMS BADGE

This engraved brass oval has two raised loops on the back, one at the top and the other at the bottom. Was it some sort of badge worn on a soldier's uniform? L. S.—Haverford, Pa.

Yes, the raised loops are the clue to its use as a badge on a uniform. The coat-of-arms is that of Her Majesty Prochie of Ruysselede (a principality of Flanders, now part of Belgium). The badge was probably engraved in Holland in 1773.

AMERICAN SHERATON TABLE

Our old banquet table has been in our family for some time. Made of cherry, with bird's-eye maple insets, it has three sections and opens to 10 feet. Any information about it will be appreciated. Is it unusual?
R. L. S.—Arcadia, Calif.

Complete three-part tables like yours are rare and usually of museum quality. It is a fine example of the American Sheraton period and dates between 1815 and 1825.

FRENCH PORCELAIN TEAPOT

Can you tell me please when this teapot was made and by whom? It is very thin china, and the dragons and flying bird that decorate it are outlined in gilt. I could not find the mark in any book. V. M. S.—Harrisonburg, Va.

Your teapot was made in the late nineteenth century at the porcelain factory of A. Sorrel, Ponsas-sur-Rhone. Its mark is recorded in "Handbuch des Europaischen Porzellans" by Ludwig Danckert.

Home Interphone helps everyone (especially Mother)

The Bell System's new home communications service makes your telephones even more useful to you and your family. Here are just three of the ways Home Interphone eases everyday living.

Answer the door by phone

No need now to answer the door in person if you're alone or busy. Just reach for the phone and talk with your visitor. A small speaker by the door carries your voice.

Talk room to room

Things run more smoothly when you hold room-to-room conversations by phone. No shouting, walking or stair-climbing. The person being called can answer hands-free.

Relay calls easily

Who doesn't appreciate quiet handling of special calls? You hold the caller on the line, talk room-to-room to locate the person wanted. The call is taken on the nearest phone.

Why not find out more about how Home Interphone can serve your family? Just call the Bell Telephone Business Office or ask your telephone man.

Dishwasher giving you spots? Look!

WATER DROPS—See what happens when even clean water is sprayed on dishes. Drops like these dry into ugly spots and streaks.

CASCADE—Because of Cascade's "sheeting action," drops don't form. Cascade with Chlorosheen does it—and only Cascade has Chlorosheen!

Cascade's amazing "sheeting action" eliminates drops that spot!

Nothing beats Cascade at getting dishes clean. Cascade's remarkable "sheeting action" even eliminates the drops that cause ugly spots. Water ripples right off in clear-rinsing sheets. Dishes, glassware and silver come from your dishwasher as spotless and sparkling as possible, all ready for the fanciest table without the need for towel touch-ups.

And Cascade is rated safe for china patterns. The makers of Castleton, Flintridge, Franciscan, Lenox and Syracuse china—through the American Fine China Guild—have verified Cascade's unsurpassed safety to delicate patterns.

What's more, every leading dishwasher manufacturer recommends Cascade. So do women everywhere. They've made it America's favorite dishwasher detergent by far!

Give your dishwasher the best—Cascade—it's got "sheeting action"

WHITE HOUSE PLATTER

On my White House platter, McKinley is depicted on the border as the latest president. The name Palm, Fechteller & Co. appears near the house. The back is marked La Française Porcelain. How old is it?

G. M. S.—Jacksonville, Fla.

The platter was made in France for the American market during McKinley's administration, which began in 1897. Palm, Fechteller & Co. published the print of the White House that was used on the china. The mark on the back identifies the piece only as a French import.

AMERICAN HIGHBOY

I recently inherited this walnut highboy. Of what period is it, and where was it made? S. S. D.—Greensboro, N. C.

An American piece of the Queen Anne period, your bonnet-top highboy appears to be of museum quality. It was made by some American cabinetmaker about 1730–1740.

DUTCH SERVERS

We purchased this silver fork and spoon at a recent sale. The unusual design makes us wonder if you could throw some light on their origin. F. Q.—Hamilton, Ohio

Serving pieces such as these, with pierced handles terminating in a ship design, are characteristically Dutch. They were made in Holland around 1870–1890.

JOHNSON SHELF CLOCK

Could you help identify this clock? On the back it is marked "Manufactured and sold by William S. Johnson, Courtlandt St., New York, N. Y." R. B. R.—Charleston, S. C.

William S. Johnson was in business as a clockmaker on Courtlandt Street, New York, from 1841 through 1849, so your shelf clock must have been made during that time.

ENGLISH JEWEL SAFE

I will appreciate any information as to the age and style of my jewel safe. It is not marked. G. E. T.—Kansas City, Mo.

Your pedestal-mounted jewel safe appears to be English and in the style of the late years of the Regency. It was most likely made by a cabinetmaker about 1810–1830.

The pleasant perspectives of windows

Windows are more than just architectural accessories—they are the eyes and lungs that give our houses sight and breath. Many problems of an old house can be solved by remodeling the windows. Since windows are nonsupportive elements in a wall, they can usually be enlarged or altered quite radically. Just be certain that your new windows are architecturally compatible with the rest of your house. Let a builder do any window installation for you—this type of remodeling should never be do-it-yourself.

How to add walk-through windows. Accessibility to a new terrace may make doors necessary in a wall that already has a window. But the doors should harmonize with the design of the house. Here, a double-hung window was extended to the floor; two new doors flanking it are neatly camouflaged to look just like the window.

How to get more light and air. In rooms with only one exposure, natural light and air are limited. This problem can be solved by adding a bow window. The gentle curve of this design catches light and breezes from three sides, adds an interesting architectural element.

How to avoid a store-front look. Unless it is carefully designed a new glass wall from ceiling to floor can destroy the residential character of a house. The framework of this wall is divided into well-proportioned sections that relieve the baldness of the glass. Bottom panels slide open.

How to retain privacy with large windows. New rooms added to a house may be very close to property lines. Light and ventilation are needed, yet privacy must be guarded. In this room, a wall of frosted glass jalousies turns the trick by stopping the eye but not the air.

How to make windows sheltered. A big window is the hallmark of new bathroom design, but this is practical only where there is absolute privacy. If some shielding is necessary, try adding sliding frames filled with metal mesh—they obscure the inward view but not ventilation.

Notes for the Hostess

BY DIANA BRYAN

Young Diana, on her first weekend home from college, had a shower for a friend who is about to be married. It was a paper shower, co-ed, held in the evening. "Paper," I discovered, is a gift category that allows a lot of leeway, financially and otherwise, and seems to stimulate imaginative offerings. For instance: theatre tickets to a hit show, an exquisite original pen-and-ink drawing; magazine subscriptions. The bride's parents gave a check, and the groom's grandparents sent the airplane tickets for the honeymoon. Among the less expensive gifts were monogrammed matchbooks, cocktail napkins, cartons of cigarettes, and stationery. One improvident and forthright young college friend of the groom's came up with a neatly wrapped two-dollar bill. A happy circumstance prompted the most unusual gift of the party: our local decorator, a close friend of the bride's mother, presented a book of wallpapers from which the bride was to choose the one she wanted for a room in her new home.

Speaking of brides, I wish more of them would choose their wedding silver in the lovely old very plain patterns. People are always advising against plain silver, saying it gets scratched so easily. But one of the beauties of fine silver is the patina that comes with the almost invisible marks of wear and polishing over the years. One of my favorite patterns is Tiffany's "Hamilton"—graceful and plain, good with any china and with almost any style of furnishings.

Silver in a classic pattern

Worth making note of: three appetizing but unusual uses of commonplace ingredients. (1) Cream of Wheat added to chicken stock, flavored with onion and puréed to a delicious soup. (2) Very strong coffee used as a marinade and basting for charcoal-broiled steak. (3) Dry vermouth used in place of vinegar in salad dressing, puzzlingly piquant and very good. Had this with chef's salad at Millie Brandt's the other day. It also gives zest to vegetable salads, or just mixed greens.

Three of my friends and I have decided to join forces and give a holiday dinner party that might be called an international smörgåsbord. One of us has a passion for cooking Italian. I myself love to cook Spanish. Another one of us specializes in Swedish cooking, and the fourth is just a darned good plain all-around cook. Each of us will prepare several dishes in her own kitchen, then bring them to Louise Perkins' house (she has the biggest dining room) and heat them up before dinner.

We plan to divide her round table into quadrants. For my own part, I am bringing picadillo (that delicious combination of ground beef cooked in tomato purée with salad olives, capers and raisins); black beans cooked with red wine, green peppers, garlic and bay leaf; and fried green plantains. Helen Low, the Italian enthusiast, is providing risotto (which is a great accompaniment to my Spanish black beans), osso buco and sautéed zucchini. Our Swedish cook is going to offer bockling (baked, smoked herring), spinach puréed with sour cream and dressed with tiny hard-cooked pullet eggs, a dilled cucumber salad.

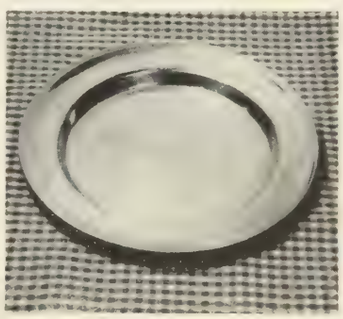
The nondenominational cook says that somebody has to take care of the less adventuresome diners, and she might just as well. So she is preparing oven-baked chicken with a golden crust of corn-flake crumbs; mint-glazed whole baby carrots and hashed-in-cream potatoes. It was the general consensus that dessert was superfluous on this groaning board, but there are some who always have room for a sweet. So between the four of us we are making a large macédoine of fruit.



We debated about the centerpiece and finally decided that next to love there is nothing more international than bread. So Sally Curtis, our Scandinavian expert, is contriving a table decoration of a basket of Italian bread sticks, Caribbean galleticas de sal (those crunchy, puffy crackers to be had at any Puerto Rican grocery), Swedish crisp breads and American butterfly rolls. I don't imagine there will be much of it left, as it will look good enough to eat and will, no doubt, be eaten.

A weekend guest of ours presented me with a hostess gift that I'm having as much fun with as a child with a new toy. It is a glass candleholder—or flower holder—that you put together yourself in any arrangement you like. Made like an epergne, it consists of a central candlestick with three arms, each bearing saucers and/or flute-shaped holders. I have explored its possibilities and found that for one thing it provides an almost foolproof means of creating an impressive centerpiece—nearly any combination of candles and flowers looks pretty. Or I have used it as a serving piece, with nuts and candies in the bowls. Once I set it on a buffet table with different cocktail dips in the bowls. But I think it will be most fun to play with at holidays. At Christmas it could be festive holding ornaments and goodies; for Valentine's Day, I can see it filled with red candles and red heart-shaped candies; at Easter we can put decorated eggs on it—and so on around the year.

Candelabrum that doubles as epergne

Since our house is strategically located on the route to one of the major football stadia of the Northeast, we always have a lot of late Saturday afternoon company from among the faithful alumni and fellow pigskin buffs. Don has conned me into planning a supper party for the day of the next big game. As we are going to the game, too, it obviously has to be a dinner that can take care of itself while we're off urging Don's team to victory.

Pewter-like dinner plate, grandly proportioned

The main dish will be a cassoulet, that robust French concoction of white beans, garlic sausage, pork, lamb and maybe even duck. I can make it in the morning and reheat it while we're having cocktails. In addition, I'll make a large casserole of whole tomatoes mixed with lots of dark brown sugar and a little freshly ground pepper, and simmer it gently in the oven for at least six hours. With all this I'll serve loaves of the homemade bread I bought at a church bake sale a while ago to keep in the freezer against such an occasion. For dessert I'm going to make apple tarts with a thin apricot glaze on top. This doesn't seem to be a meal for wine. I'll serve chilled sparkling cider instead, in Don's pewter tankards. Hard cider will do if I can't get the sparkling variety.

For a tablecloth, I think I'll use an old, deep blue and white homespun bedspread that I inherited from the Vermont side of my family. It will be a wonderful background for my new Wilton chargers—oversize dinner plates made of a new high-grade metal alloy that looks like very old pewter. They're unbreakable and guaranteed to keep their polish and good looks through the most rigorous washing up.

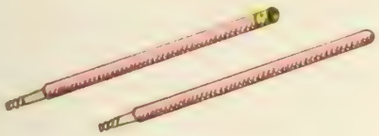
O-Cedar introduces new beauty and efficiency in floor care

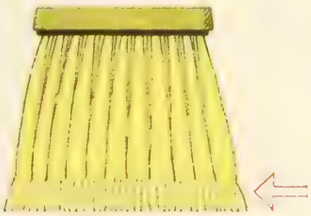
. . . to lighten and brighten your home-work with glamorous new Crown mops and brooms.



Here's new beauty for your housekeeping. Mops that are masterpieces of color and design—and marvels of brand-new efficiency. Brooms that are light and golden—and never miss a speck or particle on their smooth ride over your floors.

Choose your new O-Cedar Crown Dust Mop in colors inspired by House & Garden

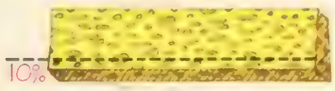
Princess Pink or Oyster White mop heads of luxurious Orlon†, first with O-Cedar*. And you will enjoy using them, because they're thick, soft, fluffy...attract every speck of dust...and hold onto it, too.



The swirl socket (Every-Which-Way*) gives you complete working versatility, reaches under furniture and into corners. Detach the mop head—you've a handmitt duster. Toss it in the washer. You'll take it out as fluffy and fresh as new.

Matching handles are of selected hardwood—and sectioned for flexibility. Remove one section: see how easy to handle for dusting Venetian blinds...or for getting up dust under very big furniture.

New Golden Crown Broom by O-Cedar brings you miracle Cedarlon* Bristles



Unlike any you've ever used before. The bristles are feathered at the ends to sweep cleaner. Even tiny dust specks and those elusive particles of spilled sugar get swept along. These golden bristles hold their shape, keep their feathers, resist breaking, are easily cleaned in water. Just shake them dry. So light in weight... you'll hardly know you're sweeping. Handsome handle is golden, matches the broom head. So does the handy hanger.

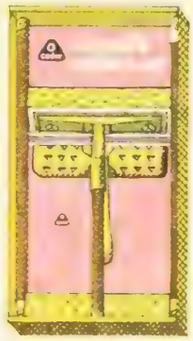
Only the beautiful new O-Cedar Crown Squeeze Mop comes with an extra sponge refill

And that's only the beginning of the extra convenience story. The sectioned hardwood handle is a beauty—and a blessing: you'll remove sections to get under low cabinets; to clean window sills.



The sponge has 10% more cleaning surface than before, so you finish faster. The O-Cedar self-cleaning action (clean water in back of sponge flushes out dirty water in front) keeps a clean mop working over your floors. Your hands never touch water. Someday in the far future—when you've used up the second refill—you'll have no difficulty buying others.

Pretty pink packages protect O-Cedar Crown cleaning heads

You've never seen mops so prettily packaged before. (They're so luxurious—you'll buy them for shower gifts.) O-Cedar packages the new Crown Line, because such glamorous good looks deserve protection. Look for these boxes when you buy. All new Crown mops and brooms have these attractive hangers for your convenience. If you have to clean (don't we all?) why not enjoy it with this new elegance and wonder-working efficiency? From O-Cedar, your housekeeping leader.

O cedar

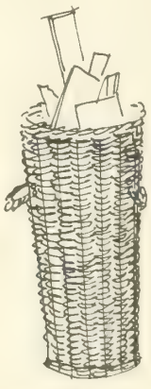
The notes of a happy housekeeper



BY MARY ELIZABETH FALTER

It's raining hard today, shaking the last stubborn leaves from the bare dark trees. Walking toward the house from the barn this morning, I noticed it looks larger and more important now that it has emerged from its screen of summer foliage. I like to imagine the house knows it will have the starring role in the months to come, and that soon it will be the setting for holidays and homecomings. Warmth and comfort greet me as I open the door; I smell the freshness of pine boughs in the copper bowl in the hall and look beyond it to the fireplace that will delight us all as the winter deepens. That reminds me—I must ask young Tommy to fill the wood basket.

Looking at our old faithful wood basket, I think I'll put into service at once a splendid new number I bought the other day at one of those roadside basket emporiums. It has impressive proportions—measures 3 feet high by 2 feet wide (I'd been secretly wondering what I was going to do with it)—and would be just the thing for logs and kindling.

It's too cold to cook on our outdoor grill now, but we are enjoying our electric broiler-rotisserie that makes meat taste almost as good as charcoal-broiled. This fine appliance not only cooks beautifully, but is especially useful when I have a slow-baking dessert already in the oven of our stove. Called the Farber Open Hearth, it cooks smokelessly with infra-red coils, has no lid so air circulates around the cooking meat to seal in the juices. Since it's made of stainless steel, I never have any trouble cleaning it.

The cabinetmaker who came to repair our library desk the other day took a passing look at our dining table and told me we were ruining the finish. I'd noticed it was getting scarred-looking and was often sticky after I'd wiped it. But I didn't understand what was harming it. Detergents, said the cabinetmaker. We had been diligently wiping the table after meals with the dishcloth, which is full of detergent residue that with time will tend to soften most varnishes. So now we keep a special sponge reserved just for the table and wipe it off with clear warm water, then dry afterward with paper towels.

Tom, who is always ready to give anything a try, used to buy a different kind of glue every time he saw one in a hardware store. But until now, he's never found one that was transparent, unaffected by heat, cold and moisture, and that did not grow brittle with age. His new discovery is Devcon Trim Cement. Since it is made for use on all kinds of materials including metal and rubber, yet is flexible and strong, it is recommended for boats, cars and hobbies as well as around the house. Tom applied it to refasten some loose weatherstripping, and announced he believes our house will thereby be draftless all winter.

It's the bee's knees!

Back in the 20's, that remark was a laudatory expression that might be paraphrased in the vernacular of the 60's as —the most! These two modes of expression have nothing in common. But—20's or 60's—there's one cocktail that's common to the cognoscenti and connoisseurs of both eras. Today—as in bygone days—everybody's buzzing about that bonanza of the bar: The Stinger.

We got a distress call last week from Tom's niece Carolyn who is busy settling her brand new apartment. Seems she wanted some guidance on hanging her pictures, so we hastened to her aid. Tom claims to be an expert picture hanger—he spent a college summer as a helper in a New York gallery. His advice is sound: After you have placed the first picture at a point on the wall that is slightly above eye level, hang all the other pictures so that they are aligned at the bottom edge with the first picture. There's an easy way to go about this. Once you've settled on the base line, measure its distance from the floor. Poke a yardstick into the true middle of the wire on the back of each picture frame and measure the distance from the place where it will hang on the hook to the bottom of the frame. Add this measurement to the number of inches from the floor to the bottom of the frame, and you will find exactly the right place to put the picture hook. You can adapt this method to align all your pictures at the top of their frames instead of the bottom, if you prefer.

I think my favorite of all my indoor plants is the pot of green orchids that arrived on Thanksgiving Day three years ago. It had several blooms that lasted six weeks—all I did in the way of tender loving care was to spray it with a fine mist of water once or twice a day and keep it away from a direct blast of heat. When it stopped blooming, a friend of mine stored it in her greenhouse until the next winter, when lo and behold it sprouted two new orchids and went right back on my coffee table. I can't remember ever having an indoor plant that gave more weeks of pleasure.

Both Helen and Ken are very pleased with their new apartment and excited about spending more time in town. Helen was a trifle downcast about the small, dark kitchen at first—she felt she'd miss her sunny well-equipped kitchen at the farm. The stove was the worst problem. But then we went shopping and she was introduced to the General Electric Americana range, and now she can hardly wait to cook her first meal on it.

The most wonderful thing about this stove is its many virtues in spite of its compact size (only 30 inches wide). It has an upper rotisserie oven with an eye-level window and a large 23-inch master oven below. Both bake and broil and have complete automatic cooking systems. The burners have convenient side controls so you never get mixed up. There are two appliance outlets, one automatic. The master oven door comes off completely for cleaning, and the upper oven door swings away so you can wipe out the oven easily. The burners flip up and lock for cleaning.

Helen bought a yellow one on the spot and plans to rearrange the existing cupboards around the stove, thus making enough room for a small hutch table by the window. New paint to match the stove will make the kitchen seem sunlit.

Recently, I noticed that our guest room bureau was showing some spots and scars, so I asked the cabinetmaker if he could refinish it in time for Tom's mother's visit next month. When he replied he couldn't touch it for six weeks, I must have looked woebegone because he made a very good suggestion. He told me to get something called a J N T Complete Furniture Treatment Set which he said I could buy in almost any large department or hardware store. I was lucky enough to find a set the next time I went down town, and with a little patient effort I made the bureau look almost as good as new. All but one of the bad spots came out, and the surface developed a rich sheen that was hard and dry, not a bit greasy.

The kit contains a film-removing cleaner, a wonderful polish, a mar remover, plus a small felt buffing pad and polishing cloth. If you follow the explicit instructions, you can rescue many pieces of furniture headed for the refinisher. All the products in the kit can be replenished separately.

You and your home

What you should know about building codes

Few kind words are spoken for building codes and regulations, mainly because they seem to consist of nothing but don't's. In some communities, building codes are progressive and sensible; in others, they are outmoded and frustrating.

But if you are building a new house or buying an old one with the idea of remodeling it, you should have a working knowledge of whatever limitations are imposed by your local building code. Not knowing what you may and may not do can result in disappointment or, even worse, a considerable loss of money.

Building regulations are laws that tell what kind of house may be built, where it may be built and how it may be built. And the same laws govern all major remodeling projects, too.

The idea of regulating construction to assure the health, safety and welfare of a community is almost as old as communal living itself. In twelfth- and thirteenth-century London, people were required to whitewash their thatched roofs to resist fire. Sixteenth-century Amsterdam required official inspection of foundations before walls and floors could be built. In this country, in 1662, the town of Jamestown, Va., prohibited the construction of houses from any materials other than brick.

Conservative estimates today indicate that at least 3,500 separate building codes exist in our fifty states. Additionally, at least 1,500 separate planning and zoning laws exist, giving a total of something like 5,000 separate and distinct building regulations. Inevitably, wide variations have cropped up.

The commonest way to obtain copies of the building regulations of your locality is through the city, town or village clerk. In some places, the clerk will have all the documents available. In others, he might refer you to several offices. Be persistent. Collect all pertinent booklets (and maps, too). A small charge may be made for booklets.

Read the fine print and the footnotes

After you have everything in hand, settle down in an easy chair and skim through the documents. Mark those paragraphs that deal with land use; lot size; front, side and backyards; minimum dwelling areas; esthestic control; use of materials and construction methods, plumbing and septic tanks, electrical wiring.

You will learn quickly that your community is planned, or zoned, for single-family houses, for multi-family houses, for offices and commercial buildings, for industrial or other uses. If at some later date you might wish to incorporate a separate apartment into your dwelling, either for use by a relative or by a renter, now is the time to make sure the land-use plan will allow this type of occupancy.

The codes usually prescribe the minimum land area you will need for erecting a certain kind of building. Typically, you will find land that has been subdivided after the date of the ordinance will be in compliance with building regulations; land subdivided before the ordinance may or may not be subject to the described minimum area requirements. A bit of research may be required to discover whether your land is covered by the obsolete or current regulations.

All building regulations will specify minimum distances (or setbacks) for a house from property lines. Usually these distances are expressed in terms of "front-yards, sideyards and backyards." You will want to make sure you still have a good, buildable site after taking into account the land you must sacrifice to satisfy set-

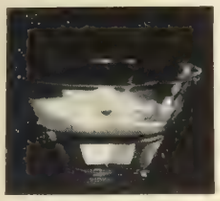
Built-in sofa in rich black Premier pattern of luxurious self-expanded U.S. ROYAL NAUGAHYDE®. Notice how beautifully Naugahyde lends itself to tufting. For perfect comfort, it's cushioned with U.S. KOYLON® latex foam rubber.

Koylon cushioned easy chairs in saddle tan Premier U.S. ROYAL NAUGAHYDE. Black-and-white tweedy textured floor covering is U.S. ROYAL VINYL CARPET, a remarkable new indoor-outdoor material that, like Naugahyde itself, is soap-and-water washable, almost indestructible.



For some surprising facts about this vacation hideaway...*

read this!

Is this the top-secret weekend lodge of a hard-working advisor to the President, the hidden hideaway of a Chairman of the Board? Not at all. This is actually a perfectly possible, completely practical home away from home. It could easily, with variations, be yours. It was designed to create an atmosphere that gives the maximum of ease and comfort with the minimum of work and care. How so? All the colors are rich, soothing and relaxing. What's practical, you ask, about white dining cushions or beige easy chairs. The answer—U.S. NAUGAHYDE® vinyl, the world's most luxurious, most carefree upholstery. All it needs is the swish of a soapy sponge to make it the cleanest furniture in the house. Let them put their feet up—and if the firewood is damp and smoulders—no harm! Imagine the pleasure of owning upholstered furniture that always looks its best, that's as easy to keep clean as a cup and saucer.

Best of all, you can translate all these advantages into your home, into the very room you're sitting in now. With Naugahyde upholstery you can eliminate a lot of year-round housework, add wonderful color, texture and beauty to all your upholstered furniture. MISS BARBARA DORN, A.I.D., of New York, who designed this enviable vacation home, says, "I think we should live with as much comfort and beauty as possible—as much of the time as possible. I chose Naugahyde for all the upholstered pieces because it provides a wonderful combination of luxury and rich color with the minimum of care. Naugahyde, with its infinite variety of patterns and textures, lends itself to every period and style of furniture design. It's perfectly suited to today's more casual way of living."

Whether your taste is Regency, Danish modern, or a happy combination of both, you will find a pattern, a color in Naugahyde that is exactly what you're looking for. And for rich, soft fabriclike texture, be sure you look at U.S. NAUGAWEAVE®, the breathable vinyl upholstery. There are, in all, more than 500 different patterns, colors and textures to choose from. People are always discovering new uses for Naugahyde. It makes a superb wall or counter-top covering. It's been made into handsome draperies, bedspreads and table covers. You yourself will probably invent some new use for it.

U.S. Koylon Latex

Beauty and practicality considered, what about comfort? Home means comfort and comfort means Koylon...U.S. KOYLON® genuine latex foam rubber, the world's most luxurious, most durable cushioning. It is, quite simply, the best money can buy, and at its best with Naugahyde.

Did you ever stop to think how really dramatic a white sofa would be—or a tangy lemon-yellow chair and ottoman. Not practical, you say? Completely—when it's Naugahyde. Now ...look around your living room, and let your imagination run riot.

Other nice things in this room to keep Naugahyde company; lounge chairs and cigarette table by Dunbar Furniture Company; dining chairs by Stendig, Inc.; picture wall from the Rhoda Sande Gallery; Spanish straw rug imported by Mary Whitlock; butcher-block-top dining table by Crucible Products Co.; vinyl slate floor by Amtico.

In the case of an existing house, these setbacks are even more important because they determine whether you can put an addition on the side, back, front —or not at all. Bear in mind that such restrictions are commonly written into the original subdivision covenant and are thus recorded as a part of the deed to your property.

Building regulations usually specify the minimum size house which may be built in a particular neighborhood. Frequently, this is stated in terms of area—e.g., "a minimum area of 1,500 square feet," or whatever. Make sure you understand clearly whether the area applies to one floor or to the sum of several floors, and whether it includes or excludes nonlivable areas such as garages and porches.

Not often, but occasionally, restrictions are expressed in terms of dollar cost of a house; in a given neighborhood, a minimum of, say, $20,000 must be invested in a new house. With the fluctuation in building costs, this kind of requirement, of course, has little meaning. At any rate, the purpose is to give some homogeneity to a neighborhood and to avoid widely differing real estate values in close proximity.

Modern or Colonial?

The most controversial of building restrictions deal with esthetics in short, whether or not an architectural design is "acceptable" within the context of a community's tastes and values. The stated purpose of esthetic regulations is to avoid monotony (such as found in the look-alike development houses) and to prohibit the construction of architectural monstrosities which could spoil a neighborhood. While some authorities are skeptical as to the legality of these regulations, they have been applied successfully in many communities.

If your town has an architectural board of review, find out what it has approved and rejected in recent years. If you want to build a contemporary glass box, and the review board has a record of approving only Georgian design, then you can anticipate a choice between fighting the board or selecting a site in another jurisdiction.

You will find the great bulk of the building code devoted to a description of building materials and their acceptable uses—generally in language difficult for the layman to understand. Importantly, you will want to discuss any limitations on materials with your architect and builder just to make sure that the materials you want to use will be acceptable.

Plumbing, drainage and water supply installation requirements are usually quite specific and, because of the health factor, are rigidly enforced. So, too, are rules covering the installation of electrical wiring systems, since the objective of these regulations is to safeguard property and life.

The administrative chapter of the building code will describe procedures to be followed in obtaining a building permit. It will also describe inspections a building official is required to make during construction. Usually, three inspections are made: when the foundations are in place, when the rough framing is completed and when the whole house is erected, just before occupancy. Some states require occupancy permits—a formal certification that all regulations have been met and that the house is fit for occupancy.

Building regulations are designed to protect and safeguard the community and everyone living there. How well they do the job can only be measured by an informed local citizenry. Reading and studying your building regulations and discussing them with your architect, builder and building official should give you some idea as to whether your building laws are up-to-date or obsolete. These laws, like any others, can be changed and revised by an aroused public opinion.

The shortened cocktail hour

The drinks you serve and how you serve them are vital to the success of a late-starting dinner

By James A. Beard

If you follow H&G's lead and plan a nine o'clock dinner party (see page 224), you will not want an over-long cocktail hour to throw your party off schedule. Some of your guests may have already had a relaxing drink at home; in any case, it is essential that the cocktail time move along to the main course smoothly. Good organization of your party is more important than ever.

Awkward handling of the bar is often responsible for delay and confusion. You will find it most efficient to use one type of glass, such as a large-bowled stem glass that is suitable for all drinks except cocktails.

It will also save time if you can serve drinks without endlessly measuring the amount of liquor that goes into each glass. To get the hang of this, pour 1½ to 2 ounces of liquor over ice cubes in a glass and take a good look at it. This also does away with that penny-pinching look.

If you are giving a large party, be sure to include among the apéritifs a wine of some sort—a chilled dry white, a rosé or perhaps a dry sherry, plus a nonalcoholic drink. It will be more convenient for you if you set up a second bar for the serving of wine and nonalcoholic drinks. If you serve tomato juice, be sure it is well seasoned; offer orange juice with a slice of orange added to each glass. Except for the most lavish parties, however, it is unnecessary to have every known alcoholic beverage on hand. A good bourbon, a good Scotch, Martinis, one wine and one nonalcoholic drink such as fruit juice should be enough choice to make all your guests happy.

In some cases it's pleasant to serve only a white wine and cassis apéritif before dinner, omitting cocktails and highballs. This way you lead directly into a fish course in the living room served with the same white wine minus the cassis. Or you can start with champagne for the apéritif hour and continue to serve it through the meal.

Another interesting idea is to offer a wine-tasting in place of cocktails. Have several chilled white wines and let your guests taste and compare them. With the wine-tasting, serve plain biscuits and perhaps some olives or nuts. If you serve only wines before dinner, offer your guests highballs or whiskey-on-the-rocks later in the evening as nightcaps.

Of course, if you have only wines for the cocktail hour, you must know your guests' tastes well enough to be sure that they like wines and will be pleased. Confirmed whiskey or Martini drinkers are apt to be unhappy. But as people grow more food conscious, many realize that too much strong liquor taken just before a meal tends to deaden the taste buds so that delicious food may go unappreciated. With only wines to drink before dinner, guests are eased into the meal without the more definite break from cocktails to food and wine. A little subtlety never hurt anyone's best laid plans.

As soon as people have enjoyed a drink or two, you might bring in the food for the first course and pass it, along with any wine you have planned. Having thus started on the meal, the members of your party will continue into the dining room without your having to do any urging.

Here are some suggestions for first courses that can be served in the living room accompanied by a chilled white wine or champagne. Any of these make a delectable introduction to the main course and help to smooth the transition from the cocktail hour to the dinner table:

A large platter of smoked fish, with lemon wedges, capers and a pepper mill. With this serve thin rye or pumpernickel bread-and-butter sandwiches.

Caviar served with toast and lemon (ideal with champagne or chilled vodka).

Crabmeat or lobster with rémoulade sauce.

Tomatoes stuffed with a seafood mixture.

Avocados stuffed with lobster or crabmeat.

Deviled crabmeat.

Scallops provençal.

Hot or cold fish mousse.

Fish in aspic.

Liver pâté in aspic.

Pâtés or terrines served with plenty of crisp hot buttered toast.

The facts and fancies of Christmas

By Gaile Dugas

The legends and truths about Christmas are myriad. They differ greatly from country to country, and often are contradictory. Here, in the form of a quiz, is a collection of some of the most interesting facts and beliefs that surround the celebration in various parts of the Western World:

Has Christmas always been legal?

No. It was abolished both in England and the United States. The Roundhead Parliament passed a law against the Christmas holiday in 1643. (The Roundheads represented the Puritans, and the Puritans regarded Christmas as both pagan and Roman Catholic.) The English people resented the suppression of Christmas, but under Cromwell's Puritan dictatorship, any show of disapproval was swiftly stamped out. Gradually, the people rebelled against Puritanism, and eventually, in about 1654, repealed the law against Christmas. In this country, in 1659, the General Court of Massachusetts, again under Puritan influence, forbade the keeping of Christmas. This law, despite a bitter fight by the Puritans to keep it, was repealed in 1681.

What is the biggest Christmas present in history?

The telegram sent by General Sherman to President Lincoln on December 25, 1864, probably qualifies for that title. It read: "I beg to present to you as a Christmas present the city of Savannah."

How did the custom of the Christmas tree originate?

Though no one really knows, the chances are very good that a tree had significance in pagan ceremonies. It reappears in Germany in 1600. Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's consort, brought the Christmas tree custom with him to England, and the Queen fell in love with the idea. She chose the gifts for the Prince Consort's tree and he selected gifts for hers. Amusingly enough, photographs of the two arrays of presents taken at Windsor in 1860 show that the Queen received a goodly assortment, while the Prince had been given a large collection of family photographs. But then, the Queen was very fond of family photographs.

What's the pretzel got to do with the celebration of Christmas?

Surprisingly enough, there is a connection. The wheel of the sun was the old calendar mark of the winter solstice. A sort of cracker was baked to represent this and gradually evolved into the pretzel we now eat all year.

Why did Charles Dickens write "A Christmas Carol"?

For money. He had a wife, sister-in-law and four children to support. One night in October, 1843, while he was walking the streets of his beloved London, the story took shape in his mind. When it was published, just six days before Christmas, the first edition of 6,000 copies sold out entirely the first day.

Did the birth of Christ actually take place on December 25?

Possibly not; authorities disagree. Some say that this month is the rainy season in the Holy Land—thus, the shepherds would not have been watching their flocks. Other authorities have suggested January 6, March 29, April 20, May 20 and September 29 as possible dates of the nativity.

What Christmas story by an American writer is as well loved as Dickens' "A Christmas Carol"?

O. Henry's "The Gift of the Magi" would certainly qualify. Like Dickens, O. Henry wrote under financial pressure. He composed this charming Christmas story in November, 1905, when he was living at 55 Irving Place, New York. He tossed it off in three hours for the magazine section of the old New York World.

Does the Christmas wreath have any religious significance?

No. It was used in pagan festivals, and because it was lovely and ornamental, it became a part of the Christmas tradition.

On which Christmas Day did England have eight living monarchs?

Richard Cromwell (son of Oliver Cromwell), Charles II, James II, William III, Queen Mary II,

NEW CORY®

Knife & Scissors Sharpener

BOTH STONES . . . new coarse grit wheel quickly and expertly conditions any blade.

AND HONES . . . new fine grit dressing wheel precisely hones all blades to ultimate slicing perfection.

Now, the genius of Cory engineering provides you with two wheels and a scientifically improved, new blade guide that lets you sharpen professionally. Look! A few passes over the Cory coarse grit conditioning wheel grooms even the dullest blade. Then, a few more over the Cory fine grit dressing wheel and your knives are ready for months of pleasurable use. Lift the knife guard . . . and the dressing wheel is bared for quick, easy scissor sharpening. Press too hard? Your new Cory automatically stops, preventing blade damage. A really sharp gift for everyone on your list . . . and for every occasion.

Queen Anne, George I and George II were all living on Christmas Day, 1684. Charles II occupied the throne. Richard Cromwell, who had succeeded Oliver, had lasted only two years and had been successfully challenged by Charles II. He was succeeded by James II on his death in 1685. James II fled in 1688, to be succeeded by William and Mary. Then came Queen Anne, Mary's sister, who followed on the death of William. After she died, George I, a German prince of the House of Hanover, gained the throne. As for George II, he was born in 1683. On this one Christmas Day in 1684, they were all alive, if not together in one jolly group.

Did Charles Dickens keep Christmas well himself, or did he just write about it?

Dickens did indeed celebrate Christmas. He and Prince Albert have been named as the originators of the festival as we now know it. His house at Gadshill overflowed with guests during the holidays, and, like the great Victorian he was, he loved to preside at a lovely Christmas table complete with plum pudding decorated with holly.

What was Christmas like during the Civil War years?

It depended on where you were. Because the North was in better shape economically, you probably fared better there, physically and emotionally. If you were in the South, a piece of corned beef for your Christmas dinner in 1864 would cost $50. Turkeys went at prices from $50 to $100, and candy cost $8 per pound. Not many Southern families had cheery Christmas dinners that dismal and uncertain year.

How did Santa Claus become such a popular Christmas figure in this country?

The Dutch brought him to New York in the form of St. Nicholas. But it was Dr. Clement C. Moore of New York, a Hebrew scholar and Episcopal minister, who created the Santa Claus we know today with his famous poem, "A Visit from St. Nicholas," which most of us know as " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas." He wrote it in 1822 to entertain his own children.

Why is the day after Christmas known in England as Boxing Day?

The name came from the custom observed on large estates years ago of giving boxes of food to the tenants. Today, gifts are usually given to local tradespeople. One other thing about Boxing Day: the English housewife, by tradition, is taken out to dinner on that day by her husband as a reward for her Christmas labors.

How did that phrase, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus," ever get started?

Back in 1897, a little girl named Virginia O'Hanlon, who lived in New York City, wrote to a famous newspaper, The New York Sun, and asked: "Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?" She was answered in The Sun by one of its editorial writers, Francis P. Church, in a reply which stands to this day as a classic and is quoted in New York papers every Christmas. The phrase you know is from this famous editorial. Not too long ago, the Virginia of this vignette retired as a teacher in New York.

When did Christmas become a legal holiday in this country?

The state of Alabama was the first to declare Christmas a legal holiday in 1836. It was followed by Louisiana and Arkansas in 1838. Then, during the Civil War, thirteen additional states did the same. The District of Columbia lagged behind, finally recognized Christmas in 1870.

Was Christmas kept in Elizabethan England?

It was, although presents were exchanged at the New Year. On New Year's Day in 1572, Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, gave Queen Elizabeth the forerunner of the modern wrist watch: a gold armlet set with a clock and studded with rubies, diamonds and pearls—quite a bangle indeed.

Has turkey always been the traditional Christmas dish in this country and England?

No. In England, roast beef is the favorite. There, roast beef at Christmas dates back to the pagan holiday, when two white bulls were sacrificed at an ancient Druid winter ceremony.

When did people first start sending Christmas cards?

About the middle of the nineteenth century, when the new printing processes made it possible to produce Christmas cards of color and elegance.

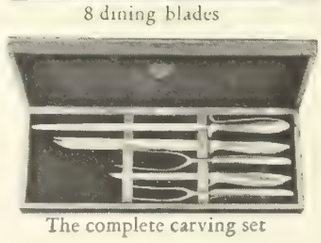
...but woe is the host whose art is betrayed by a dull blade

BSf set — 2 pieces. Siegfried, the new slender serving fork, and carver. Balmung, in solid walnut case, $22.50

No screen of suavity or wit will cover up for a blade that was not made for cutting



THE STEEL'S THE THING. That's where Gerber Legendary Blades start — with the steel. It's much more costly than cutlery steel and far more expensive to fabricate. It is extremely hard, takes and holds a keen unfeathered edge that cuts meat with a touch, yet is thin and springy for deft carving and protection from breakage — qualities that cannot be combined in stainless steel. By adding grace and beauty and permanent brightness Gerber Blades have repeatedly won recognition from the Museum of Modern Art.

Available in nearly all of the finest stores throughout the country. Or write for free selection folder and name of nearest dealer. Gerber Legendary Blades, West Linn, Oregon.

The true contemporary is neither ugly, crude, nor boring. It is varied, warm and elegant, but in contrast to the often hollow imitations of the great styles of the past, always a genuine expression of the artistic forces and of the spirit of our time.

Philip Rosenthal M.A.

A thought: china, glass and silver must complement each other and blend.
A man: the Danish artist Bjørn Wiinblad enhances one romantic ornament through the contrast of three precious materials.
A product: "Romance" in thinnest porcelain, luminously clear lead crystal and heavy sterling silver.

PRESELECTION... Not contemporary or traditional but genuine or imitative—that is the issue. As with antiques, only the original has value; so in our time it is only the genuine creation of an artist or designer. The ROSENTHAL STUDIO LINE therefore includes only the work of leading artists and designers of our time in the fields of china, glass and cutlery. Amongst them are: Bele Bachem, Munich; H. Th. Baumann, Munich; Sigvard Bernadotte, Stockholm; Acton Bjørn, Stockholm; Lucienne Day, London; Cuno Fischer, Stuttgart; Elsa Fischer-Treyden, Berlin; Karl Gustav Hansen, Copenhagen; George Butler Jensen, Chicago; Richard Latham, Chicago; Raymond Loewy, New York; Raymond Peynet, Paris; Emilio Pucci, Florence; Bjørn Wiinblad, Copenhagen; Tapio Wirkkala, Helsinki. ■ Shown: "Romance" Motif, $17.95 per place setting. DON'T BUY ONE UNLESS YOU LIKE PEOPLE

This thinly-veiled threat is not to be pooh-poohed. Man is by nature a social animal, but it can be overdone. We know of one exasperated gentleman who bought a Conn Organ to indulge his secret yen to make music. Before the instrument had been in his living room one full day he found himself waiting in line to sit at the keyboard. And that was just with his own family. When his friends and neighbors discovered the Conn, the poor fellow had to set up a priority system like the numbers in a butcher shop. So, take heed. If you are going to give serious thought to a Conn Organ, you must first accept the fact that people cannot resist playing it. Then you go joyously on from there!

The start is easy. Thanks to Conn's remarkable new learning method, "Instant Music," you can play any one of 39 popular songs in a matter of minutes! No endless scales and tiresome exercises. If you know your alphabet from "A" to "G," you can play with both keyboards, with exciting band effects, and with foot pedals, too.

You play the way a professional organist does—naturally, with true human expression. No gimmicks, gadgets, push-buttons, or one-finger chord makers. You are playing on a professional-quality instrument created by C. G. Conn, Ltd., world's largest manufacturer of band instruments. The Conn has such tonal versatility, such tremendous musical potential, that you will never outgrow it, no matter how skilled you become.

There are seven beautifully-crafted models, starting from $995. Your Conn dealer can arrange easy payments. But remember our warning—don't buy one unless you like people! For helpful free booklet, "How to Choose an Organ," plus free "Caprice Capers" LP record, just write today to Dept. HG-6, Conn Organ Corporation, Elkhart, Indiana.

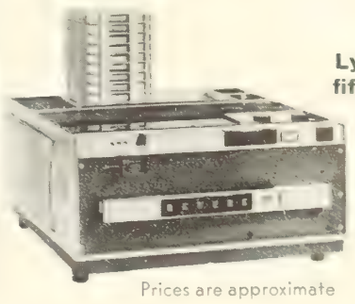
Looking and Listening

How to give the sound of music—and to whom



Wonderful gift for a music-loving family long on belles lettres, short on space:

Fine replica of a Governor Winthrop desk not only does traditional duty, but houses built-in stereo. Speaker system at back of case permits full use of drawers. Ravenswood. $1,000.

For a cool or classic buff—probably a man—who likes to tape topnotch radio broadcasts:

New tape recorder is compact, has removable top, fits into a bookcase, is light enough to travel. Jack on one side is radio plug-in for recording. V-M, Courier model 725. $99.95.

For a lie-back, Lydia-Languish-type listener—fifteen straight hours of melody:

A new portable stereo tape cartridge system accommodates twenty cartridges, plays music from sunup to sundown—nonstop. Records radio, TV, hi-fi. Revere model 3M. $399.

"I treasure your letters. Write again soon"

To write a letter is to reveal a heart—and to invite a revelation in return. A letter is a deepest feeling; a fondest memory; a thought most worth the sharing.

And there is nothing quite like lovely paper for helping you say the things most in need of being said.

Today—as it has since 1801—lovely paper means Crane.

You can tell this paper by its texture, since Crane makes only one quality of paper—100% rag fiber.

Crane offers just the paper that says all the nicest things about you—the colors of your own choice, or the most pristine white; bordered note paper (each border hand-brushed); the most exquisite invitations and announcements.

Your experienced, selected dealer in Crane stationery is your most reliable source of paper information. He will advise you on a wide variety of weaves, weights and sizes; and on all matters concerning engraving. Crane and Co., Inc., Dalton, Massachusetts.

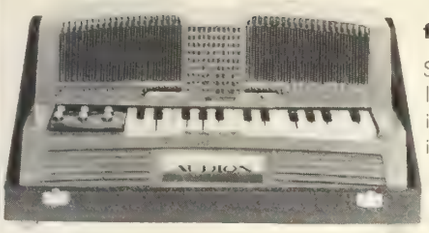
You'll find beauty in the rich Wurlitzer tone...from brilliant treble to resonant bass. Beauty in the quick, eager response to the touch. Beauty in design and construction, too.

For instance, Wurlitzer Hexagonal Soundboard (amplifier) has 8 to 10 percent more amplifying area than soundboards in pianos of comparable size. The Tonecrafted Hammers are moth-proof; moisture-proof. The super-strong back has six posts of laminated oak. Your Wurlitzer Piano Dealer can point out dozens more Wurlitzer features that insure a lifetime of musical enjoyment . . . and there are more than 50 styles and finishes for your selection.

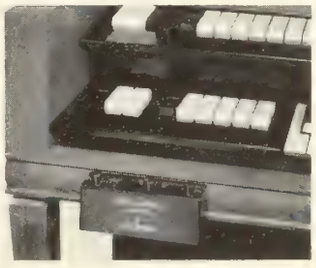


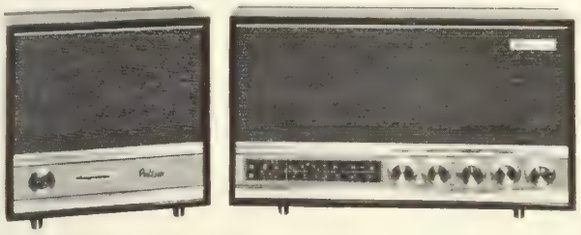
While you're browsing, remember this: each Christmas, more people choose Wurlitzer than any other piano!

WURLITZER WORLD'S LARGEST BUILDER OF PIANOS AND ORGANS
DE KALB, ILLINOIS

Fun for anyone, but most of all, for a John Philip Sousa child:

A wind instrument with a keyboard, the Melodica Piano 26 is simultaneously blown like a trumpet, played like a piano. Number-system instruction book tells all. Hohner. $24.95.



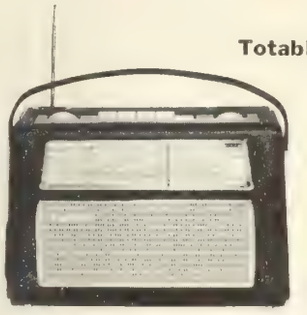


Home-for-Christmas present for a tintinnabulating family:

Six-chord electric organ only 20 inches long travels with the ease of a flute, is a song-fest natural. Self-teaching books available. Audion. $40.

New upbeats and downbeats for a family fond of rhythm:

The aptly named Funmaster is an attachment for a Conn organ that will summon up (with the push of a button) the fevered beat of a flamenco guitar or banjo or cymbals. $99.



For a serious music lover still unblessed by a hi-fi system:

Slim table radio with separate speaker. Excellent reception does much more than justice to both long- and short-hair broadcasts. Magnavox. Model 28, AM/FM stereo. $139.90.

Totable treasure for any off-to-school cat or traveling music bug:

Portable AM/FM, short-wave/long-wave radio in a good-looking black vinyl case. Bonus: you can plug in a record turntable and use radio as speaker/amplifier. Norelco. $99.95.

The final fillip, and a nice one—a gift to yourself:

Portable television with an 11-inch screen. A good "extra" set for anywhere in the house—particularly your own bedroom. Weight: 12 pounds. General Electric. $100.

IT'S INCREDIBLE! FANTASTIC!

CHARM the COBRA

NO CORDS!
NO WIRES!
NO STRINGS!

Nothing attached to the hand-woven basket. It sits alone and without a second lay when the right tunes are played on the SNAKE CHARMER'S PIPE. Cobra slides back in basket. The Black Cobra "appears" and inch its way up-up—the more you play the higher he rises until he sets swaying side to side as if in a hypnotic trance. If the music stops down he will slither into the basket. The lid closes and all is quiet. This electronic marvel is perfect for office, desk, bars, dens, parties, all crazy occasions.

This is the man who makes some of America's finest carpets

"We will make only good carpets and we will make them with complete integrity and dedicated craftsmanship . . . among them will be some of America's finest carpets — each will be worthy of the Patcraft label". This was the policy of I. V. Chandler, President and owner of Patcraft Mills, when he named the mills after his daughter "Pat". It still is.

I. V. Chandler, President, Patcraft Mills, Inc.

This is one of his fine "501" carpets — pile of DuPont nylon . . . about 10^{95} a sq. yd

Some of the most beautiful, long-wearing carpets in America today are the certified "501" carpets made by Patcraft. Patcraft now offers 12 distinctive "501" carpets—an unmatched collection of textures, Fashion-First styling and colors—each carpet tested and approved for the DuPont "501" certification mark. About $7.95 to $18.95 a sq. yd.

Illustrated is "West Park". The luxurious, high-low embossed pile is 100% DuPont continuous filament nylon—unbeatable for long wear and easy care. Mothproof, stain resistant, double backed with jute. Available in 13 decorator colors "West Park" is one of America's finest and most beautiful carpets in the moderate price range—about $10.95 a sq. yd. Be sure to ask for Patcraft "501" certified carpets!

BLACK IRON STOVE CAST IN MINIATURE

This old-fashioned black iron cook stove is authentic down to the last detail. Oven door opens, burner lids come off. Seven piece set of utensils are tiny replicas of the ones Great Grandmother used. There's even a tiny swan iron and stand. Stove is 6½" high, sturdily made. A delightful gift for the little girl housekeeper or as an unusual collector's item. No C.O.D.'s

Now—sleep under a blanket of warm air...

Warms with air instead of weight

THE BEDTIME LUXURY of warmth without weight can be yours to enjoy this winter . . . and yours to give to the favored names on your gift list. Thanks to British ingenuity with woolens, Shillcraft Therma-Weave Blankets provide 50% more warmth than other blankets of the same weight, by actual laboratory tests. Because of their lightness, they are remarkably comfortable with no unpleasant pressure on body or feet.

USE IT ALL-YEAR-ROUND. Unlike other blankets, a Shillcraft Therma-Weave can be used in every season, eliminating storage problems. For here is the first successful use in blankets of the thermal insulation principle. You know how that works in thermal underwear and thermos bottles — a pocket of still air insulates against outside temperatures.

Similarly, thousands of tiny air cells are woven into Therma-Weave blankets, so that in winter a light cover on top turns each cell into a still air pocket that keeps out the cold. In summer, use the blanket without a cover. Then the air cells let your body "breathe," dissipating heat and allowing you to sleep comfortably cool.

SO BEAUTIFUL it has the look of a fine bedspread. And durable too. That's why you'll find Shillcraft Therma-Weave blankets in the first-class cabins of great transatlantic liners, and in the best suites of leading luxury hotels.

FULL RANGE OF POPULAR COLORS IN FOUR BASIC SIZES. White, pink, blue, yellow, green, beige, lilac, peach.

CHOOSE 100% WOOL OR COTTON. Both are suitable for winter and summer. Want downy-soft luxury? Then take satin-edged WOOL —a stunning gift for shower, wedding, baby or business remembrance. Or if you prefer COTTON — it has self-hemmed edges and is completely machine washable.

THESE ARE THE ORIGINAL THERMA-WEAVE BLANKETS — NOT SOLD IN STORES. AVAILABLE ONLY FROM SHILLCRAFT at money-saving, direct-from-importer prices. Use the handy coupon below.

ORDER NOW for fast service. Mail to Shillcraft, Dept. 1G, 106 Hopkins Place, Baltimore, Md. 21201.

Jordan's

GENUINE VIRGINIA HAM

GIFT GIVING? DO YOU KNOW WHAT MAKES A JORDAN HAM THE WORLD'S MOST DELICIOUS HAM?

It's the way we prepare it . . . slowly, taking almost a year for proper aging and curing. These days everyone seems to be in a hurry . . . 30 days, 60 days and a ham is called "aged". Not a Jordan ham! The long, slow, hand-tended smoking and curing is the secret of Jordan's rich, delicious, sweet nutlike flavor. No other ham tastes as good as these Jordan hams . . . smoked for weeks over hickory fires, aged for months while succulent flavors permeate deep within the meat. Just before shipping, we complete this gourmet ham with our own brown sugar glaze and bake in wine. Your vintage Jordan ham arrives fully cooked, ready to serve hot or cold. It's an epicurean treat . . . and if you're looking for an unusual, outstanding holiday gift, a Jordan ham is your answer! Gift packaged with holiday card, illustrated carving and serving tips, and colorful background on this authentic colonial tradition. Bone-In Jordan hams, 8-15 lbs., $1.98 per lb. postpaid in the U.S. Boneless, 6-8 lbs., $2.98 per lb., postpaid in the U.S. Satisfaction (and wonderful eating pleasure) guaranteed.

PORTRAIT IN OILS

THE PERFECT GIFT

Magnificently painted on canvas from old or new photos, by outstanding European and American portrait painters. A superb living likeness in full color is executed in rich oils.

Unbelievable works of art at unbelievably low prices

Size 12"x16" to 30"x40" 39.95 TO 399.95

12 MONTH EXTENDED PAY PLAN AVAILABLE

Our portraits in oil are TRUE WORKS OF ART, painted on pure linen canvas from your photograph and NOT painted on top of an enlargement of your photo as is the method of other commercial portrait services.
No longer need you envy those fortunate enough to own a family oil portrait. Have you a photo of some loved one whose memory you wish to perpetuate?
Compare our works of art with others selling up to $1000.

For EXTRAORDINARY PEOPLE!

THE FRANKENSTEIN MONSTER lives again—on a diet of tiny batteries. He moves with menacing gestures and creepy sounds, gradually increasing in intensity until he draws himself up for a climactic effort. At this moment his trousers fall, revealing a pair of bony knees and red striped shorts. He blushes crimsonly, and shuts himself off with embarrassment. Height 14". $5.95 (Add 65¢ for batteries and postage.)

A (Phony) WALL SAFE can be your finest status symbol. It's really only a front, to hang on the wall. (Behind a picture?) Guaranteed to frustrate burglars and impress your friends. It also serves a useful purpose as a coin bank. Dimensions: 8x8". $2.50 including postage.

KNEEL AND PRAY PUTTER. This crazy looking thing really works: You have to kneel to use it, meanwhile offering a silent prayer for accuracy. Hydramite head with 6" plastic handle, and a leather thong to hang it on your bag. Perfect for the "morning after" as you don't have so far to fall; and no one can see your knees knocking on those tricky downhill three footers. The hole is only as big as it looks, and with this putter you're in an ideal position to see the hole and read the green! $2.25 including postage.

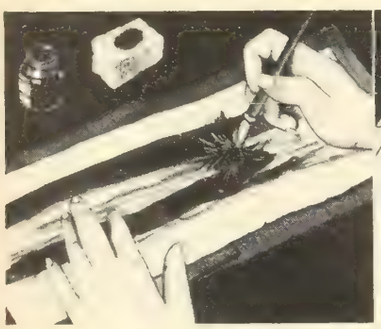
BRAND NEW CRAFT...

so exquisite,

it's hard to believe

how easily

it's done!



Capture forest and field on paper, using ferns, fresh or dried leaves, vines, flowers, etc., and Takashimaya's versatile BASIC PAPER KIT.

Make truly original Christmas cards, greeting cards, pictures, screens. Decorate lamp shades. Use compositions under glass tops of tables. The possibilities are unlimited! The results — thrilling! (An exciting, new type of project for school and camp Arts & Crafts Classes!)

House Beautiful Editors devoted 6½ pages of last July's issue to this new "nature craft," and readers responded with overwhelming enthusiasm.

You can master the technique in a half hour. Create beautiful effects in minutes! Just 4 simple steps:

1. Background

2. Leaves

3. Veil

4. Snow or clouds

SHEER SUPPORT HOSE

MADE WITH NYLON AND LYCRA® SPANDEX, TO BRING YOU SHEER SEAMLESS SUPPORT STOCKINGS WITH UNBELIEVABLE COMFORT AND FIT!

If you've worn support stockings before, you'll marvel at the amazing difference. If you've shied away from them because of their heavy, unflattering look, you're in for a big surprise because our "Sheer Supporters" are like no other seamless support stocking. You'll marvel how a stocking so sheer can trim your ankle so beautifully, lift your calf gently but firmly, and shape your legs to give new beauty, and most important of all give you all day relief from leg fatigue. WEAR THEM—No one but you will be the wiser unless you tell can't help telling your friends. The secret is "Spun Sheer" Lycra® flat-knit. They feel just like conventional nylons that give no support whatever.

MUST BE WORN TO BE BELIEVED

TRY THEM—You'll send for more—for mother, your friends and for yourself. Guaranteed to outwear any ordinary support hose. 8½-11 Short, Medium or Long lengths. Muted Beige or Deep Blush Taupe. Gift-boxed 5.99 ppd.

CRAZY GIFTS

FLOPPY CLOCK
IT REALLY RUNS!

Get the time of your life . . . it's the craziest! A clock that actually "BENDS" and still keeps time. Twist it—Turn it—Flip it—Flop it—makes no difference. Hang it on a tree, droop it over a table and the hands still move and bend to the contours taken by the clock. It's fantastic—no one believes it actually works, but we guarantee it. Operates on 110 AC. $12.98 plus 50¢ postage.

FRISKY WHISKEY BOTTLE

FOR BAR FUN

The zaniest "Fifth of Whiskey" you'll ever find. Looks like a "fifth" but when you pour it WOW!—it goes "wild"—jumps up and down and all around. Turn it back over and it stops. The intriguing label (150 proof, aged by radiation) compels one to pick up the bottle to try a snort—then the fun begins (Add your own whiskey). Battery Operated Novelty.

Executive WASTE BASKET BALL

INDOOR SPORT OF BUSY EXECUTIVES

America's new—nutty sport "Waste-Basket-Ball" fits ALL waste-baskets—Now, when you roll up that waste paper try for a basket off of the beautiful, walnut finish miniaturized wood backboard (8½ x 12") Comes complete with gold-like rim and rope net. Perfect gift for husbands, boyfriends, students, athletes—everyone Great fun! Who knows—this could end up an Olympic event—don't take a chance on missing out on the team $3.98 plus 50¢ postage.

Oh, Isles of Greece

From the blue skies of sunny Greece comes the Evzone soldier in starched white and colorful trimmings. Miss Karpathos is lacy and starchy, too, her apron is embroidered. Both are 6" tall. $2.95 ea. ppd. Color catalogue and cut-out kit 25c or free with order. International Dolls, HG11, 855 Woodmere Pl., Woodmere, N. Y.

Capsule camouflage

What a pretty way to carry pills, artificial sweeteners, or any tablets that must travel with you! You'll be delighted to display these pill boxes of antiqued gold with colorful fake gems. They come in three disguises: miniature purse, clock, and Christmas tree. $2.50 each ppd. from Bonnie Sue Gifts, HG11, Box 253, Oceanside, N. Y.

Brush off

What a beautiful way to banish lint and dust! Fancy gold fringe takes this foam lint brush out of the realm of the purely practical —though a few pats work cleaning wonders on men's or women's clothing. A lovely touch on dresser or vanity, a useful gift. $2.95 ppd. Rare Gift Co., HG11, 380 Lexington Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

Biblical inspiration

In these troubled days it is of great comfort to know that it is possible to find inspirational messages daily from a single wooden box containing over 150 tiny scrolls. Select one at random with a wooden stick to give help over difficult times. Wooden box of scrolls, $1 ppd. Spencer Gifts, 623 Spencer Bldg., Atlantic City, N. J.

Dash and carry

From kitchen to table, from pantry to patio, from galley to deck, a pair of seasoners. Milk glass salt and pepper shakers, 3½" tall, fit into Idaho pine wooden base with brass-like ring handle. $1.95 plus 25c post. Send 10c for catalogue of Early American accessories. Medford Products, HG11, 752 Fulton St., Farmingdale, N. Y.

Timely clock

This decorator-designed wall clock has rich simplicity, with its handrubbed gold basket-weave face panel with walnut undertones. Brass hands, trim and hour markers on antiqued white dial. 8 day or electric movement with sweep second hand. 14" sq., $12.95 plus 10% fed. tax. Ppd. Morse, HG11, 12960 Bradley, Sylmar, Cal.

Spice at the ready

Hang neat spice canisters over your mixing center to measure out as you prepare soups, casseroles or mix a marinade. Six wood canisters in teak or provincial finish on 16½" l. holder with labels. Neatly stoppered with cork. Catalogue 25c. $5.95 ea. ppd. Scandicrafts, HG11, 185 Ashford Avenue, Dobbs Ferry, New York.

Dress up the tree

It's time to deck the halls with gay holiday trimmings—the brighter the better. This washable burlap skirt for the Christmas tree fills the bill. You may use it as is, or decorate to the hilt with sparkles and sequins. White with red fringe, red-green, natural-green, green-red. $5.95 ppd. Jo-Mar Designs, HG-11, Box 287, Burlington, N. C.

Springerle for sweets

Designs from German Springerle cookie molds are reproduced on frosted panels on a hand-crafted glass jar for candies or decorated Christmas cookies—preferably from your own kitchen. Jar with finial top by Imperial, is 9" high. $6.50 plus 55c post. Here's How Inc., HG61, 15 W. 26th St., New York, N. Y.

Calling all K"ID's"

Your favorite youngster's bike will never get lost in a crowd when it's outfitted with K"ID's". These aluminum license plates come in red or green, carry up to six characters. Nickname and age will do for identity. Reflector letters, adhesive backs. 2 for $1 ppd. Spear Engineering, HG11, 102-6 Spear Bldg., Colorado Springs, Colo.

Tabu for you

There is nothing to banish winter doldrums and make you feel like the most enchanting creature at every holiday party like the heady, spicy fragrance of Tabu. 3-ounce spray mist cologne in a chic black bottle shown is $3. Tabu by Dana perfume, $3-$18.50; cologne, $2.50-$10.50. Add tax and 25c post. B. Altman, HG11, New York.

Busy bees

Measure on measure—1, ½, ¼, ⅓ pottery cups nest one over another to form a yellow beehive for a busy you-know-what. Any helpmeet would appreciate these natty kitchen aids. All right, fellows, get busy, put a set in her stocking! $1 each postpaid. Bancroft's, HG11, Dept. 33-007, 251 East Fifth Street, St. Paul 1, Minn.

THE VENDOME BAG

An ingenious bag of many uses for men or women. Take it right to your plane seat. Two closed compartments hold a surprising quantity of clothes and toilet articles. Center, open compartment is perfect for business file or lady's handbag. In Green or Blue Plaid, Brown Duck with Suntan trim, or Blue Duck with Red trim, $21.45. Unbelievable! But it's true. Yes, a year and a half of scientific research has actually produced these delightful toy Growing Animals that will grow like mad right before your very eyes. Yes, grow faster and faster, bigger and bigger every day. Kids from 6 to 60 will be thrilled with excitement and delight, shriek with wild laughter as Ozzie the Ostrich grows his own full-feathered plume, Simba the Lion grows a long flowing mane, Smiley the Porcupine grows needles of hair, Sleepy the Hound Dog grows sad droopy ears, and Scamper the Squirrel grows a big bushy tail. And they keep growing bigger and bigger for weeks and weeks of thrills and excitement.

These amazing toy pets actually feed and start to grow as soon as you "lead" them to a plastic cup or glass of water. The secret is a new scientific process that releases a horticultural seed on a special absorbent porous material that starts the miracle of life and growth. No food or special care is required to grow your own animal circus and even give the little fellows "Haircuts" if you want. They are not available in stores as yet. You must order direct by mail, so DON'T DELAY. Be the first in your neighborhood to own these delightful little Growing Animals, and watch your friends and neighbors gasp with wonder as they grow bigger before their eyes.

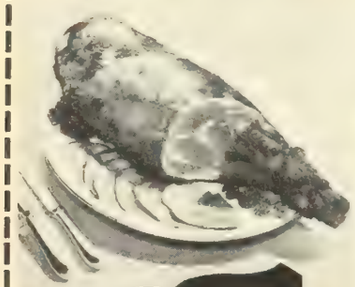
176 Cutting Edges of This All-Purpose

Gourmet's Carver

Glide thru ROASTS, HAM, FOWL

Actually has 22 "corruserrated" cutting edges per inch of blade!

Now—for the first time in this country—the revolutionary "corruserrated" Sheffield Carver with 176 cutting blades! Gives you WAFER THIN slices that retain ALL the juices. Sharpens itself as you use it!



Here's the most amazing Carving Knife ever designed for the pleasures of eating! Ordinary knives tear thru meat and squeeze the juicy goodness out—but not this revolutionary patented invention! The All-Purpose Gourmet's Carver is made with a remarkable 8-inch blade actually containing 176 cutting edges. This amazing edge has razor-sharp blades alternating with chisel-action ridges, with grooves to prevent clogging. It's unbelievable how Gourmet's Carver glides thru ham, beef, fowl, game—never disturbing the juices within. Gourmet's Carver never needs sharpening! Continuous use forms a constantly new razor-sharp cutting edge.

This is the remarkable "corruserrated" edge that actually flows through tough leather. You can slice WAFER THIN meat, vegetables, tomatoes, onions, etc.—make your dinner table a joy to look at.

Carver is made in England of finest SHEFFIELD STAINLESS STEEL with PERMANENT MIRROR FINISH. Beautifully white and balanced handle for sure grip and perfect slicing. Order NOW for luxurious dining at home—or give as most unusual holiday gift. LIFETIME GUARANTEE covering replacement or reconditioning WITHOUT CHARGE. Attractively sleeved and boxed—ONLY $6 POSTPAID, or C.O.D. plus postage. Extra-heavy CAPTAIN'S CARVER with 9 in. blade and white handle only $8.

What you need to know about plumbing

The size, shape and style of your bathroom are determined by your pocketbook and the available space. But no matter how commodious it looks, a bathroom that does not work properly can be a bitter and expensive experience. So that all your work and plans don't go down the drain of disappointment, here are a few rules and regulations that you should know about plumbing and plumbing fixtures.

Where do you buy plumbing fixtures?

If you have never built a house or remodeled one, you may wonder where you buy a lavatory or bathtub. They are not for sale in department stores as are furniture and carpeting. You must buy them from the plumbing contractor who will install them. The price he gives you covers both the cost of the fixtures and the installation. Also included in the plumber's bailiwick is all of the piping necessary to supply water and take it away. All of this work is included in his price or bid, and the bid is higher or lower according to the type of fixtures you select. Look for the well-known brand names when you are considering the purchase of bathroom fixtures, for the major manufacturers guarantee their products.

Why do some plumbing fixtures cost more than others?

Bathroom fixtures are made of three basic materials—vitreous china, cast iron and steel—and the prices vary accordingly. China is the most expensive; steel, the least. All toilets are made of china; lavatories may be made in any of the three materials; bathtubs are made only in cast iron and steel. Specific prices are difficult to give since costs vary from manufacturer to manufacturer. No matter what kind of material is used, colored fixtures will cost a little more than those made with a white finish.

How to handle plumbing repairs

Most of us feel rather helpless when things go wrong with the plumbing. Stopped up drains, leaky faucets, distant rumblings of pipes in the basement cause understandable concern. The important thing to remember is that in most cases you need a professional's help. You should know enough about your plumbing system to locate the cut-off valves so that you can stop flooding from fixtures. But don't try to solve the problem by taking up the handiest wrench and attacking a leaky pipe. The chances are you'll double the amount of damage that a plumber will have to fix. If you are curious as to what makes things go wrong, here are some common causes and cures.

LEAKY FAUCETS are caused by worn-out washers which can be replaced. If the new washer wears out quickly (a week or so), this may mean that the faucet itself is damaged on the inside and a new one is needed. It may have been turned off too tightly. Faucets that are in good working order should close completely with just a light twist of the fingers.

POOR WATER PRESSURE can result from too many bends and turns in the piping system, too small pipes, or clogging somewhere in the system by mineral deposits from the water. The solution usually requires replacing the piping system. To avoid it, always have the plumbing carefully checked by an expert before buying a new house or moving into an apartment.

THE FLAME TAMER

With the use of a simple device on the burner of your range, food can be cooked over very low controllable heat or kept warm for a long time without scorching. The Flame Tamer, a rimmed disk of chromed steel measuring about 8 inches in diameter, works on either a gas or electric range. You simply place it over a burner and it acts as a buffer between the heat and your cooking pan. With a Flame Tamer you can even make a cream sauce in a heavy saucepan instead of a double boiler, reheat a small casserole without using the oven, heat rolls wrapped in aluminum foil. A detachable handle makes it easy to move from one burner to another. Under $2 at housewares departments. By Tricolator.

Fresh coffee awaits late risers, kept just warm enough in the Chemex over the Flame Tamer.

Cream sauce is smooth and unscorched, made in a heavy saucepan right on the burner, with a Flame Tamer to buffer the heat.

MIEHLMANN

Casserole heats quickly on top of the stove with a Flame Tamer, which tempers the heat of the burner so the glass won't break.

DRAFT BEER AND DRY MARTINI quaffers will hail two new dispensers for home bars:

• A refrigerated draft beer cooler on wheels. Measuring 37 by 23 by 24½ inches, it holds a quarter keg—170 glasses' worth—of any brand beer. There is room inside for chilling beer glasses and snacks. Aside from its nostalgic value to draft beer lovers, the Draftmeister offers a practical advantage: it keeps the clutter of beer cans out of the family refrigerator. Available in canary, coppertone, ebony, white and turquoise. Sold through Master Distributors, Inc., 2201 Park Towne Circle, Sacramento 25, Calif.

• An aerosol vermouth dispenser. For those who like just a flavoring of vermouth in their Martinis—or in their veal scaloppine or their marinated mushrooms—the push-button can releases a mist of extra dry. Whisp may prove to be a trend-starter in the packaging of bar beverages. The spillproof bottle holds ½ pint, costs $2.40. Barton Distilling Co., 134 N. La Salle St., Chicago 2, Ill.

ANTIQUE FURNITURE reproductions are now for sale in the Museum Shop of Old Sturbridge Village, Mass., the reconstructed New England hamlet of the Eighteen Hundreds. The porringer-top Queen Anne tea table, below, is one of the eighteen-piece New England maple collection handmade by Biggs for the Village. It is for sale at $145 and bears a tag telling the history of the original. Also sold in the Museum Shop are brass, ironwork, Delftware and glass reproductions.

Old Sturbridge Village offers the opportunity to see firsthand how the crafts of early New England were practiced. At work in their shops are a weaver, tinsmith, candlemaker, miller, blacksmith and printer, among others. One artisan demonstrates the art of "theorem painting," which was done on velvet with homemade stencils by schoolgirls and amateur artists of the early Eighteen Hundreds.

Autumn high point at Old Sturbridge is an old-fashioned Thanksgiving Dinner served in the Tavern. Menu includes roast turkey with cornbread stuffing, Indian pudding and mulled cider. Better make reservations now for next year. Write: Thanksgiving 1963, 64, Old Sturbridge Village, Sturbridge, Mass.

Your thermostats

Where to locate them for greatest comfort

Once again the heating season is almost here and conditions soon will be ideal for playing that great American indoor game, "Adjusting the Thermostat." This game can (and probably will) be played in almost all houses, whether old or new. Houses built during the last forty years are likely to have at least one thermostat, and those of recent construction may have two, three or more.

Usually, the need for adjusting the thermostat for more or less heat stems from poor location of the device by the builder, the heating contractor or the owner. Sometimes the thermostat is placed where it cannot possibly do its job of controlling room comfort. If it is correctly located, there will be little need for frequent adjustment.

A thermostat is simply a temperature-controlled switch which can turn on or turn off the heating system in the winter and the cooling system in the summer. To provide comfort, the device must sense and then control the average air temperature of a room or space. If the thermostat is subject to extra heat (or cooling) which does not affect the surrounding air, the device will not control properly and will need constant regulation.

Basically, the thermostat must be located so that it will not be influenced by false heat sources; at the same time it must be located so that the natural air circulation will pass over the device and make it typical of average room temperature. The best location for a thermostat in a particular house will be found by making an individual analysis of that house and applying the following principles:

1. Locate the thermostat approximately in the center of the area it controls.

2. Place on an inside wall, thus eliminating false cooling of the thermostat by the cold outside wall.

3. Place thermostat 5 feet above the floor—a good point in the air-flow pattern. At this height, air currents are unhampered in their contact with the wall.

4. Make certain that natural room air circulation will not be blocked in reaching the thermostat by irregular wall shapes, open doors, furniture or curtains.

Just as important as the precautions to take in locating your thermostat are the pitfalls to avoid. Here are some of them.

1. Direct sunlight. (Heat radiated to the thermostat via sunlight will play havoc with the control system.)

2. Glass windows or doors. (The thermostat, somewhat like the human body, will lose heat to these usually cold surfaces, thus causing a false response for additional heat.)

3. Normal heat sources, such as radiators, registers, etc., and floor and table lamps. (Heat from any of these sources will influence the thermostat.)

4. Supply ducts or heating pipes for other rooms. (Since these are generally located in walls, their influence is often overlooked.)

5. Fireplace. (Avoid direct radiation from fire in fireplace as well as effects caused by draft in chimney.)

6. All heat-producing appliances. (Range, oven, refrigerator, washer, dryer, etc.)

HAVE YOU THE COURAGE TO BE Elegant?

"Today the cult of informality is pervasive," wrote the late Frederick Lewis Allen a dozen years ago. And no one in the early Fifties would have disagreed. "The Big Change" that started when the guns of August put a stop to Edwardian elegance had reached its climax. Mid-century was the heyday of come-and-get-it barbecues and turkey-and-ham buffets, of dungarees and "don't dress" evenings, of the vanished dining room and sitting on the floor. Two world wars, the depression, the decline in servants and the enormous rise in building costs had prompted in America a way of living and entertaining as devoid of frills as a businessman's lunch.

In the early Fifties, elegance was suspect per se. On the one hand the word was confused with formality, on the other hand, with ostentation. "Among the sons and daughters of the rich there is a vague, surviving guilt complex," Allen reported. And the guilt complex appeared to be contagious. It made informality—defined as the antithesis of elegance—seem "democratic, unpretentious, friendly." What's more, in the early Fifties the wave of conformism was at its peak. Many people were scrupulously informal because they were afraid to be anything else.

Today, H&G is happy to observe that the era of forced, frightened Bohemianism is over. People with imagination and courage are daring to be elegant again. They see clearly now that to give any less than their best is a poor token of friendliness—and to live prosaically when they don't have to is no more democratic than Marie Antoinette and her milkmaids at Le Petit Trianon.

This change did not, of course, take place in a season. It started when people, visually starved by the no-nonsense functionalism of the early postwar years, began to embellish their houses with richer, warmer materials, with antiques and artifacts gathered on their travels, with fine china and crystal, paintings and sculpture. The trend gained impetus when resourceful hostesses began to realize that the lack of servants was no impediment to serving a superbly cooked meal from a beautifully arranged buffet, or to seating guests comfortably at prettily set tables. And the reaction toward elegance received another push this year when the little-nothing dress was finally supplanted in chic by the glamorous long-skirted look for evening parties.

The new courage to be elegant is founded on imagination and taste—not money nor long hours of labor. On a strictly material plane, in fact, new materials, new finishes, new equipment have made even traditional elegance more easily attainable today than it ever was before. But today's elegance has nothing to do with formality for formality's sake. It is based on an esthetic: the "refined gracefulness" which is Webster's first definition of the word. You will see many facets of it in this issue—in the apartment on page 218, in the house on page 260, in the marvelous new kind of party, invented by H&G, on pages 224-231. You will be seeing many more examples in the issues to come.

Personal taste—the great blender

In its own way, the Manhattan apartment of architect Armand Bartos and his wife is beautiful proof of the observation that a classic is produced by the co-operation of the author and the public. The classic, in this case, is not a tome, but a series of rooms. The authors are a staggeringly impressive group ranging from Picasso to Le Corbusier, and Mr. and Mrs. Bartos—very privately—are the public.

The apartment itself is a duplex cliff dwelling not unlike dozens of its ilk—spacious, comfortable, bright and architecturally unidentified enough to be lived in in any number of ways. Any style might be superimposed on it—French, Italian, English or Mississippi Steamboat. But since the Bartoses are collectors of early twentieth-century paintings and furniture, the ambiance they have created can only be called classic contemporary—the period that began around 1914 and ended, give or take a little, in the Forties. Their paintings, sculpture and chairs are almost all of this period, but their taste in rugs and bibelots is refreshingly catholic. In the living room, for example, the Persian silk rug with prayer motifs is nineteenth century, but it makes an apt companion for Mies van der Rohe's Barcelona chairs of polished steel and leather—probably the most famous chairs in contemporary design. Next to the sofa is a chair designed in 1928 by Le Corbusier. It is one of the earliest and best examples of the use of tubular steel. A stunning three-dimensional composition of paintings, sculpture and bibelots glorifies one whole wall of the room. At one end of it, a Brancusi bronze, dramatized by its elevation on a tall handsome pedestal, serves as a prelude to two equally illustrious paintings—a large Joán Miró and a Juan Gris. Below them, on a large marble bench, is a procession of figures that begins with a Japanese bronze and ends, about a thousand years later, with a shadow-box collage by Joseph (Continued on page 221)

In the living room, the works of Miró, Juan Gris and Brancusi are counterpoints for an old silk carpet, Mies van der Rohe's wonderful chairs.

Cornell. Mr. Bartos is an architect without as much time for domestic architecture as he would like (he is far too busy being what architects call a general practitioner), but he gets a certain amount of comparable satisfaction from designing furniture. Both the dining table and the sideboard in the dining room took shape on his drawing board (they date back to 1949). Of steel and ash burl, an intricately grained wood the color of amber, both pieces have extraordinary elegance. The table extends to seat sixteen; the marble-topped sideboard consists of four sections—three with vari-sized drawers to accommodate different kinds of linen (deep drawers for cloths, shallow ones for mats of varied shape). The fourth section is vertically compartmented for trays. In another part of the room is a chest-on-legs fitted to hold silver flatware and a battery of serving pieces.

The dining chairs were designed by Marcel Breuer in 1925, a year after he had finished his studies at the Bauhaus. Of tubular steel, ebony and cane, they made his name one of the most important in the history of contemporary furniture, long before he had established his reputation as an architect. It is generally agreed that in all the subsequent variations on Breuer's tubular-steel theme by other designers, there has been no basic improvement.

The room's one great rollick of color is held in a canvas—Sam Francis' "Moby Dick," a choice-from-Heaven for a bone-white room with a white marble floor. There is one other painting in the room—a quiet little geometric study by van Doesburg, and one curiosity piece: a Biedermeier sewing stand shaped (with nineteenth-century humor) like the eye of a gigantic needle. Come up in the world, it now holds pretty bits of porcelain and (Continued on next page)

In the dining room, a wall of blazing color is balanced by a snow-white marble floor, the gleam of steel, the honeyed patina of ash burl.

Persian and Victorian flourishes embellish the simplicity of the master bedroom bronze. One of the Bartoses' prizes, Picasso's "Woman at Window," hangs in the master bedroom. Although the lady in question is painted in profile, she manages to keep both eyes on a fascinating collector's mélange. Across the tops of the ash burl and steel chests (more of Mr. Bartos' designs), marches another Bartos parade—this one of paperweights, clocks encased in crystal spheres, artifacts, African heads, tiny bronzes. A collection of a quite different sort is arrayed on the low table beside the sofa where the Bartoses, having no fear of sentiment, display their family photographs without apology. A whole clutch, all in miniature, all framed in silver, gilt and velvet, shares the table top with an astonishing companion: an avant-garde marble sculpture by Étienne Hajdu.

While the curtains, bedspread and upholstery in this room are as plain as fabrics can be, the rugs are masterpieces of pattern—the one an eighteenth-century Indian Mille Fleurs, the other, an eighteenth-century Persian. On the latter, in front of the sofa, stands an old Korean war drum, a partner of the one used as a coffee table in the living room. To frighten off marauders in ancient days, the drums were placed under a waterfall to create the roar of an angry (but nonexistent) army. Pure Oriental guile, the trick seems to have worked. And in war or peace, the drums are exactly the right height for flowers, coffee cups and cigarettes.

The Bartoses never stop buying books (the second floor is full of them), never stop buying paintings. In all their years of collecting, they have sold only one, a Dufy, and wish today they had not. But they are enormously "co-operative" with all their other painters, right to the point of hanging a Picasso print in their kitchen (you can see it on our cover). In that room, the flavor is rather more haute-cuisine-Gallic than early twentieth century. But, as the Bartoses have observed with epicurean justice, what could possibly be more classic than a French kitchen?

The master bedroom is a quadruple shrine for comfort, paintings, carpets and memorabilia.

How to give a marvelous

NEW KIND OF PARTY!

H&G has invented a new kind of dinner party for busy people who enjoy elegance as much as they enjoy a chance to relax. Here are the party's essential points:

A newly late start—nine o'clock—so that hosts and guests alike have time to tuck their children in bed, talk over the day's doings. dress for the evening at an easy pace and have a first quiet drink by themselves. Or they would have time to drop in, before or after dressing, at a must-go cocktail do.

A shortened cocktail hour so that no one has to stave off hunger with tidbits, thereby killing an appreciative appetite for the superlative food to come.

A streamlined menu and new ways to serve it that make the meal a leisurely one, yet bring it to a close in time for anyone who must leave by midnight. Without hesitation, traditional ways are abandoned in order to help the party flow. Sometimes the first course arrives in the living room with the drinks. Or it might be dessert that is served in the living room along with the coffee. Or coffee, perhaps, is served at the dining table immediately following dessert.

A new and enchanting way to dress that makes the women look their prettiest and puts a polish on everyone's spirits. Not only the hostess but the guests appear in the new long party look—clothes that are comfortable. easy to move in, but with refreshing grace and elegance.

On the next five pages you will find an assortment of ideas for the food, the decorations and the serving at H&G's new kind of party. And on page 230 you will see a gala case history of one such party happily in action.

The curtain goes up

LEFT

Instant ignition for festivities: a magnificent just-for-the-party bouquet in the hall. Or, even better, a pair, like these lavish mounds of richly colored Mexican paper roses, each spangled with a string of tiny Christmas-tree lights. With real flowers, such a gesture might seem too extravagant (unless it's midsummer and you have a flourishing garden). But the paper variety you can pack away when the evening is over and bring out for many repeat performances. They might even become your own special party tradition.

BELOW LEFT

On-the-spot first course for nine o'clock arrivals: antipasto served from a cart as in Italian restaurants. A life-saver for the ravenous guest whose lunch was a sandwich on the run, an antipasto cart is also a great service simplifier for the servantless hostess. The variety of tidbits you offer is limited only by the size of your teacart, and the variety you have to choose from—sliced vegetables, smoked and marinated fish, pâtés, etc.—is as long as it is tempting. A note of caution: if you don't plan to provide your guests with plates and forks (finger food is a lot easier to manage with a drink in hand), avoid extremely drippy concoctions and add to the tray plenty of breads in bite-size pieces.

Another peripatetic first course: soup served on individual trays. Any clear soup in a pretty mug takes well to living room service. The trays can be set up ahead of time, the soup ladled out at the last minute. For an unexpected—and aromatic—garnish, provide stirring whisks made from bundles of fresh herbs.

Dinner waits in the wings

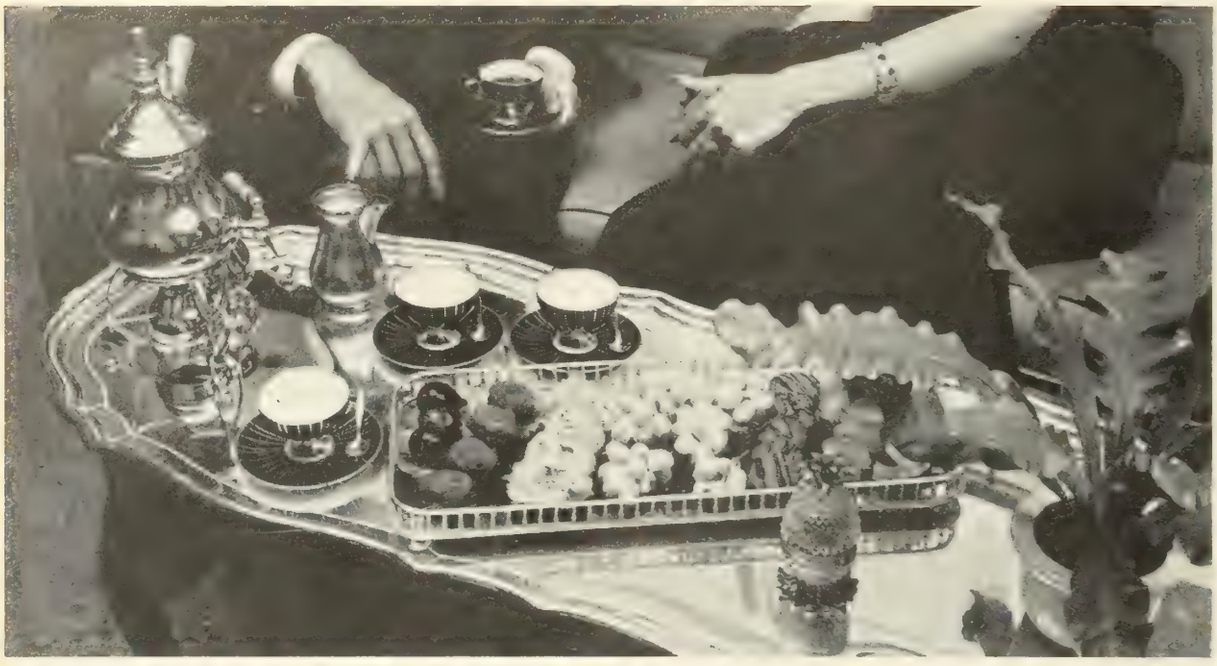
"Do it ahead and if you can't, don't do it," is or ought to be the motto of the hostess who wants to enjoy her party. With a well-chosen stable of equipment to keep food hot or cold you can cook your meal in advance, set it up on the sideboard and forget about it until you walk into the dining room. Among our favorites: that old stand-by, the chafing dish, and the electric warming tray. (Others: the electric fry pan or casserole, the double bowl for keeping ice under a cold dish.)

LEFT

Close-up of the newest in electric warming trays in action: Toast all the English muffins ahead, set them in the lower-level warming drawer of the General Electric tray, and they'll still be hot when you ladle out the rarebit.

Secret weapon for a busy hostess: a repertoire of durable decorations like this berry box of frankly fake but charming cyclamen that is always ready to go to the center of the table.

An all-but-vanished courtesy that's ripe for revival: the party favor. A box of pretty matches, a tiny pillbox, an amusing pencil tucked into a napkin add a surprise touch to a table. Everybody loves a present.



OPPOSITE PAGE

More do-it-ahead decoration: a co-ordinated wardrobe of linens and centerpieces (if you want to work your clothes into the act, why not?). Keyed to the Dufy painting over the buffet in Mr. N. L. Pines' dining room are Belgian linens by Leacock in H&G's Bristol Blue and Delphinium Blue and a permanent centerpiece of silk flowers by Helen Cole. Foil for the color-play: black-banded "Visconte" china by Richard-Ginori; International's "Vision" sterling, Kosta "King Karl" crystal. For shopping information, see page 298.

NEW KIND OF PARTY!

For the last act: a surprise

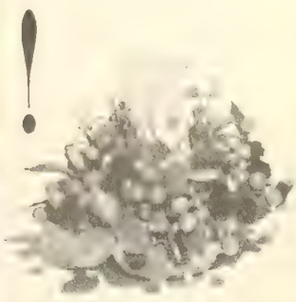
Dessert served in the living room (instead of the first course): petits fours, candied fruits and bite-sized bunches of sugar-frosted green grapes arranged on green plast leaves on a silver tray. This is one of the many ways you can vary H&G's nine-o'cloc party plan to fit individual circumstances.

BELOW LEFT
Servantless serving for a small dinner: the whole meal set on a teacart. You don't even have to go to the kitchen between courses if you provide one shelf of the cart with a capacious basket—preferably i a gay color—in which used plat and silver can be stored out of sight. On the table in Lee Tokman's apartment, another variation of the instant centerpiece: your silver candelabrum garlanded with wreaths of artificial flowers.

OPPOSITE PAGE
At the end of another party: coffee and liqueurs in the living room—in this case, Mr. N. L. Pines'. For a variation on the usual brandy or benedictine, try a choice of the dry white fruit eaux-de-vie: Quetsch, Mirabelle, Framboise, Kirsch, Eau-de-Vie de Poire, all served frosty cold.
For shopping information, see p



Towering dessert: a leaf-covered Styrofoam cone swirled with cherries, apricots, strawberries, pineapple chunks, orange sections impaled on bamboo skewers. Serve it with individual bowls of sugar for dipping.

Imaginative cooler for liqueurs: an antique copper fish-cooker packed with crushed ice. Carafes of Martinis, Manhattans made up ahead could be served in the same way during the cocktail hour.

Individual icing for a cold dessert: pretty pots-de-crème sitting in big balloon brandy glasses packed with shaved ice. An accessory of many uses: hardy translucent plastic leaves for coasters, doilies.

Another idea for on-hand table decoration: candle-in-a-glass set in a basket of berries. "No, they aren't real, they're plastic."

GALA TRYOUT

Served from chest in hall: champagne, cocktails

The hostess, Bill Blass, Mrs. Ian Ball

Mrs. Lucio Manisco, Mr. and Mrs. Ball

Donald Brooks, Miss Eugenia Sheppard

First course was served on scallop shells in living room

Like so many good ideas, H&G's new kind of dinner party for busy people was inspired by a conversation with a very busy person: Mrs. Lee Caldwell, professionally Helen Lee, the award-winning designer of children's clothes. One day when we were discussing parties, Mrs. Caldwell observed that she would enjoy parties more if they started later, so that she would have had time to rest and relax after coming home from the office. Right then our idea was born. "Let's invent a new kind of party," we said, "later than the usual dinner-at-eight, but not too late for breadwinners who like to get home by midnight." The hour we agreed on was nine. But a nine o'clock dinner party needs a different kind of menu and a new kind of organization so that the hostess, well-served or servantless, can keep the party moving without appearing to be making a deadline. We planned the following: hot shrimp ramekins, clams Giovanni, gigot en croute, beans primavera in tomato shells, cold orange soufflé, and for the wine throughout the meal, champagne. (See Master Menu Cook Book, page 277.)

Mrs. Caldwell was hostess. The guests included her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ball, and some of the busiest people in the New York fashion world. The hostess launched the new party in style by wearing a dress she had specially designed for it; all the other women came in their own chosen versions of the new long party look for private-party dressing.

As the guests arrived, they were offered a choice of cocktails or champagne which was served throughout the evening from festive magnums. Drink service moves smoothly at Mrs. Caldwell's she sets up the bar on a chest in the hall between living and din rooms where it creates no traffic jam and is well out of the way dinner preparations.

After a brief period for cocktails, the first course was serv in the living room: a choice of hot or cold seafood piled on sh nestled in trays of watercress. Then everyone moved along to dining room for the rest of the meal. Although Mrs. Caldwe dining table will easily seat twelve, she had elected to move it one end of the room as she sometimes likes to do, so that she co set it up as a buffet and seat her guests at card tables. Conversati is livelier at small tables, she believes, and once the conversati is in high gear, she doesn't like to break it up by moving to living room for coffee. This seemed a particularly good idea for c new later-hour party since any guest could leave gracefully, we w ured, when everyone rose from the table and adjourned to the l ing room for brandy. But that was one part of our party plan th failed to come off. Not a soul left until long after midnig

A flourish of carnation colors put Mrs. Caldwell's dining room in pa dress. Underskirts in shades of red and pink lined Ottavia's crisp wh lacy cloths; blossoms tucked in the bases of the hurricanes echoed blaze of Colorado Carnations on the buffet. Black porcelain place plat white porcelain and silver flatware were all from the new "Variation" collection designed by Tapio Wirkkala for Rosenthal. Also from Ros thal: goblets, champagne flutes. Centerpiece, wine coolers from Tiffa

RIGHT: *Two round tables in a large dining room are as happily adaptable to a small family meal (for which only one table is needed) as to a large dinner party (for which both tables are extended by extra leaves). The collection of Greek and Etruscan pottery set the color theme: browns, beiges and blacks surrounded by lots of off white. The origins of the pottery inspired the choice of furniture, too: fruitwood chairs with black leather seats in a design that might have been copied from a Greek mural; tables in the French Empire style that drew so much from the just then discovered ruins of Pompeii. DINING NEEDS AMBIANCE

Of all the activities that fill our days, the one most fraught with symbolism and humanistic overtones is dining. For dining means far more than mere physical refueling. To be worthy of the label "dining," a meal must be eaten in an atmosphere of relaxation, pervaded by feelings of fellowship and hospitality, and attended by conversation and friendly courtesies—all of which compose a ritual as nourishing to the spirit as food is to the body.

Although it is not impossible to achieve this beneficent state by a campfire in the wilds, an ambiance that delights the eye contributes immeasurably. While we may not be staring at the wall as we sit at the dinner table, we are more sensitive perhaps than we realize to what we see from the corners of our eyes. The colors, the lighting, the general atmosphere of the room inevitably affect both our appetites and our moods. Thus the purely visual impact is more important in a dining room than in any of the other rooms in the house where we tend to demand more complex comforts and conveniences.

Since it is often the background that makes the most vivid impression, the walls, the windows, the floor or even the ceiling might well be your starting point when you set out to create a special mood. A dining room is also a natural place to enjoy paintings and sculpture or to display a collection of lesser arts—any of which might keynote the theme to be carried out by everything else in the room. What kind of mood you aim to create is wholly a matter of personal taste and temperament. It might be quiet and relaxing or gay and stimulating, subtly elegant or bubbling with country charm. Each of the four dining rooms on these and the next two pages is in a quite different key, and each developed from a different starting point. But all afford the kind of ambiance in which either a family meal or a dinner party can be an event to be relished and remembered.

OPPOSITE PAGE: A play of textures and materials can be as stimulating to the visual sense as the sight of good food is to the appetite. In Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Scharer's dining room at Kings Point, N.Y., materials range from the warmth of Philippine mahogany paneling to the cool sleekness of marble and slate, from the pliancy of natural leather to the hardness of steel. Dominating them all is the painting by Richard Barringer and the sculpture (the small-scale model for a fountain) by Wolfgang Behl. Floor pattern is result of irregularly shaped slabs of slate filled in with near-white grout. Interior designer: Emily Malino. For shopping information, see page 298.

LEFT: Twelve Chinese panels depicting a day's activity in a country village establish the relaxing mood of the John P. Pitcairn's dining room in Corpus Christi, Tex. Since these sixteenth-century treasures were acquired before the house was built, the room was literally designed around them and everything else kept in a subdued key. The Mexican clay tile floor (warm in tone, practical under a dining table) and the iron and wood chandelier and sconces carry out the country flavor of the scrolls. But the table and leather-upholstered chairs in the Louis XVI style obviate any trace of the farmhouse look. Interior designer: Norman McD. Foster

Gifts to make this Christmas the best Christmas yet

"One Christmas was so much like another," begins Dylan Thomas in his dearly loved A Child's Christmas in Wales, "... that I can never remember whether it snowed for six days and six nights when I was twelve or whether it snowed for twelve days and twelve nights when I was six." That, of course, is part of the joy of Christmas—it is always the same, yet, also, it is always different. On the one hand, there are the traditional rituals that give a deeply familiar, almost choreographic pattern to the celebration. On the other hand, there is the leeway in the pattern that allows for each year's differences, prompting someone to exclaim at the end of the day, "This was the best Christmas ever!"

The uniqueness of one Christmas compared to another is to be found everywhere—in the special trimmings of the tree, in the size of the turkey and whether there is or is not a flaming pudding, in whether there is open house and carol singing and mulled wine on Christmas Eve, or in whether it snowed and the sun sparkled on the powdered garden. But perhaps the greatest possibilities for uniqueness lie in the gifts given and received.

Each year a gift list represents an entirely fresh opportunity to express tangibly your particular feeling for someone. A gift can reflect, vividly, your intuition that Aunt Martha is more of a gourmet than anyone gives her credit for and would love, say, a cook book of Chinese dishes—or that your brother-in-law who never misses a current showing at the local museum would much prefer a modest antique sculpture to a truckful of new shirts and ties. Or a gift can express your awareness of the past year's changes—your perception that a young nephew who recently took up the hobby of model building would be specially delighted with a kit for a Spanish sailing ship, that your old classmate who just moved to the country would appreciate a handsome brass watering can for the new garden, or that your neighbors' little girl who has just learned to sew would be pleased with a small doll that holds scissors and thimble. A gift thus chosen can express a value and meaning far beyond its actual price, and even the most inexpensive token can become a cherished treasure.

As you pore over the following ten pages of gifts, you will already be laying the groundwork for a Christmas different from all the others, a day that will contain in its brimming hours a larger gift—the love of the past, the contentment of the present and the shining promise of Christmases to come.

POT ADES

Brilliant paint-box colors ripple through many of this year's Christmas gifts lavishing them with a look of marvelous festivity. Many, such as the stuffed octopus, opposite page, and the red wooden pepper mill shaped like a fat-cheeked cat, are so gay and decorative in themselves they could sit under the tree on Christmas morning exactly as they are. Children's presents are, engagingly, bigger than ever. What child wouldn't be enthralled with the half-scale 1910 Model T auto, above right, or the king-sized stuffed owl perched on the back fender? And this year there is a specially pretty crop of boxes and containers that are gifts in themselves, but can also be used to tuck other gifts into—amusing animal-shaped felt pouches, vividly painted wooden boxes from Mexico, a cardboard cylinder masquerading as a long-legged doll. For full details of all these festive possibilities, turn to page 299.

THE BENEVOLENT

To arrive in a city by night is an experience that always gives me (visa-hardened, magazine-enclosed traveler though I think myself) a unique and particular thrill. As the airplane, after long hours of sailing over a blackness total as prehistory, dips its wings and drones downward and suddenly tier upon tier of lights swing into view, my neuroses, or most of them, die away. Even though I know the city beneath me, and know that I will be bored in its bars, cheated by its cabmen and misinformed by everyone I interview, all fears fade before the million fallen stars, scattered upon the dark, that constitute a human city by night.

Prehistoric man, I often think (assuming, momentarily, that I am civilized), must have had exactly the same feelings when, slinking through black, forested ravines, ears cocked for the rustle of the tiger, he saw, flickering on a faraway hillside, the smudgy campfires of his tribe. For in some degree we all fear darkness. A child is terrified of being left alone at night; many adults repress, not without difficulty, a similar terror. Darkness is not our element: in it, inexplicable shapes swim free.

"Fifteen apparitions have I seen," wrote W. B. Yeats, "the worst a coat upon a coat hanger." Most people have seen similar apparitions in the night. We exorcise them, nowadays, by flicking a switch. A few thousand years ago, the ceremony of exorcism was less simple. Huddled together for warmth in their unlit burrows, our hairy, odorous, uninformed fathers propitiated the darkness with singularly dreadful sacrifices. The sun, the sole purveyor of light, loomed over their religions. Gradually man developed enough common sense to make fire, build settlements by rivers and cultivate the land. Then writing developed, and civilization began.

But the principle of light was still, and has always been since, the principle of religion. God manifested himself to Moses from a burning bush. Surya and Agni, the gods of the sun and fire, flared over India and Ra over Egypt, before Greece and Rome had begun. The Greeks and the Romans also had their gods of light: St. Paul spoke of the way of light, as opposed to the way of darkness, and in tiny uncivilized corners of the globe the Druids and the Aztecs, until a comparatively recent date, still happily disembowled youths and virgins in honor of the sun.

The world heaved itself around like a whale through the years, and more ways of providing light were found. Michelangelo, Shakespeare and Dante had literally to burn the midnight oil. Tennyson wrote by gaslight. With the discovery of sources of light more stable than firewood, the old fear of darkness became somewhat sublimated. Electricity was discovered. Then, in 1841, an American engineer aptly called Starr invented the carbon filament lamp. Swan and Edison perfected this in 1878. In these lamps the bulb was drained of air (nowadays it is filled with argon gas) and a carbon filament, introduced into the vacuum, was heated to incandescence by an electric current. General Electric Corp., already bestriding the light market like a colossus, discovered in 1906 that tungsten filaments provided four times as much light as carbon. All over the civilized world, as a final protection against darkness, men proceeded to fasten a new household god to a wire, swaddle it in a colored skirt and suspend it from the ceiling. There it hung, the dumb herald of the twentieth century. Neon pantheons rose above the cities of the West: divinities of light, shaped like automobiles and bottles of orangeade.

Today, the lights have spread to the cities of the East: Tokyo, Manila, Bombay, Singapore scatter the lurid flicker of neon into the tropical night. For the first time the production of light is unaccompanied by either sound or smell. Fire, candles, oil lamps, gaslights—all crackled, hissed, or sputtered, and each diffused an individual, not always delightful, odor. It is instructive, therefore, to reflect that within fifty years of the introduction of a soundless, odorless source of light, the great capitals of the world are more noisy, and the air more polluted, than ever before in history. You can't, I suppose, win all the time.

Among those of us who move through the thundering streets and the smoky air, different people react differently to different kinds of light. Politicians and businessmen happily scald themselves under long tubular fluorescent lights, filled with mercury vapor. I find that fluorescent lighting—the kind that floods down to reveal not only the geography but the history of the faces beneath—always recalls to me the boring and sometimes horrifying hours I spent in a courtroom in Jerusalem during the Eichmann trial. And the sight of an overhead light always brings me an image of the reception chambers of the Gestapo and the OGPU.

At one time, indeed, I developed a prejudice against electricity which led me into several difficult situations. On the northern border of India, some years ago, I had the choice of staying in a modern hotel or in a resthouse faintly but picturesquely illumined by kerosene lamps. I scorned the hotel, and spent an evening writing by the kerosene lamp. This gave me an insight into the practical difficulties writers must have had before the invention of electricity, and also nearly ruined my eyes forever. Moreover, the lamp attracted an inordinate number of small black insects. I do not know what they were, but they were definitely equipped with stings. Next day my face was twice its normal size, and I moved to the hotel.

This experience did not entirely daunt me. A few months later I was thrilled to discover that some friends of mine had moved into a house in central London distinguished by the fact that it was the only house in central London that had never had electricity.

LIGHT BULB

visited it one evening, and was invited to inspect it by the light an oil lamp. Perhaps I was drunk, otherwise I would not have cepted, in which case I would not have fallen precipitately down o flights of stairs, shattering the lamp and setting the carpet on e. It was after this incident that I, with some depression, decided at I was after all a creature of the twentieth century. Still, I don't ink there is any doubt about the peculiar charm of firelight and ndlelight. Despite their incendiary qualities, candles emit a loll-g, stroking luminosity that is exceptionally relaxing. In this glow, autiful women expand, just as, by firelight, they take on some the physical aspects of those cats that spiritually they so much semble. Electric light lacks this soothing property.

Perhaps the liking expressed by many people nowadays for elight and candlelight is a specifically contemporary phenomenon. res, after all, are now a luxury rather than a necessity. Besides, think that since the invention of electric lighting, the relation-ip between man and light has radically altered. The ancient iters saw light as the desirable opposite to an undesirable dark-ss. Hell, for them, was a dark place. But modern writers, more d more, are coming to see Hell as a place that is endlessly floodlit, Sartre does in "Huis Clos." Is it because, now, one cannot, in city, escape from light? Driving toward London in the night, one es the glow of millions of lights reflected in the sky long before ie reaches the city. There is an air of inferno about it. Yet I always call, when I see the city like this, the other view coming down out the sky: those miles of spilt stars, signaling the presence of men.

So my moods fluctuate: There are times when I say rude things out Edison under my breath. There is nothing worse than falling avily and completely asleep after a bibulous party and awaking some barbarous time in the small hours with a splitting head-he and the unextinguished light scorching into your eyes. Fire-ght is what I crave then, and Alka Seltzer. At other times, watching affic lights flick from red to green, or, from a train window, look-g out at the cubes of light that are windows, each leading into an dividual life and history, I think of electric light as something autiful, a kind of Morse code of humanity flashed between people ho do not know each other and never will.

I often wonder what it would be like if the lights all over the orld were suddenly to go out forever. I do not mean this meta-horically at all, but perfectly literally. If, at night, every night, e were faced by the total darkness our forefathers faced—if, like tem, we were to kindle small fires, light tapers and oil lamps, and eer from the flickering circle of illumination they afforded at the tter darkness beyond, I think very soon a quiet madness would vertake us all. People would begin to sacrifice babies on the plinth f Cleopatra's Needle, by the Thames. Ritual murders would take place on the top floor of the Empire State Building. The market workers in Les Halles would demand that de Gaulle should offer his throat to his successor's knife on the first day of the harvest.

Light, in a way, is sanity. You let yourself into your home at night, and your first, automatic gesture is towards the light switch. I have seen a calm and reasonable man, doing this and finding that the light would not go on since the fuse had blown, fly into a fury that was partly panic. Then both of us rushed out into the serene, lamplit street, unable to bear that dark in which ghosts might be gibbering. It was an unreasonable reaction, but I think a natural one. It was as if we had gone into the park and found that all the grass had vanished overnight. For electric lighting has become part of our landscape: its very artificiality has become natural. The great sword of hanging lights that is Sydney Bridge by night is as much a part of the harbor as the water. Conversely, I think the effect of sunlight breaking through the stained glass windows of a cathedral, although unbelievably beautiful, is unbelievably artificial. I have often tried to imagine the effect of a stained-glass light bulb.

This week London has been overtaken by autumn. The trees undress with celerity, there is mist, there are misty bonfires of leaves under a crowded sky. Autumn has always depressed me intensely, for I dislike la poesie du départ. Coming home at evening, through the blurred streets, I am filled with macabre fantasies. This is Jack the Ripper's weather, and the season most preferred for European wars. My key turns in the lock: the house is dark inside. But my fingers find a switch, and suddenly the house is lit. Although the English sun has gone on six months holiday, a constellation of small suns glitters in every room. Books, pictures and furniture are fixed in their identities and places. It is comfortable in here. A midget sun stands over me, and the bogeys of the world and weather retreat through the windows.

DOM MORAES—as perhaps befits his subject—is by far the youngest of the contributors to H&G's essay series. Nevertheless, by last summer, when he passed his twenty-fifth birthday, he had already been an author for almost half his life, having published his first book in his native India in 1951. Its title: "Green Is the Grass." Its subject: cricket, of which he was and is a fanatical follower. That precocious work opened with an ode, predictive of the author's later bent, for he is primarily a poet (won the coveted Hawthornden prize at Jesus College, Oxford, has since published two volumes of poems) and secondarily a journalist and son of a journalist, Frank Moraes, distinguished editor of Bombay's Indian Express. Among the young Moraes' journalistic assignments are documentary scripts for British TV, one of which, re: India, has come to be regarded as a classic.

THE FINE ART OF LIGHTING

How to make your house come alive

Among the many fascinations of natural light is the way it changes from hour to hour and day to day. Artificial light does not change, but it has one great advantage: you can control it. Its quality, direction and intensity can all be governed to suit your purposes precisely. In addition, expertly designed lighting has built-in flexibility, so that you can modulate it when and as you please, just as daylight is modulated by the course of the sun. ■ In some rooms, the object of artificial lighting might be to reproduce at night the same effect as that created by natural light during the day. In other rooms, the goal might be to shed light on areas or objects in a way that daylight never could. ■ Controlled light can work magic with space, making a room seem lofty or more intimate according to whether it is focused on the ceiling or on the walls. Or lighting can be used to highlight the elements within the space—to dramatize architectural detail, uncover the full beauty of textures, or make paintings, sculpture or indoor planting come to life. ■ Just as important as the light itself are the shadows it creates, for it is the play of light and shade that gives three-dimensional depth and roundness to a room and everything in it. ■ Here and on the next two pages are two houses in which light has been applied as deftly as color from the brush of a master. In one house the lighting shapes and dramatizes each room as a whole; in the other, lighting glorifies individual architectural and decorative elements that compose the whole.

Over-all lighting shapes and enhances space

Walls and ceilings radiant with light, left, give dramatic definition to the rooms of a glass-walled house in Bryn Athyn, Pa., designed by architects Geddes, Brecher, Qualls and Cunningham.

The six-sided shape of the dining room, above, is emphasized by an overhead honeycomb of light—an imaginative variation on the principle of the luminous ceiling. Incandescent tubes are concealed in the troughs that form the six main spokes of the walnut grillwork, and the upward-directed light is reflected by the white-painted ceiling. Thus the whole room is bathed in a softly diffused glow, bright enough to make any other light source unnecessary.

The hexagonal shape of the living room, left, is dramatized by light directed on the walls. Pairs of spotlights rhythmically placed in a soffit at the base of the ceiling emphasize the symmetry of the room and also bring out the richness of textures at eye level—the curtain fabric, the wood paneling, the fireplace brick. For even more drama on gala occasions, there is an auxiliary system of spotlights mounted above the grillwork of the cupola that crowns the room. When these are lighted (see above left), they turn the lofty ribbed ceiling into a spectacular dome that seems to float high over the walls.

Specific lighting dramatizes art and architecture

A luxuriant water garden, above, in a Rye, N. Y., house designed by architects Raymond and Rado is glorified by a series of four lights recessed in the ceiling. Called "wall washers," these fixtures have special reflectors that produce a more gentle light and softer shadows than ordinary spotlights. Set low in the wall at one end of the garden is another light with a wide-angle lens that casts an intense beam on the water, adding an illusion of depth to the shallow pool.

On one side of the two-story living room, right, a soft upward wash of light illuminates a painting, making it seem to float in space in front of the wall. The source of this mysterious glow is a line of tubular incandescents behind and beneath the hi-fi cabinet that serves as a baffle.

On the other side of the room, far right, a lighted niche in the walnut paneled wall is as visually magnetic as a fire on the hearth. Beneath the white glass shelf of the white-painted niche is a line of tubular incandescents whose diffused and reflected light produces the radiance that sets off each piece of sculpture and gathers the group into a unified composition. The airy quality of the bridge spanning the end of the room is enhanced by a row of ceiling lights directed on the wall behind it that emphasize the distance between wall and bridge and illuminate the area below.

A CASE FOR APARTNESS

Three years ago, the Herbert Monts and their three little boys moved into a new house that had taken exactly a decade of young-family living to visualize, to want and to need. Their previous house they called a "three-story Colonial"—an undeserved epithet, really, since it had only two floors. But after a ten-year stint of descending and ascending the basement-laundry stairs, the senior Monts had come to think of the house only in terms of height and steps. And for a sizable house, it was the wrong shape for serenity—a fact brought home as the boys stopped being babies and learned the joys of locomotion, steeple-jacking, noise and fraternization. More than anything else, these innocent pleasures taught the Monts that ideally disposed space for a family of five is measured not nearly so much by the bonds of togetherness as it is by a series of well-planned escape hatches.

Hence their new house, a handsome rectangular structure of steel, aluminum and glass, and the pleasantest possible example of the art of communal living without tears—a feat accomplished almost entirely by an unorthodox but far-sighted apportioning of space. Roughly, the house is divided into three sections: one for parents, one for children, one for parents and children (see page 258). The parents preside in the living room with its card-music-bar ell and the master bedroom and bath next door. At the opposite end of the house are three bedrooms, one to a boy, and a compartmented bath—all opening on a wonderful big room that is part gym, part playroom, part party room, but, most of the time, Indian territory. Sandwiched between grownups and growing-ups is the dining room and kitchen which the five Monts share and share alike.

Yet, in a hard and fast way, there is nothing isolationistic about this scheme. The boys play the living room piano, toast anything toastable in the conversation pit's fireplace. Just as often, after they are put to bed, the gym becomes a fine (but strictly adult) supper and dancing room. And it is always possible for either sector of the family, when so inclined, to have complete privacy—or to entertain without benefit of gallery spectators. Two banks of folding doors, one at each end of the dining room, can be closed to muffle the sound of merriment no matter from which direction it comes.

The house took two years to build, but only because the Monts, quite literally, built about half of it themselves. Mr. Mont is an extraordinary craftsman, and Mrs. Mont, who had known no other paintbrush except an artist's red sable, learned how to paint girders and stain walnut paneling to a professional T. Even the boys were organized in an assembly line to unwrap, put away, hold tools and sweep up. Apartness, yes, but as smoothly and lovingly knit as five pairs of hands can make it.

In this house parents and children have equal rights, but separate stamping grounds

The boys' playroom is a well-bred indoor jungle gym with a quick-change trick up its sleeve

With its ladders, tumbling mats and climbing ropes in place, the gym is a small boys' hippodrome where Bob, John and Randy, aged 14, 10 and 6, can be as boisterous as they please. When gymnastics pall, they can flop on the mats and listen to hi-fi of their choosing: they have inherited the old family set which is installed in one of the closets. But on grown-up party nights, the gym grows up, too. Apparatus is cleared and replaced by four beflowered, candle-lit tables for eight and the Monts and their guests sit down to dinner. Later, the tables disappear and the evening is given over to music and dancing.

ABOVE

Conversation pit in living room is almost 11 feet square. A raised hearth overhung by a black iron hood extends the whole length of one side. Foam rubber mattresses on wood platforms make the sofas. Coffee table, like much of the furniture, was designed by the architect.

BELOW

The living room melts into the dining room with a sweep of terrazzo flooring since there is no demarcation between the rooms when the folding doors are open. Similar doors pull across far end of dining room to close off the gym. Painting near piano is by Robert Natkin.

BELOW

Dining room table with handsome top of laminated walnut strips splined with birch is anchored to floor. Walnut buffet is supported by inner framework of steel attached to steel posts embedded in floor. Under platform on top are plastic-masked fluorescent tubes to light counter.

No-nonsense design of kitchen is softened by walnut cabinets with plastic laminated countertops, an illuminated ceiling of corrugated plastic, a mosaic tile floor. Breakfast area looks into a little garden—an alcove-like extension of play yard.

The terrace facade of the house is almost entirely of glass—an extravagantly open invitation to the sun made practical by treating the glass, after installation, with a liquid sun-screen.

OPPOSITE PAGE, BELOW

The plan allots exactly equal square footage to the adult and juvenile sections of the house. Communal territory—the dining room and kitchen—occupies the smallest of the three divisions. In front of the house are four enclosed or semienclosed outdoor areas: a play yard for the boys (marked off for basketball practice); a roofed carport with redwood side screens; a planted entrance court; and a wholly enclosed sunning court off the parents' bathroom. The boys have their own entrance from the play yard. A service entrance leads from the carport to laundry and kitchen, and the front door, from a corner of the entrance court to a foyer flanked by a powder room on one side, a guest closet and walk-in bar on the other.

Liberty, equality, fraternity proves a very good working motto for two generations living in a one-story house

The play yard is big enough for just about any game the boys—or, for that matter, their parents—can conjure up: Mother and Father often give their scions battle in a tight game of badminton.

Although the three cub dens are alike—same size, same furniture, same colors—there is a vast difference in the personal overlays. John's room bears the imprint of a 10-year-old intellectual and art collector.

Randy, the youngest, like his brothers before him, is a train worshiper. He sets his locomotives streaking on a fold-up table in the gym—a vast improvement on the basement labyrinth of train tracks in their former house.

PALLADIO UPDATED

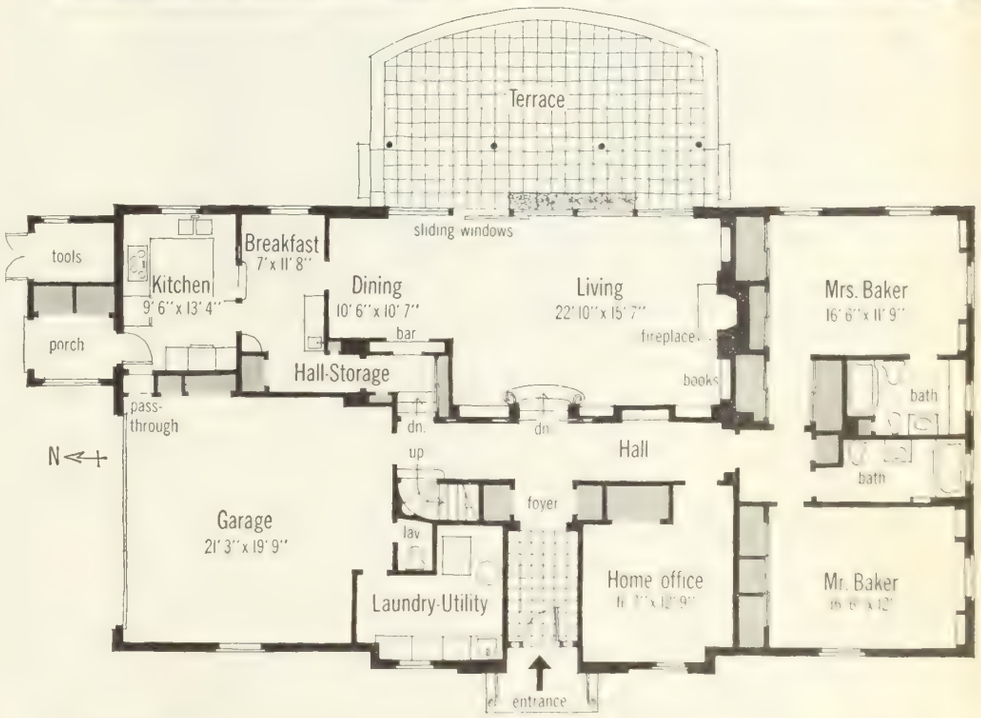
Knowledge gained through years of cosmopolitan living shows in every inch of this small but elegant house

Streetside façade has typical Palladian elegance with practical adjuncts: untypical door transom and side lights that let light into the hall. Very Italianate, however, are blue shutters against brick painted pale greige.

In their adventurous, peripatetic lifetime, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Baker Sr., have lived in a succession of houses extending in an architectural swath from Michigan to Florida to Nassau to Greece. But since home base has always been Grand Rapids, it is there that they have built this small but impressive house. Inspired by the Palladian villas that lie along the Brenta Canal near Venice, it is a classic bijou—not grandiose, but transcendent in detail. From the shutters at the windows to the pedimented doorways, everything about the house and in it is evocative—a restatement of things remembered. The memories, however, are updated. The Bakers are frankly nostalgic, but they like to see nostalgia expressed in a well-ordered, well-cushioned way. The elegance of the house, consequently, is partnered with horse-sense practicality. Devised to keep two people comfortable, the plan provides each of the Bakers with what is tantamount to a little suite. In addition there is a family office and wonderful storage for everything from clothes to wine, tools, wood and refuse containers. An occasional guest can be tucked away in the family office, and the house can be run by a single servant. All this down-to-earthness is delightfully overlaid with fine woodwork, marble and parquet floors, furnishings of French and Italian inspiration assembled and arranged by Mrs. Baker. And in the true tradition of the Veneto countryside, there is a water vista—little Lake Fisk, sparkling only 300 feet away.

Sèvres urns accent foyer.

Dining room, an extension of the living room, is furnished with copies of Italian and French pieces, some painted, some in fruitwood, which the Bakers had admired in Europe. The brass-grilled doors open on a bar (see RIGHT*).*



Bar has pass-through to back hall for easy service during parties.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY GUERRERO

The living room, OPPOSITE PAGE, owes its serenity and elegance to the beauty of wood tones set off by white walls and upholstery and the delicate traceries of an old Aubusson rug. Only in the accenting hues of bookbindings, pictures and the rose-beige marble of the old French mantel does the room more than skim the surface of the spectrum. Whenever the Bakers feel like a slight shift of scene and a stepping-up of color, they exchange the sepia and umber Piranesi prints over the sofa for a pair of Italian oils painted in the manner of the early eighteenth-century artist, Guardi. At the other end of the living room, RIGHT, an antique Coromandel screen partially masks the dining ell and provides a lacquered chinoiserie background for two white bergères in the style of Louis XVI.

The plan is described by Mr. Baker as one that, despite the classic exterior, "acts like a modern house." Most of the main living areas, for instance, are at the rear, the utility areas at the front. The garage was included within the perimeter of the house proper in order to increase its size and complete its classic symmetry. But the plan also contains many unclassic conveniences such as the extra storage space at both ends of the little hall that connects the living room hall with the kitchen and doubles a vantage point for a party bar man. Tool and wood storage are accounted for in a service entry wing (see page 301), and a delivery pass-through connects garage and kitchen. Upstairs are housekeeper's quarters, plus space, when the Bakers feel the need, for two more rooms.

At one end of Mrs. Baker's bedroom, a pair of built-in cabinets with brass-grilled doors (like those of the dining room bar) are linked with a gracefully scrolled window valance. The whole architectural composition makes a graceful background for the bed, a copy of an eighteenth-century French lit de repos, integrating it with the room in spite of its rather unusual, centered placement with both ends away from the wall.

BONSAI:

NATURE IN MINIATURE

Bonsai is a Japanese art in which the beautiful forms of full-sized living plants are captured in miniature. The two ideographs that compose the word mean "container" or "tray" and "to plant," and the pronunciation is a crisp bohn-sye. But confining a living plant in a container is only the first step in the practice of the art. To create bonsai you prune and train the plant—most often a small tree—into a beautiful but always naturalistic shape. These procedures follow nature's lead so that the plant's most notable attributes are refined and particularized as though they had been brought under a microscope—the microscope of artistic perception. The character of any bonsai may be established by the pattern a plant has already assumed due to natural conditions, or it may be the result of your creative efforts on an immature plant. Either way, the sole aim is to enhance the plant's essential beauty but without corruption or distortion. Bonsai plants are never freakish or grotesque. The response to the best examples of the art of bonsai is both universal and intensely subjective. The enjoyment can be a creative exercise or a spectator sport, or both. On these and the following two pages, excellent examples of bonsai are posed against the familiar trees and shrubs of which they are the counterparts. For details on the care, creation and display of bonsai, see Gardener's Month, page 302.

Elms have for generations been man's stalwart friends and the objects of his horticultural veneration in both hemispheres and in every clime. The elm family also yields some of the most beautiful examples of bonsai. Left: a 50-year-old zelkova bonsai trained to "broom" style echoes the form of one of Longwood Gardens' proudest American species. Opposite page: an informally trained Asiatic elm in bonsai form in a 3-by-4-inch pot displays the idealized shape of its American cousin in a sunny Connecticut hayfield.

POCKETS FULL OF CHRISTMAS

How to make a gift pillow to delight every child who loves a treasure hunt

When one is seven (or five or ten) the only thing better than one present is two. And the only thing better than two presents is one that turns out to contain a dozen extra surprises. Mindful of this changeless quirk of childhood, H&G has invented a child's pillow that is simultaneously a gift in itself, an enchanting container for a second gift and a hiding place for a dozen other tiny treasures to be plucked out one by one on Christmas morning. On the back of the pillow is a large pocket with an overlapping flap, into which you slip the Big Present—a sweater, perhaps, a pair of pajamas or a smock. On the front is a whimsical composition of appliqués, most of which are really little pockets to be filled like a stocking with miniature surprises. And you can make the whole thing on the sewing machine as easily as you might run up an apron.

The materials you will need are modest: plain cotton fabric (about 1 square yard) for the pillow slip itself, scraps of printed cotton and felt, ribbons and laces, hooks and eyes, buttons and bows. The pillow slip consists of four pieces of fabric: the front; the back; a third piece, almost as long as the back, to form the large pocket; a shorter piece to make the flap (it should be long enough to overlap). Our forest pillow, left and opposite page, is 12½ inches square; the house pillow, 15 inches square; the bedroom, 12 by 15 inches.

The best part of the whole project is planning the pillow face. You can duplicate one of our designs or create your own, or perhaps adapt an illustration from a child's story book. Whatever theme you choose, however, decide on a central object around which to build the picture. The more opportunities the scene offers for little pockets, the better. In our house design, for instance, there are pockets in the door, the shutters, the chimney, even under the roof. Plan to use scraps of as many different colors and patterns as possible, especially when the basic design is fairly simple.

On a piece of drawing paper or shelf paper, outline the pillow face and draw your scene freehand. You don't have to be an artist—the more naïve the picture, the better. (Continued on page 295)

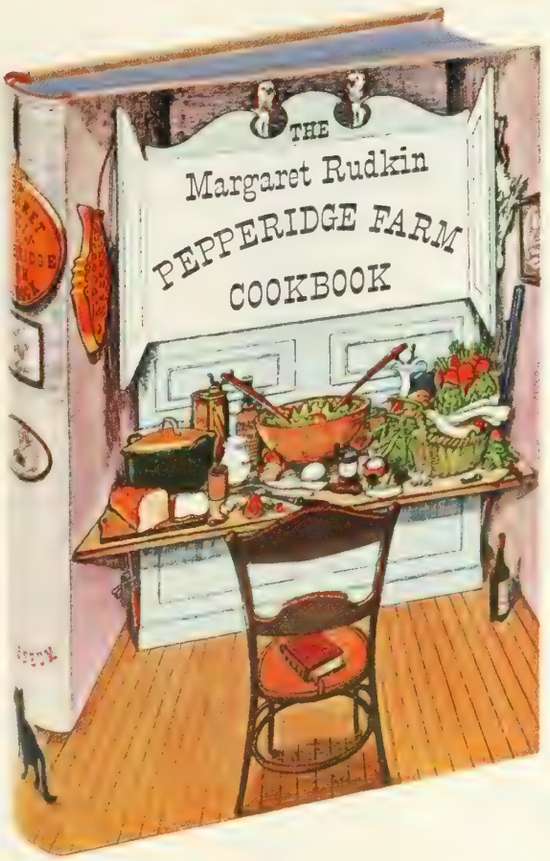
Going places, finding things in Brazil, Chile and Peru

By Doone Beal

Rio, in my experience, is comparable only to Hong Kong in the way it manages to measure up to and even outstrip its own most extravagant claims. I can imagine no more appropriate introduction to the South American continent, for it is here in Brazil and specifically in Rio that you are most likely to realize all you have expected.



The approach to this fabulous city is dramatic; its tall, cone-shaped mountains rise quite suddenly out of the sea and look, from the air, like petrified lotus flowers. "Can't you smell it, even from here?" asked a Brazilian passenger excitedly. And in an odd way you could. As we glided lower and lower over the harbor, double-bordered by white beaches and white skyscrapers, I anticipated the sensation of 80-degree heat, of blinding sunshine, the smell of hot tar on the road. The driving was a perilous battle between elderly, loosely sprung Chevrolets which made scythe-like cuts ahead of one another. Breath-taking in another way was the broccoli green of the jungle that started where the city stopped, a feeling of abrupt civilization in a wilderness; the sight of profligate, careless beauty—and more where that came from. The vitality of a land which, until the inclusion of Alaska, was bigger than the United States hits you straight away. I was shown—quite off-handedly—a building which has provision for cars to drive up a ramp to the fifth story, there to park outside executive offices. Also pointed out to me was a beach that had recently been dredged and then sanded in just ten days—in the heart of the city. For in Rio the beach is part of living. Copacabana, crescent-shaped and white, a desert until it suddenly [illegible]d in the Thirties, is something by [illegible] of Beirut, though lovelier than either. After that you abandon comparisons. You are tempted to call life in Rio leisured and lethargic. Those bronzed (Continued on page 272)

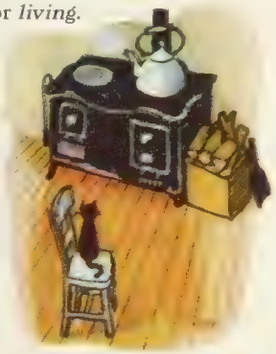
"Margaret Rudkin has written a cookbook as fresh and unconventional as her famous Pepperidge Farm® bread"

ANYONE who has ever tasted a slice of her Pepperidge Farm bread—that crusty, firm-textured, wonderfully nostalgic bread—knows that Margaret Rudkin doesn't just love food—she respects it.

And she has communicated her feeling for the dignity of good food in this wise and intensely personal cookbook.



Over 500 recipes—for eating and living

The Pepperidge Farm Cookbook is really three books in one. A working cookbook. A treasury of antique recipes, lovingly gathered over 25 years. And, popping up between the old recipes and the new, there is a charming autobiography.

Margaret Rudkin tells you about favorite foods of her childhood—flummery, fluffin, cocky-leek soup—and about the grandmother who made them for her.

She gives recipes from the country kitchen she knew as a young wife and mother—recipes for pumpkin bread, fried green tomatoes, hot sausage cream tart.

And she gives her own joyous (and highly successful) recipe for living.

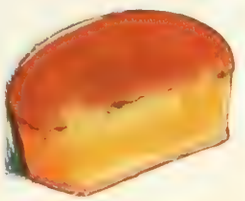
Main courses, plain and fancy

"A good pattern for eating and living," Mrs. Rudkin proposes, is "something for fun, something for special times, and something plain for quiet days with just the family."

Something for fun? Try Margaret Rudkin's recipe for Beef Stroganoff Without Panic.

For special occasions, try her two and one-half page recipe for Blanquette de Veau. Or Bombay Chicken, made with 21 ingredients. Or there is Marinated Duck (the preparation time is 32 to 40 hours).

For "just the family," there are simple suppers like Tomato Cheese Pie, Top-Stove Shortribs (with apricots!), Boiled Beef with barley. For soup and sandwich dinners, there are sandwich ideas by the dozen and hearty, sustaining soups.



You can feed a hungry family on the rich Beef-and-Vegetable Soup Margaret Rudkin remembers from childhood.

"My mother always hummed the recipe like a little tuneless song when she made it—

"A shin of beef and bones
Pepper and salt and onions
Carrots and celery
Bay leaf and parsley
Leeks and potatoes
A can of tomatoes
And a handful of oatmeal to stick to your ribs."

Margaret Rudkin's own baking secrets

You will want to bake bread when you read Mrs. Rudkin's loving and easy-to-follow instructions.

The first bread bakedatPepperidge Farm—a hearty, nourishing whole wheat loaf—was for her own growing family:

"I was generous in my use of butter and milk, honey and molasses, and invented a recipe which resulted in a delicious bread, pleasant for anyone to eat without being told 'eat it because it's good for you'."

That recipe is used at Pepperidge Farm today.

Anyone who has ever tasted Pepperidge Farm Frozen Puff Pastry knows Margaret Rudkin has a genius for desserts. And she gives you her own recipes for everything from Plain Pastry with Butter, to Spanish Gato-Almond Cake.

"Quaking Pudding"—and 43 other antique recipes

If you are adventurous, dessert can be a "Quaking Pudding." You will find the recipe, dated 1663, in Margaret Rudkin's chapter on "Cooking from Antique Cookbooks."

Margaret Rudkin doesn't just collect antique recipes. She translates them for you into modern cooking terms.

With her as a guide, you can prepare "Chicken in a Pungent Sauce" from a recipe that originated in the first cookbook ever printed, in 1475.

You can "Make a Cake the Way of the Royal Princess, the Lady Elizabeth, Daughter to King Charles the First," from a contemporary recipe.

Or "Preserve Bullasses Green as Grass"—a 17th century version of plum preserves.

450 pages; 420 illustrations

The illustrations in the Pepperidge Farm Cookbook are original drawings by the Danish illustrator Erik Blegvad. (Four are reproduced here.) The pages are large enough for big, easy-to-read type. The binding is stainproof and washable.

bodies stretched on the soft acres of pale sand certainly give the lie to any idea that business is pressing. No one is available in his office between noon and five in the evening.

Yet the people are blessed with an extraordinary, uninhibited verve for living. As a race, they are supremely good-looking. Small wonder that their natural exuberance coruscates and explodes, annually, in the Lenten carnival (and Brazil is the only South American country which so celebrates it); small wonder that, although they printed nonsense money to do it and almost ruptured the national economy, they have got their Brasilia in bricks and mortar. Smaller wonder still that, having got it, nobody wants to live there. Architect Sergio Bernardes (he built the Brazilian pavilion for the Brussels Exhibition, is currently working on Brasilia's airport, which he plans to make all but underground) told me that Brasilia, built a good fifty years ahead of its time, was born to be operated by push button from Rio, the city that nobody wants to leave.

Mr. Bernardes' own house is an interesting variant on Portuguese Colonial because, as he said to me, nothing should ever be built entirely out of its context. Although in the tropics, this is not typically tropical architecture. It is cool and stony with immensely thick walls, yet it manages to be intimate and, even, if the word is not misplaced, cozy. The raw gray stone walls of his kitchen have brilliant colored glass blocks like jewels set into the masonry at irregular intervals. In a downstairs reading room, a horizontal swinging door lets down to make a table for casual dining, its other side protruding in balance onto an outdoor balcony. The bathroom also is stone-faced, the bath itself hollowed out of solid rock, Roman fashion. There are some decorations of heavy, dull gilt, immense glass coffers for bath salts and bright cotton mats. The long drawing room is half-divided down the center with a bank of hollow blocks which permit a constant air-flow while creating a row of banquettes. In the middle of the room is a huge unenclosed fireplace with a great copper chimney over it. The main windows face Le Blanc Beach and Corcovado Mou tain with Sugar Loaf Mounta behind it. It must be one of t great views of the world, and I w therefore interested to see that t architect had not done the obvi thing and framed it in one unbr en sheet of glass. Instead, the w dows, although quite big, are he ily eaved, sunk deep into the wal "One should never," remark Mr. Bernardes, "show the wh of anything. Not even a beauti view."

The essence of Rio is not its old monuments (although t seventeenth-century St. Ber Church, filled with superb wo carvings, is an imperative), but its new ones. Try to find an arc tect to show you around. Rio h buildings that make some of wh has gone up in Europe and t States look mummified. So pro are the Brazilians of their achiev ments in architecture, and so h pitable in their attitude, that y are quite likely to strike gold.

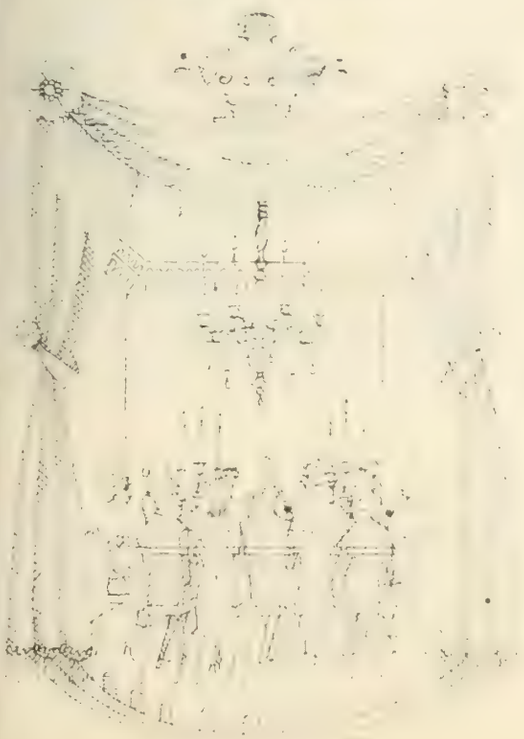
HOUSE & GARDEN'S



Master Menu Cook Book

By Peggy Harvey

In spite of the wide assortment of cook books available, menu planning seems to be a perennial problem for a hostess. Perhaps it would help—and be fun—to think of it in terms of a totally different occupation—playwriting. Planning the menu for a dinner or luncheon party is rather like outlining a play (a modern play, of course, for both plays and menus have been considerably abbreviated since the days of Shakespeare and Good Queen Bess.) Now, instead of five acts and as many courses, we have, as a rule, three of each. On the stage or in the dining room, we must start out with something of sufficient substance to stimulate interest without being overwhelming. This is followed by the heart of the matter, the play's raison d'être, or the main course of the dinner. It is by this act or course that the success of either kind of production stands or falls. Each bit of action or dialogue and each accompaniment to the entrée must add in some way to the central theme, while the finale must be so right as to seem almost inevitable—although never predictable. All this does not mean you have to be a culinary George S. Kaufman or Jean Kerr in order to plan a menu; it is just an idea to keep in the back of your mind when you do plan one. To pursue the analogy between menu making and the theatre further—you might consider the buffet party as a revue or variety show, where a number of more or less unrelated items, each perfect in its way, are presented in a manner that results in an harmonious whole.

Although in this dissertation on menu making we have devoted ourselves to party menu planning, the same theories apply to plain everyday meals which, incidentally, need never be plain even if they are simple. Attention to the appearance of the food, care in its presentation and some research in the vast field of unusual recipes make all the difference. Although you probably have a whole library of recipes on hand, one comprehensive cook book might serve as your mainstay. To prove our point, the majority of recipes in the menus that follow have been culled from "House & Garden's Cook Book" as well as from the cook-book sections published in the magazine over the past seven years. In some cases, the recipes have been stepped up in quantity or served somewhat differently to suit the size or type of party.

Dinner Parties

In spite of the fact that few people still boast a full-time staff, the dinner party at home is becoming increasingly popular and fashionable and new customs are emerging as a sign of the times. Whether or not a waitress is in attendance, the first course is often served in the living room instead of at the table. If guests have been invited for a rather late hour to give busy breadwinners time to relax at home before rushing out again—a particularly important consideration at this time of year when they may have to rush to another party or two before arriving at yours—you will probably not sit down until nine o'clock. Were all three courses to be served at the table, dinner would be quite a long-drawn-out affair. In the living room you can have, so to speak, an instant first course of which each guest may partake as soon as he or she arrives. A fringe benefit is that this puts less strain on the hostess. If she is help-less and doesn't want to be popping things in and out of the oven, the food may be cold, although—with a hot tray on a teacart—it is perfectly feasible to have something hot as well.

One thing to bear in mind if you are serving the first course in this manner is that nothing should be difficult to eat; sauces should not be too liquid nor should anything have to be cut with a knife. Aside from this single curb, allow your imagination full rein when deciding what to have. Turn to other countries for ideas; in this spot, as elsewhere in the menu, a foreign dish adds interest. Its use need not be confined to an all-foreign meal; actually it's more of a surprise if it isn't.

When it comes to planning the accompaniments to the entrée, begin your thinking with two things: color and texture. There must be variety in both, but there must also be harmony. You wouldn't, for instance, serve cranberry sauce with rare roast beef; the combination would look as unattractive as it would taste. Foods must look well together. Oddly enough, if they do, they are apt to taste equally well.

The next precept is, "Stray deliberately from the beaten path." If the entrée is to be duck, don't stop thinking once you arrive at applesauce, orange sauce or black cherries. What about peaches, figs or even lemon? By the same token, if you are serving lamb and your imagination refuses to budge beyond peas, at least put the mint in them—or combine them with baby limas or try Chinese snow peas for a change (now available frozen). Be enterprising about starches, too. Have a pasta instead of potatoes even if the meal is not Italian; or if it must be potatoes, investigate the innumerable ways of preparing them. If mashed potatoes are definitely indicated, but you need color, make them green by the simple addition of finely Museums treasure it for the same reasons you will. Its moonlit translucence, its incredible chip-resistance, its snowy whiteness that only fine bone china has. chopped spinach and parsley. Finally, don't overdo matters. One or two perfectly and imaginatively prepared vegetables are infinitely preferable to a surfeit.

An intermediate course of salad and cheese is often served at this point but, proceeding on the theory that late dinners should not go on too long, we suggest that a simple salad accompany the entrée or, in some cases, that it appear in lieu of a green vegetable. Cheese, of course, with or without fruit, makes an eminently satisfactory final course especially if red wine is on the menu, but here again, be imaginative; don't stick to Brie and pears, excellent though they both are.

When deciding on dessert, the most important consideration is the relative heaviness of the meal up to that point. It goes without saying that a rich and sturdy main course should be followed by the merest whisper of a sweet, while after a light entrée you can go to town with whipped cream, liqueur-soaked cakes or inspired chocolate confections.

DINNER PARTY FOR TWELVE

(See 'Gala Tryout' page 230)

CLAMS GIOVANNI
HOT SHRIMP RAMEKINS
GIGOT EN CROUTE
BEANS PRIMAVERA IN TOMATO SHELLS
COLD ORANGE SOUFFLÉ
WINE: CHAMPAGNE

For this dinner we are assuming that you have competent help in the kitchen. If you feel, however, that it is both fun for you and a compliment to your guests if you have done some or all of the cooking yourself, you can do as much or as little as you wish, since a great deal of this menu should be prepared ahead of time.

Clams Giovanni

1 dozen cherrystone clams
1 pint clear chicken broth
1 egg white and shell
1½ envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
½ cup light cream
Salt, white pepper, thyme

Open, or have opened by the fish man, a dozen cherrystone clams, saving the juice and the shells. Strain the juice and measure ½ cup.

Chill the chicken broth and remove all fat. Put the broth in a saucepan and heat slowly. Beat the egg white with the crushed egg shell and 1 teaspoon cold water. Add to the warm broth, turn up the heat a bit and stir constantly until the boiling point has been reached. Stop stirring, lower the heat and simmer for 3 minutes. Turn off heat and let stand for 20 minutes. Strain through 2 thicknesses of moistened cheesecloth. Soften 1 envelope gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Reheat the broth and stir in the gelatin. Chill aspic until firm.

Melt the butter and stir in the bread crumbs. Cook slowly for a minute or two and stir in the ½ cup strained clam juice and the light cream. Cook for a few minutes and season to taste with salt, white pepper and a pinch of thyme. Soften ½ envelope gelatin in 1 tablespoon cold water and stir into the sauce. When the gelatin has dissolved, add the clams, drained and finely minced. Fill the reserved shells a little more than half full, and chill until set.

When the aspic is firm, moisten a piece of brown wrapping paper and put the aspic on it. Chop very fine with a sharp knife. (The brown paper makes the aspic brilliant.) Distribute it among the filled clam shells.

Hot Shrimp Ramekins

3 pounds raw shrimp
1 cup dry white wine
2 cups water
1 bay leaf
Pinch of thyme
1½ teaspoons salt
Melted butter
Garlic salt
Grated Parmesan cheese
Chopped parsley

Put the shrimp in a pan with wine, water, bay leaf, thyme and salt and bring to a slow boil. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Remove and drain. Shell and devein the shrimp. Place the shrimp in individual ramekins. Pour a generous amount of hot melted butter over each serving. Sprinkle with garlic salt and Parmesan cheese and place in a 425° oven until butter sizzles—about 3 to 4 minutes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve immediately.

Gigot en Croute

2 small legs of lamb weighing not more than 5–6 pounds each
Salt, freshly cracked pepper, crushed clove of garlic
2 pounds finely ground veal
4 egg whites
2 cups light cream
4 tablespoons finely chopped shallot
2 teaspoons finely chopped garlic
4 tablespoons finely chopped celery
4 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2 tablespoons finely chopped dill
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 pounds bacon
Red wine, water
Pastry
Demi-Glace Sauce

Bone the legs of lamb, remove fat, season well inside and out with salt, pepper and crushed garlic. Put ground veal in a mixer, add raw egg whites and beat well. Slowly beat in the cream. Add chopped shallot, garlic, celery, parsley and dill. Season with nutmeg and salt and pepper to taste. Divide mixture in two and stuff each leg of lamb with half the mixture. Wrap legs of lamb with bacon slices, tying each securely with string. Place in a large roaster and pour a little red wine and some water in the bottom of the pan. Roast at 375° for 20 minutes, reduce heat to 350° and roast for 1½ hours, basting every 20 minutes and adding 2 tablespoons of red wine or water each time. Remove, cool. When cool, wrap in the following pastry.

PASTRY

12 cups all-purpose flour
5 cups soft butter or half butter and half shortening
2 cups cold water
2 eggs, well beaten

It is easier if you make this pastry in 2 batches, so divide ingredients in half. Blend 6 cups flour and 2½ cups butter with the fingers until a sandy mass has been obtained. Add 1 cup water gradually, mixing slowly, and work dough into a ball. The less water used, the better. Wrap in waxed paper and refrigerate. Repeat the process with the remaining flour, butter and water. When ready to finish the lamb, roll out each batch of dough about ¼" thick and large enough to envelop lamb completely. Place meat in center, top side down. Fold pastry over meat and seal seam and ends with water. Place seam-side down on a cookie sheet and brush top and sides with the beaten egg which has been mixed with a little water or cream. Prick thoroughly with a fork in a crisscross design. Bake in a preheated 400° oven for 25 minutes. Remove and serve on a hot serving platter with Demi-Glace Sauce.

DEMI-GLACE SAUCE

4 chicken livers
6 tablespoons salt butter
4 tablespoons brandy
2 teaspoons each: tomato paste, meat glaze
4 teaspoons potato flour
½ cup red wine
2½ cups chicken stock
3 teaspoons currant jelly
Pepper
2 small truffles, finely chopped

Brown chicken livers in 4 teaspoons hot butter. Flame with brandy. Remove livers and add 4 tablespoons butter to pan. Stir in, off the fire, the tomato paste, meat glaze and flour. Mix in wine, stock and jelly. Stir over fire until it comes to a boil, season with a little pepper. Simmer 10 minutes and strain. Add chopped truffle and finely diced chicken livers.

Beans Primavera in Tomato Shells

1½ cans Italian cannelini beans
1½ cloves garlic, chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
Olive oil
Wine vinegar
Salt, freshly ground black pepper
12 good-sized tomatoes

Drain the beans well, rinse them in cold water and drain again. Mix with the garlic, parsley and basil. Add oil and vinegar to taste and season with salt and pepper. Let stand several hours to mellow. Scoop out the tomatoes and let them drain upside down in the refrigerator until just before serving time. Fill with the beans and serve on beds of crisp watercress or Bibb lettuce.

Cold Orange Soufflé

8 eggs
6 egg yolks
12 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons plain gelatin
4 teaspoons lemon juice
6 tablespoons water
4 large oranges
4 cups heavy cream, whipped
1 cup strained red currant jelly

Put eggs, egg yolks and sugar in electric mixer. Beat until thick. Dissolve gelatin in lemon juice and water over slow fire. Carefully stir dissolved gelatin into egg mousse with grated rind of 2 oranges. Mix in whipped cream.

Towle Introduces

fashioned in solid silver... of reigning grace, enduring beauty

The majesty of kings and queens is captured in the rich and regal sculpture of the Charlemagne pattern. Created at Newburyport, Massachusetts, by Towle, proudest silversmiths in America—with craft traditions since 1690.

TOWLE SILVERSMITHS

Tie bands of oiled paper around two 8" soufflé dishes. Divide mixture between dishes and put to set in refrigerator for about 2 hours. Remove and arrange skinned sections of oranges around the edges. Dip a soft brush into currant jelly and carefully cover tops of soufflés with red currant jelly. Chill again and remove the paper just before serving.

TIMETABLE

THE DAY BEFORE THE PARTY:
- Make Clams Giovanni.
- Make Cold Orange Soufflé.
- Prepare beans for tomato shells.

THE DAY OF THE PARTY:
- Make Shrimp Ramekins.
- Roast lamb.
- Prepare pastry.
- Scoop out and drain tomatoes.
- Make Demi-Glace Sauce.

JUST BEFORE THE PARTY:
- Wrap lamb in pastry and bake.
- Put beans in tomato shells.
- Reheat Demi-Glace Sauce.
- Heat ramekins in oven.

Luncheon Parties

Luncheon parties are planned along the same lines as dinner parties, with the proviso that the food served be lighter and simpler. You should also take into account the guests—an all-ladies' luncheon on a weekday should probably be more calorie-conscious than a luncheon for couples at the weekend or on a holiday. The season, too, influences your choice of food. For spring, summer and autumn selections, see page 282.

WINTER LUNCHEON FOR TWELVE

BAKED OYSTERS VERA
CHEESE TIMBALE, MUSHROOM SAUCE
WATERCRESS AND ENDIVE SALAD
MELBAED ENGLISH MUFFINS
STRAWBERRY RICE MOLD
WINE: MUSCADET

Simple though this menu is, it does entail some last-minute attention, so it is unlikely that you will undertake to serve it to a group of this size without some assistance. However, if you have done most of the cooking beforehand, which you can easily do, an experienced waitress with only rudimentary culinary knowledge will fill the bill. All that she will need to do is heat the oysters and, later, the muffins, complete the timbale and assemble the salad and dessert.

Baked Oysters Vera

3 dozen large oysters
3½ tablespoons butter
1¼ (scant) cups minced celery
3½ tablespoons flour
¼ (generous) cup capers, drained and chopped
3½ tablespoons cream
3½ tablespoons melted butter
⅓ (generous) cup fine, dry bread crumbs

Shuck the oysters, or have them shucked, reserving the juice and 24 shells. Heat the oysters in their liquor just until they plump. Drain them and measure 1¾ cups of juice. If necessary, add chicken consommé; you will need 1¾ cups liquid. Melt 3½ tablespoons butter in a saucepan over medium heat and sauté the celery until tender but still crisp. Add the flour and stir until blended. Gradually add the reserved juice and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Remove from heat, and stir in the capers and cream. Chop the oysters coarsely, fold into the sauce and spoon into the shells. Mix the melted butter with the bread crumbs and sprinkle over the filled shells. Refrigerate until shortly before serving time. Bake in a preheated 450° oven ten minutes; serve at once.

Cheese Timbale, Mushroom Sauce

6 tablespoons butter
8 tablespoons flour
1 small can evaporated milk
1 cup milk
1¼ pounds Swiss cheese, grated
12 eggs, separated
Salt, pepper
Fine bread crumbs
1 pound mushrooms, sliced
1 cup cream

Melt 4 tablespoons butter and stir in 6 tablespoons flour. Add evaporated milk and ½ cup milk gradually, stirring constantly until thickened. Add cheese, stirring until melted. Remove from fire and add egg yolks. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Stiffly beat egg whites. Fold into cheese mixture. Grease 2 2-quart pudding molds (or use 4 coffee tins) and dust with bread crumbs. Place in pots of simmering water that reaches no more than halfway up the sides of the molds. Cover pots tightly and steam 1½ hours for pudding molds, 1 hour for coffee tins. Remove from the pots. Let the molds stand for 5 minutes before turning contents out on a serving platter.

Sauté mushrooms in remaining butter for 5 minutes. Sprinkle with remaining flour. Gradually add remaining ½ cup milk and the cream, stirring constantly until thickened. Add salt and pepper to taste. (The sauce may now wait, dotted with butter to avoid the forming of a crust. Reheat when ready to serve.) Spoon a little of the sauce over the timbales and serve the balance in a sauceboat.

Watercress and Endive Salad

4 bunches watercress
6 heads endive
2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
1 tablespoon olive oil
6 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
⅛ teaspoon sugar
Few drops each Tabasco, Worcestershire sauce
1 raw egg

Cut off all the hard stalks of the watercress. Separate the endive. Wash both and dry well. Put in a large salad bowl. Combine remaining ingredients for dressing. Just before serving, pour the dressing over the salad and toss well.

Melbaed English Muffins

Slice 12 English muffins thin, as for Melba toast. Toast them, butter lavishly and put them in a warm oven for a few minutes to dry out and crisp a little.

Strawberry Rice Mold

1½ cups rice
1 quart milk
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar
4 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup water
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 pint heavy cream
1 cup Cointreau or Curaçao
2 quarts strawberries, washed and hulled

Wash the rice in several waters. Combine in a saucepan with the milk, salt and 1 cup sugar. Bring to a boil and cook over low heat 30 minutes, or until very soft. Force through a sieve. Soften the gelatin in the water and add to the rice mixture, stirring until dissolved. Add the vanilla. Cool for 30 minutes. Whip the cream and fold it in. Pour into a ring or melon mold. Chill for at least 3 hours or until firmly set. Sprinkle the remaining sugar and the liqueur on the berries and chill. To serve, turn out the rice mold and either fill center or arrange berries around it.

TIMETABLE

THE DAY BEFORE THE PARTY:
- Wash and store salad greens.
- Make salad dressing.
- Make rice mold; fix berries.
- Make Baked Oysters Vera if desired; otherwise do this the next morning.

NEXT MORNING:
- Chill wine; open at noon.
- Make Cheese Timbale up to the point where beaten egg whites are added.
- Make mushroom sauce.
- Slice, toast and butter muffins.

Buffet Parties

One of the many advantages of buffet entertaining is that you can offer your guests a choice of foods. If you have two entrées, two salads or a vegetable and a salad, and two desserts, you can feel reasonably certain that each of your guests will find enough food to please and satisfy him. As some people like everything—or at least want to try everything—there should be no clashing of colors or startling conflicts in taste. The buffet table should be harmonious, but not, please, the old familiar harmony.

One of the reasons why the ham-and-turkey bit, for example, became such standard fare at buffet suppers is that these foods do not suffer unduly from waiting. If you think a little, however, you will realize that there are many other dishes with the same virtue: curries and pilafs, stews and ragouts, seafood and poultry in foil (the modern version of en papillote), carefully thought out and beautifully prepared casseroles. With today's crop of heating and chilling aids, you can serve almost anything at a buffet and keep it in prime condition. The only exception is the green salad, which might become limp and unappetizing if it waits too long. The best answer to this is to use the crispest greens available, toss them with the smallest possible amount of dressing and put them on the table at the very last minute. For a large party, you might even have a second salad bowl chilling in the refrigerator, ready to replace the first.

Buffet food should not be too difficult to eat. It doesn't have to be strictly fork food since you will, we hope, have provided table space of some kind for everyone, but things like rare wild duck, broiled squab or oxtails should be by-passed. Guests should not have to pick, poke or struggle; they are apt to give up without finishing no matter how good the food is and how hungry they are. Dishes requiring last-minute cooking should also be eschewed; select dishes that may be prepared in advance.

BUFFET PARTY FOR EIGHT

CRAB MEAT FLAMBÉ
ROAST DUCK SPANISH STYLE
SAFFRON RICE
EGGPLANT SALAD
TOSSED GREEN SALAD
CHOCOLATE ROLL
COMPOTE OF PEARS
WINE: CARAFES OF PINOT NOIR AND JOHANNISBERG RIESLING

While it would be possible to prepare this supper without assistance, it would be better to leave the major part of the cooking to an experienced helper. One of the most important components of a successful party is a relaxed and rested hostess. You can make and take credit for the desserts and crab meat if you wish.

Crab Meat Flambé

6 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups chicken broth
1½ cups light cream
¾ teaspoon salt
1½ pounds fresh crab meat
½ cup cognac
¼ cup dry sherry
1½ tablespoons Dijon mustard
¼ teaspoon dry mustard dissolved in ½ tablespoon water
1½ tablespoons chopped parsley

Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a saucepan. Add the flour and blend. Add broth and then cream, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth and thickened. Add salt. Simmer for 5 minutes.

Melt remaining butter in a large skillet. Add crab meat. Heat cognac and sherry. Ignite and pour over crab meat. Stir in Dijon mustard, then most of the sauce. Add the dry mustard, then the balance of sauce. Simmer for 2 or 3 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley and serve.

Roast Duck, Spanish Style

2 5-pound ducks
Salt, pepper
2 medium-sized yellow onions, finely chopped
8 tablespoons butter
1 pound mushrooms, sliced
2 tablespoons Spanish paprika
1 teaspoon tomato paste
6 tablespoons flour
1 cup chicken stock
1 cup sherry
4 tomatoes, skinned, seeded and shredded
½ cup water
½ cup cognac

Season the ducks well with salt and pepper and tie them up. Roast in a 375° oven for 2 to 2¼ hours until well browned and tender. When the ducks have cooked for 1 hour, start making the sauce. Sauté the onions in 4 tablespoons butter over a slow fire until golden. Add remaining 4 tablespoons butter and the mushrooms and cook for 5 minutes or so. Blend in the paprika, tomato paste and flour. Pour on the stock and wine and stir until the mixture comes to a boil. Season and simmer for at least 20 minutes or until ready to use. Add tomatoes to the sauce just before serving. Cut the ducks into serving pieces. Pour off all fat from roasting pan, add water and cognac and bring to a boil to lift the glaze. Add to the sauce. Spoon a little sauce over the ducks. Serve the rest separately.

Saffron Rice

½ cup mixed vegetable and olive oil
1½ ounces butter
2 white onions, finely chopped
Salt, cayenne pepper
2½ cups long-grained rice
5 cups chicken stock
2 teaspoons saffron

Heat the oils and butter in a deep pan. Add the onions and a little salt and pepper. Cook slowly without browning for 3 minutes. Stir in the rice and mix in the chicken stock. Dissolve the saffron in 1 tablespoon cold water and add to the rice. Stir over the fire until it comes to a slow boil. Reduce the heat to a simmer, cover and cook without removing lid for 25 minutes. Fluff rice with a fork. Serve in a casserole.

Eggplant Salad

2 medium eggplants
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 cup diced celery
½ cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup French dressing
Romaine or Bibb lettuce
Mayonnaise, quartered hard-cooked eggs, olives

Peel and cube eggplants. Cook in salted water with lemon juice. When tender, drain and cool. Mix with onion, celery, walnuts and French dressing. Chill. Serve on lettuce, masked with mayonnaise and garnished with eggs and olives.

Tossed Green Salad

Use romaine lettuce, if possible, since it retains its crispness best. Mix it at the very last moment with a modicum of French dressing.

Chocolate Roll

6 ounces sweet chocolate
3 tablespoons brewed coffee
1 teaspoon coffee extract
1 teaspoon vanilla
5 eggs, separated
⅔ cup sugar
½ cup cocoa
2 cups whipped cream

Butter a jelly roll pan (11" by 17"), line it with wax paper and butter again. Melt the chocolate in the coffee; add the coffee extract and vanilla, mixing until smooth. Preheat oven to 350°.

Beat the egg yolks. Add the sugar, beating until thick and light. Stir in the chocolate mixture. Stiffly beat the egg whites, and fold them in carefully but thoroughly. Spread evenly on the prepared pan. Bake 15 minutes, or until a cake tester comes out clean. (The cake should be fairly moist, so do not overbake.) Cover with a damp cloth and place in the refrigerator for 1 hour. Loosen from pan. Sprinkle the cocoa on a piece of wax paper and turn the cake out onto it. Peel the paper away. Spread with whipped cream and roll up. Chill.

Compote of Pears

8 baby winter pears
4 crushed cardamom seeds
1½ cups granulated sugar
Scant ¼ cup honey
Shredded rind of 1 small orange, 1 lemon, 1 lime
1 clove
8 sticks preserved pineapple

Carefully peel pears and plunge them in boiling water with 2 or 3 slices lemon. Simmer until half cooked. Put into a pan with cardamom, sugar, honey, ½ cup water and the shredded rind of the fruits. Stir over a low fire until sugar dissolves, then cook to a light syrup without stirring. Drain the pears carefully and stick one of them with the clove. Remove the cores with a potato parer, keeping the pears whole. Replace the cores with the pineapple sticks. Place in a deep earthenware casserole and pour the syrup over them. Cook in a 300° oven for 1½ hours. Baste occasionally.

TIMETABLE

THE DAY BEFORE THE PARTY:
- Make Chocolate Roll.
- Make Compote of Pears.

EARLY NEXT DAY:
- Make Crab Meat Flambé (reheat later).
- Make Eggplant Salad up to point of masking with mayonnaise.
- Hard-cook eggs; wash lettuce.

LATER IN THE DAY:
- Start ducks about 3 hours before party.
- Cook rice as late as possible and keep warm.
- Mix salads at last minute.

Supper Parties

These days many people have given up the idea of trying to dine graciously before going to the theatre, a concert or similar evening entertainment. Instead, they fortify themselves with a snack, make the curtain without undue effort and have supper later. Considering the hour at which it is served, the meal should be simple though satisfying fare. This supper requires no assistance in cooking or serving unless you wish.

AFTER-THEATRE SUPPER FOR SIX

SMOKED SALMON ROLLS WITH HORSERADISH CREAM
MEAT BALLS STROGANOFF
KASHA
SPINACH CHINESE STYLE
FRUIT MAGNIFIQUE
MINCEMEAT COOKIES
WINE: RED BEAUJOLAIS

Smoked Salmon Rolls with Horseradish Cream

1 cup cream cheese
1 cup sour cream
1 cup freshly grated fresh horseradish
Salt
12 slices Nova Scotia smoked salmon, cut thin and long
Capers, chopped parsley, lemon wedges for garnish

Beat the cream cheese and sour cream to a smooth paste and add the horseradish, reserving a little for garnish. Add salt to taste. Spread the slices of salmon with the mixture and roll them loosely. To serve, arrange rolls on individual serving plates and garnish with capers, parsley, lemon wedges and reserved horseradish. Pass thin rye bread and butter sandwiches cut in tiny fingers.

Meat Balls Stroganoff

1½ pounds round of beef
1 cup bread crumbs
1 beaten egg
1 cup water or stock
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 teaspoons salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
⅛ cup seasoned flour
1½ tablespoons oil
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
½ can condensed onion soup
¼ cup Marsala or sherry
½ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon chopped chives for garnish

To make meat balls, mix first 7 ingredients, form into balls and roll in seasoned flour. Heat oil in skillet and sauté the meat balls, a few at a time. Transfer to the top of a chafing dish. Sauté the mushrooms in the skillet and add to the meat balls. Add the onion soup and wine to the skillet and bring to a boil, scraping up any brown bits and glaze from the bottom of the pan. Pour sauce over meat balls.

AT THE TABLE: Bring to a boil and simmer 20 minutes. Shake pan occasionally to mingle ingredients. Lower heat, carefully stir in sour cream and heat through, lifting meat balls lightly to mix in cream. Sprinkle with the chopped chives.

Kasha

1 cup buckwheat groats
1 egg
2 cups stock
Salt
4–6 tablespoons butter

Heat a heavy skillet with a tightly fitting lid. Add the groats and stir in the raw egg. Continue cooking and stirring until thoroughly blended and cooked dry. Add the stock, salt to taste and cover. Lower the heat and simmer very slowly for about ½ hour or until groats are cooked and the broth is absorbed. Mix with the butter, and heat.

Spinach Chinese Style

3 slices bacon
1½ pounds fresh spinach
1½ tablespoons French dressing
Salt, pepper

Sauté bacon until crisp. Drain and chop, reserving 2 tablespoons fat. Wash spinach and trim off large stems. Refrigerate. When ready to serve, heat fat in a large skillet. Add spinach. Stir and turn until wilted and emerald green. Stir in the French dressing and season to taste with salt and pepper. Garnish with the chopped bacon.

Fruit Magnifique

6 apples, peeled, cored
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup sugar
Piece of cinnamon stick
3 tablespoons chopped walnuts
5 ounces red wine
Lemon rind
6 pears, peeled
2 ounces Strega

Cook apples in butter with the sugar and cinnamon until tender. Take out cinnamon and add the walnuts and wine. Bring to a boil and add the lemon rind. Add the pears and poach with the apples until tender. Put the mixture in a serving bowl and pour on Strega. Serve at room temperature.

Mincemeat Cookies

1¼ cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 beaten egg
1 cup mincemeat

Sift the flour again with the baking powder. Cream the shortening, gradually adding the sugar, and stirring. Add the egg and mix well. Add the mincemeat alternately with the flour mixture, beating after each addition. Drop mixture by tablespoons on a greased cookie sheet. Bake the cookies in a preheated 350° oven for 10 to 12 minutes.

TIMETABLE

THE DAY OF THE PARTY:
- Make Mincemeat Cookies.
- Make Smoked Salmon Rolls and rye bread and butter sandwiches.
- Make Meat Balls Stroganoff up to at-the-table point.
- Wash spinach.
- Cook bacon.
- Make Kasha up to the point of mixing with butter.
- Make Fruit Magnifique.
- Arrange table; set up chafing dish.

ON ARRIVING HOME:
- Serve Smoked Salmon Rolls.
- Open wine.
- Start Stroganoff heating in chafing dish.
- Start Kasha heating in butter.
- Wilt spinach; mix with dressing.

Menus to Suit the Season

The following suggestions are designed to show how master menu planning can be adapted to the time of the year. In each case, the recipes may be found in House & Garden's Cook Book (Simon and Schuster, 1958) or in past monthly cook books published in House & Garden. Reprints of the recipes from the monthly cook books may be obtained by sending 25 cents to H&G's Reader Service, Dept. C. B., Box 211, Village Station, New York, N. Y. 10014.

Give him the edge over ham, lamb, bird or beef!

It is not to be denied. There is an art to carving.

Truth is, some blades help a man do considerably better at it. The peer of such blades are those produced, with stern and demanding eye, by Carvel Hall.

Of superb new Carvalloy, an exclusive formula stainless steel cut lengthwise with the grain for greater resiliency and strength, Carvel Hall blades are patiently honed by hand to a razor's edge. But even such magnificence is not enough for Carvel Hall.

Every handle is meticulously balanced so that each thrust and stroke is almost automatically precise. Joints surrender immediately. Slices respond willingly, almost joyously, to the firm touch of a Carvel Hall blade.

If you know a man (he may even be your husband) whose bladesmanship might be considered indifferent, present him, out of sheer adoration, with a Carvel Hall carving knife. Sets shown here, in the Somerset design.

Carvel Hall's graceful Somerset design shown here: less than $30 for carver and fork; less than $40 for carver, slicer and fork; and less than $30 for six matching steak knives. All sets in solid walnut chests.

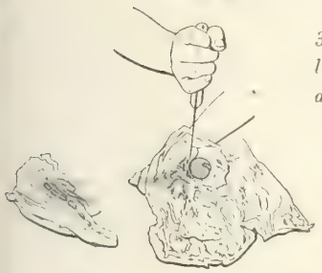
Boning meat and poultry

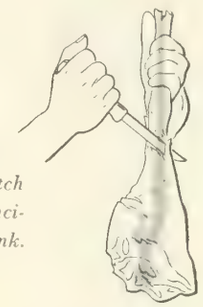
At holiday time or any time one of the most attractive, delectable and economical ways to serve meat and poultry is to bone and stuff it. The end result looks spectacular, tastes delicious (a savory stuffing complements the flavor of the meat) and yields far more servings than the usual bone-in roast or bird. Also, if you are not too handy with a carving knife, a boned roast is much easier to slice, especially with an electric slicing knife. Classic cook books abound in recipes for stuffed and boned veal, lamb, ham, chicken, duck, goose, turkey and squab. For a special dinner party you might choose tiny stuffed squab or a stuffed gigot of lamb, baked in a pastry crust (this handsome handiwork is shown in the party pictures on page 231 and the recipe is given on page 277). If you are giving a buffet or open-house party, the masterpiece on the table might be a stuffed baked ham. Even a simple chicken breast tastes festive when turned into an herb-seasoned Chicken Kiev.

Considering the scope and variety of boned stuffed dishes, they are all too seldom seen. This is mainly due to the decline in artistry and professional pride among butchers and the rise in precut, prepackaged meats. While most European butchers bone meat as a matter of course, few American butchers outside the better stores in the large cities have the will or the skill, and if they do, they are apt to charge highly—anywhere from $1 to $2.50—for their time and trouble. Yet anyone with the urge to try can learn the basic techniques in a relatively short time. Although your first attempts might be botched, you will soon get the hang of it. There is nothing esoteric about boning. All you need is a good boning knife with a slim, razor-sharp blade and a pointed tip, a cleaver or poultry shears for splitting bones or cutting through recalcitrant joints, a working knowledge of an animal's anatomy and your own hands. Hands are important; fingers have to feel for you as you work, letting you know where the bones are situated and helping you to tear away the loosened flesh. Where you wish to retain the original unboned shape of the bird or roast, the bones are removed without the skin being slit. Boning methods for a leg of lamb and a chicken—plus two ways of boning a chicken breast—are illustrated in the sketches that follow. Boning a chicken breast is fairly easy and good practice for an amateur.

How to bone a leg of lamb



Here you are working in the dark, so to speak, as the bone is shrouded in meat. However, if you feel the location of the bone with your fingers as you go, and study the darkened bone section shown in the following sketches, it should not be difficult to learn.



1. First step is to remove the hip bone section at the top of the leg. Holding the knife vertically, make an incision at outer edge.

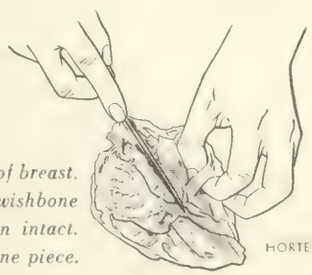
2. Following the contours of the hip bone, cut around it with point of knife until meat and bone are entirely separated from leg.

3. Push back meat to reveal upper joint of leg bone. Holding knife like dagger, cut around bone, push aside loosened meat.

4. When you reach the inner joint, switch to shank. With knife slanting, make incision three-quarters of way down shank.

5. Insert point of knife and cut around the bone, working downward and pulling meat aside, until you reach inner leg joint.

6. Stop cutting at inner joint. Hold meat with right hand, shank with left and pull out loosened bones with twisting motion.



Two ways to bone a chicken breast

As either of the following methods works perfectly well, pick the one that comes most naturally to you. The first method is the butcher's standard way of boning by simply cutting the flesh from the ribs on each side, then carefully running the knife under the skin on the ridge of the breastbone. The second method involves first cutting through the cartilage at the bottom of the breast, then snapping the joint and pushing upward to loosen the breastbone and break it in two. The meat is then cut from ribs on each side.

Method number one

1. Place skin side up. Slide point of boning knife between flesh and last rib. With sawing motion, cut toward you close to ribs, working to breastbone, pulling back flesh.

2. Repeat procedure on second side of breast. Carefully slide knife blade from wishbone along breastbone, keeping the skin intact. You can then remove rib cage in one piece.

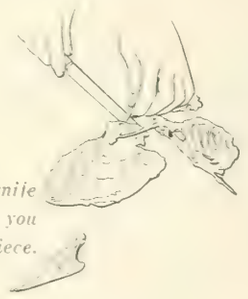
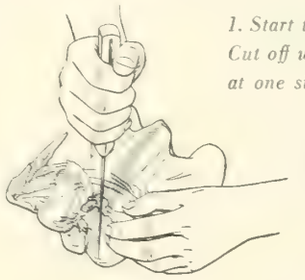
Method number two

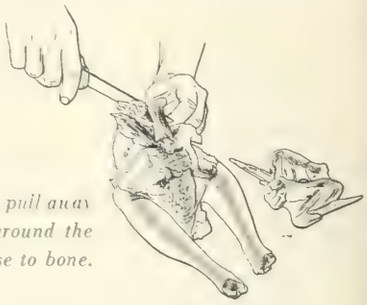


1. Place breast skin side down and hold rib cage open. With sharp knife, cut through cartilage below breastbone, where ribs join.

2. Hold breast in both hands and bend backward to snap the joint and flexible breastbone. Loosen flesh, pull out breastbone.

3. Turn skin side up and cut flesh from ribs with short sawing strokes as in first method. When you reach wishbone, cut away flesh.



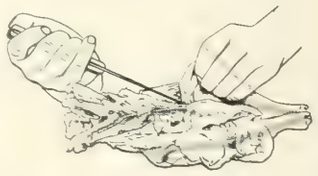


4. Grasping wishbone with fingers, use knife point to loosen flesh around it. Now you can remove entire bone section in one piece.

How to bone a chicken whole for roasting

In this method, where you want to retain the shape of the fowl, you actually remove the entire carcass, cutting and peeling the flesh and skin back like a glove. Wings and thigh bones are also removed but the drumsticks (leg bones) are left in so the chicken can be reshaped and trussed after it has been filled with stuffing.

1. Start to bone at wishbone end of chicken. Cut off wings, make first incision with knife at one side of wishbone and cut around it.



2. Use knife and fingers to cut and pull away flesh, rotating bird and cutting around the carcass, keeping knife always close to bone.

3. Continue cutting and turning, peeling skin and flesh back from carcass like a glove until you reach joint where legs join body.

4. Sever connection at joint, then cut inside thigh, around bone. Cut cartilage connecting thigh and drumstick and remove thigh bone.

5. Continue cutting flesh from carcass until it can be pulled out in one piece. Chicken can now be stuffed and sewn or skewered.

set stones in the immense showrooms of Stern's. I thought their "finished" stuff very ordinary, and for this I'd go instead to Burle Marx (actually in Copacabana). The Marx settings—bold, barbaric, superbly and supremely modern—are an essay in design, and you must expect to pay, although not so much as at home and each piece is unique. Barata Ribeiro, which backs Copacabana Beach, is the street for antique and decorating shops. Among many, I singled out Old & New, Montmartre and Chica da Silva, but their things were not cheap. However, you can find handsome and reasonably priced ashtrays made from agate, rose quartz and rock amethyst. Shop, too, for phonograph records: there are over eighty different varieties of samba, and some exciting on-the-spot recordings from Carnival. Either at dusk or dawn, climb Corcovado Mountain to see the great marble Cristo and look at Rio's clover-shaped coastline from an almost airborne viewpoint.

Sip the cocktail hour away at a pavement café, and prepare to dine late: in Brazilian company, I never managed to eat until 11 P.M. The acknowledged best restaurants are Bec Fin, Mazot and Cloche d'Or, plus Sacha's, if you also want to dance. Fred's is not the smartest of night clubs, but it has Carlos Machado's floor show, which is by far the best of the typically Brazilian. If you have friends who know Rio, get them to drive you up to the shanty towns or favellas, heart and core of the samba cult, especially if you are there just before Carnival, when the escolas are practiced every evening.

There are frequent domestic flights from the city airport, in the heart of town, to Brasilia, to the old capitals of Ouro Preto and Bahia, as well as to the commercial and industrial capital of São Paulo.

TOM LEONARD

Curving walks of the garden of the Antonio Bragas' Rio home seem to lead into and imitate the contours of the jungle and mountains.

En route to Chile, the flight over the Andes is unforgettable. Especially if you have the luck to make it late in the afternoon, chasing the sunset. Pinched-up hills in dead flat country, lifeline roads snaking through. River beds looking like dry veins and arteries (reminds you of Rembrandt's "Anatomy Lesson"). Clouds marbling the earth's surface, until the Andes, sometimes piercing cloud level, look suddenly like a fan of white ostrich feathers, touched rose at the tips. Then you come down abruptly into the fistful of white and yellow lights that is Santiago, Chile.

Scenic, sedate Santiago

After so dramatic a preamble, Santiago, in the cold light of the following morning, seems a quiet city. Its buildings, built necessarily upon anti-seismic principles, are squat, square and liver-colored. Wandering its streets, you could easily conclude that you were in Europe, even though at your back are the visible Andes. In fact, one of the nearby small

Quality Lamp Makers for over 30 Years

coast resorts. Zapallar, is reminiscent of a French Riviera fishing village. It was here that I met the designer Mario Matta, one of whose brothers, Roberto, is a painter living in New York, the other, Serge, a designer working with Maggie Rouff in Paris. The Matta house is a small mansion (built in fact in the Thirties, but timeless) with a garden terrace faced by four Florentine pillars overlooking the bay. Assembled in his drawing room are objects from all over the world: black lamp standards from China, stone figures from Peru, brilliantly colored porcelain stoves from Persia. There are pine beams against a pale yellow ceiling, and the whole room, except for one plain stone wall, is covered in cool, steel blue silk fabric. The black lamps from China have black shades on them, the chairs are faded steel blue plush. The only other color note is provided by an immense squashy sofa upholstered in vibrant ruby velvet. A window leading out into the stone lobby is framed not by curtains but by a gilt picture frame cut to size—perhaps the most original touch of all.

In other parts of the house, I noted a huge dimple bottle filled to the brim with silver coins; simple enough but oddly exotic. One bedroom had a divan, covered in black felt, chairs covered in bleached blond straw fabric (one odd chair filled with brilliant colored cushions); rush matting on the floor. What prevents this house from looking like a museum is the fact that it is, decisively, lived-in. (With delight I watched the owner plunk his brandy glass down on top of an exquisite Louis Quinze desk.) "The obvious thing to do with a Louis Quinze desk," remarked Mr. Matta, "is to surround it with things that match. Which is why I haven't. I see no laws about matching anything, and the best way in which to exploit a beautiful piece of furniture is first to use it functionally as it was intended, second to surround it with things that contrast utterly in period," and he pointed to some of his brother's abstract paintings. "A house is a personal thing, not an exhibition."

Returning to Santiago on the Pan American Highway, I stopped at the little village of La Ligua. In it is a treasure trove of a shop—or rather, a warehouse—which supplies the decorating shops of Santiago but is willing to sell directly to the public. Here were wonderful bright woolen ponchos for about $4; bolts of brilliant tweeds for upholstery or clothing; alpaca blankets and handwoven Indian rugs. The lobby shop of Santiago's biggest hotel, the Carrera (now Hilton owned), has some good leather stuff—very nice hide luggage and blotter covers.

The restaurants "on the circuit" are the Crillon, which belongs to Santiago's oldest hotel; Chez Henry, which is small and French; El Oriente for fish; El Parron for grills; plus the open-air rooftop restaurant of the Carrera. Generally the seafood in Santiago is good, the rest passable, the wines excellent, the coffee atrocious and the service next week. Most entertaining goes on privately in the pretty white Spanish-style houses of the garden suburbs and so the restaurants are not greatly patronized by the Chileans. While a guest in one home, I found a dish worth recording: a hot savory pancake, simple and delicious. Roll sliced, raw, peeled tomatoes and a quick-melting cream cheese, well seasoned with nutmeg, pepper and salt, inside already cooked crêpes. Cover with a béchamel sauce and cream, rebake in the oven for 10 minutes and serve immediately. With this dish, we drank one of the best of Chilean wines, a red Santa Carolina.

Romantic Chilean resorts

If you want to know Chile at all, then you have to leave Santiago, for it typifies nothing of a country that stretches 2,500 miles in length, up to the barren lands of the north and down toward the Antarctic in the south. I flew south in a DC3 to Pucon, the lake resort nearest to Santiago. We landed in the middle of a field and here, for the first time, felt we were in a strange country. Just as the aircraft ground its way over the hedges again, the hotel's Landrover turned up to collect us and our baggage. The huasos (Chilean horsemen) were riding, loose-limbed and bareback, along dusty roads. The great white peak of Villarrica volcano rose above the lake, its summit smoking faintly in the still air. The object of the journey was the small but famous hotel, Antumalal (Indian for "Place in the Sun"), on the shores of Lake Villarrica. By any standards, it was an exotic setting, but perhaps it was the mass of familiar flowers—lupins, delphiniums, roses and phlox—against this volcanic background, against the blighted branches of bare trees, that pointed it further.

The hotel is decorated in what might be called "sophisticated log cabin." The chairs in the bar have soft, hide-slung backs, the lamp standards in the bedrooms are made from smallish, weirdly shaped trees. The patio is paved with sawed-off tree trunks, worked like mosaic in the ground, and it leads through terraces of glorious gardens down to the edge of the lake where people water-ski, lie about or swim. But the real point of Pucon is the fishing, both in the Trancura River and in the lake itself. Collected by truck at eight one morning, complete with one guide and a flat-bottomed boat apiece, we drove to one of the most fruitful stretches of the river, and there embarked. I, who had never fished before in my life, caught nine rainbow trout before lunch, which proves that they really do come out to meet you. And then our guides took us ashore and produced a picnic barbecue that I shall never forget. They gutted, buttered, seasoned and wrapped the trout in layers of paper. They then lit a bonfire and put the paper parcels in the hot sand underneath the cinders for half an hour. Bottles of wine were put to cool in the river, and in the meantime, they stripped a bamboo branch and on it impaled a side of lamb over the fire, well-rubbed with salt. They even produced lemon halves for the fish, which tasted, needless to say, out of this or any other world.

Within an hour's drive of Santiago are two more delightful excursions: the first to Farellones, the ski resort closest to the capital. Most people take their skis and make a day's trip of it. I went there in the February summer when there was no snow except for the glaciers, but even then I found the journey, spiraling through the Andean foothills, the vistas and, above all, the hot crystalline quality of the air, more than rewarding. I enjoyed a quite different trip down to a fundo in the vineyard country. Here, south of the capital and not far from the sea, are scattered romantic, eighteenth-century Spanish-style estate houses with terra-cotta outbuildings and stables, for all the vineyard tenders ride horseback, wearing the traditional Andalusian dress. Most of the bigger vineyards are open to the public, and you can get details from your hotel concierge. It is an interesting excursion, for Chilean wines, many of which are exported to the United States, are excellent and worth sampling.

Patrician Lima

Lima, the old, proud capital of the Spanish Conquistadores who built and settled it in the mid-sixteenth century, was for a time head of a viceroyalty that included not only Peru but Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Bolivia and part of Argentina. It still bears the patina. Its Spanish Peruvian ruling class has, like the Viennese who once ruled a Hapsburg empire, a charm born of quick wit and good living, a way of life as leisured as 1910, and they still wear their sables, metaphorically, on the inside.

Some of Lima's magnificent old Colonial buildings have gone, but you will still see a white Baroque church sandwiched between two steel-and-concrete skyscrapers. One of the loveliest of the old palaces, the Torre Tagle, now houses the Foreign Ministry. It has been perfectly restored, and its courtyard and superbly tiled upper balconies, faced with Moorish-looking wooden grilles, are open to the public. Among the old churches, see at least the Jesuit Church of San Pedro. In the old part of the city, over the bridge, walk in the statued gardens of the Alameda de los Descalzos and the gardens of the Paseo de Aguas, created by a viceroy to please his mistress, the famous La Perricholi. Above all, see the seventeenth-century bull ring, an edifice of dusty pink stucco with a bust of Manolete looking like a Roman emperor by its main entrance. Because the seasons are directly reversed, Lima gets all the best Spanish matadors, and the feria, in October, is a great occasion.

From Lima's past

The two most important public museums in Lima are the Larco, whose collection consists mainly of pottery and jewelry, and the Anthropological Museum, which houses a magnificent collection covering every aspect of Inca history and way of life. The Incas' was a remarkable civilization, considering that until the Spaniards came, its people had neither writing, currency nor wheeled transport. Incas were primarily builders and administrators.

There are several semi-private art collections whose owners are delighted to show them. If you lack a personal contact, the best approach is through your embassy. One of the most famous is that of Pedro de Osma. I also liked the Prado; the house itself is even more interesting than the collection, decorated mainly in French rococo style, all dusty mirrors and gilt and plush.

A favorite decoration common to all the great houses I saw in Lima is a gilt sunburst mirror with fragments of glass inlaid into the frames. Reproductions of these are on sale in all the antique shops. Casa Mas, on Union (the main shopping street), is an excellent hunting ground, but a knowing friend took me to a small workshop on Luna Pizarro Street, on the outskirts of the city, where these "instant antiques" are actually made. In the doorway was a tumble of half-gilded frames, some of them even being worked right on the pavement. While I waited, a boy trimmed a glass with scissors around a paper pattern cut to size, slapped it into a frame, put a couple of nails on the back to hold it, touched up the gilt and presented it to me at a cost of $3. If you find it less trouble to go to one of the regular shops, then prepare also to bargain—hard. Other buys: green-copper ashtrays and dishes with inlaid silver Inca motifs; washable llama-skin rugs; striped Indian blankets; and at Sylvania Prints, some original hand-blocked linens, again based on Inca designs, in marvelous bright (and fast) colors. Take a taxi out to Miraflores and visit the workshop/showrooms of the American, Truman Bailey. Here are carved wooden bowls (Peru grows something like seventy different varieties of wood); Peruvian silver and ceramics, part traditional, part contemporary; cigarette boxes made of lignum or sandalwood.

The new long party look

A nine o'clock invitation allows even the busiest guest plenty of time to dress, and the gala dress this year is long. Especially significant to H&G is the fact that these new ankle-length fashions are not intended to be worn to balls or operas, but, according to the label, "at home"—and the label carries a footnote saying "your own home or someone else's." At the parties on pages 224 to 231, the dresses range from printed cotton to lustrous satin, from velveteen to sheer wool. The shoes that go so well with them are by Taj of India.

Page 225, top: Mohair-and-wool coat plaided in white, black and red. $70. Under it, a short-sleeved shift of black Orlon and wool jersey. $65. Both, sizes 8-16, by Peer Negligee. At Lord & Taylor, New York; Hutzler's, Baltimore; Bramson, Chicago; Sakowitz, Houston; I. Magnin, West Coast.

Page 225, top: Belted shirt shift of sheer wool, printed in red, green and yellow, with skirt to the ankles, sleeves to the wrist, buttons from neck to hem. Fully lined. $60. Sizes 8-18. B. Cohen. At Julius Garfinckel & Co., Washington; Halle Bros., Cleveland; I. Magnin, West Coast.

Page 225, bottom: Surplice top of moss green mohair blended with wool and nylon, plus a full skirt of the same fabric printed in green and white. $65. Sizes 8-16; Dorian-Macksoud. At Lord & Taylor, New York; Famous-Barr Co., St. Louis; I. Magnin, West Coast.

Page 226, top: Sleeveless ankle-length dress with a romantically high Empire waistline—of cotton printed with larger-than-life zinnias. $20. Sizes 8-18. Swirl. At Lord & Taylor, New York; Marshall Field, Chicago; Hutzler's, Baltimore; I. Magnin, West Coast.

SECOND STEP

Just yesterday, he took that dramatic and momentous first step. Today comes an even greater triumph—a second step, hailed as positive proof that "he's walking!"

So often in life it is a "second step" that proves to be the most significant. This can be especially important when a family is making plans for home remodeling.

First step, of course, is the decision to remodel—whether it's a new roof, wall or ceiling, or to add a room, convert a basement or attic. The second step is to insist upon quality building materials. When you choose precision-made, durable products including those which carry the famous BESTWALL and CERTAIN-TEED names, you know for sure that home remodeling will mean home improvement.

So protect your family and your investment. For greater beauty, safety, and lasting value, choose building materials offered by your Bestwall Certain-teed dealer. See him now — or write direct to

Night life in Lima

I found the food in Lima superior to any other on my South American trip. There is a big public for good restaurants, of which there are many. One can happily combine some of Lima's old colonial atmosphere with some good eating at Trece Monedas, an original mansion preserved in the heart of the city. An enormous wooden door in a rather slummy street opens onto a quiet balconied courtyard and rooms lit by exquisite old lamps and furnished perfectly (and genuinely) in the period. Your apéritif might be a Pisco Sour (pisco is a light pale brandy) made with fresh limes. Try a seviche of sea bass marinated, raw, in lime juice and served on a bed of lettuce with raw sliced onion rings and lots of fresh-ground pepper. You could treat any firm white fish the same way, leaving it in the juice for about 24 hours. Another specialty is conchitas, which are tiny scallops, at their best done in their shells with a sauce mousseline. Kebabs of all kinds—heart, liver, kidney, mutton, always served with a hot spicy sauce—are another feature of Peruvian cuisine. The Crillon and Ninety One Club, French and Italian respectively, are both top-floor restaurants, providing a completely different aspect of the city. Suddenly, from a height, it looks a bit like Athens—dusty white, cube-shaped houses, skyscrapers and domes, the surrounding landscape similarly dry and brown. On a good day you can see fifteen miles away to the coast and the offshore island that floats buff-colored in the pale Pacific.

In the library of Alex Cuirlizza's Lima home, the drama of a heavy carved door is heightened by the sawtooth ornamental frieze above it.

In the evening, Karamanduka is amusing. It is a tavern type of place, and has interesting folk singers and dancers. The Indian women, wearing bowler hats over their long black plaits, perform to extraordinary music played on a box-like instrument by a man. The dancing is a cross between a Scottish reel and a truncated waltz, and the tunes are haunting. Not far away, in Miraflores, Ed's Bar is one of the gayest night spots in the low-light-and-phonograph idiom. It warms up around 2:30 A.M. Lima's leading hotel, the Bolivar, is small, voluptuously comfortable and beautifully serviced. High life, which can be well worth watching, comes and goes in a central lobby bar known as the "snake pit."

Random recollections

I flew north to New York on a BOAC Boeing with a kaleidoscope of impressions and memories. I thought of the unexploited vastness that lies between the South American cities, and of the oddly quite European civilization within them. Of the brave-new-worldliness of Rio and its splendid and sometimes inspiring beauty. Of hibiscus-shaded lawns in Santiago and the cultured and cosmopolitan Chilean who said to me: "Of course if you are looking for something typically South American, I'd never suggest you visit Santiago. But it is agreeable, is it not?" Of the fishing guide at Pucon who, at the barbecue, opened a bottle of wine by banging its base, straight and firm, on the ground five times (the cork simply came up). Of the fine, new Spanish-style houses of Lima with their white walls and heavy wrought-iron doors. Of Indian women, blanket-swaddled, nursing their babies on the streets of the capital. Of the main highway outside Lima and the huge trucks rumbling down from the Andes, spewing red dust as they went. Headed toward a vastly different and—to me—familiar America, I was thankful for my glimpses of this great southern continent.

EDITOR'S NOTE: H&G's frequent contributor on travel, Doone Beal, has reported to us on the architecture, decorating, food and crafts of many European countries. It was almost inevitable that she would eventually sample the South American continent.

MISERY ENOUGH TO BREAK YOUR HEART

Su-Jen doesn't laugh or sing the way little girls should. But then she really doesn't have much to be happy about.

Her mother is dead—her father shiftless and cruel. High in the mountains of Taiwan (Formosa), Su-Jen herds goats all day.

She has never had a dress that wasn't torn, or a bright ribbon in her hair, and she cries when village kids laugh at her ragged clothing.

Inside her bamboo hut, Su-Jen and three other children share one soiled blanket. On cold nights they sleep with the goats.

For Su-Jen, life is a bitter struggle against disease and hunger. She is denied her deepest emotional needs —love of parents, security, education.

Yet Su-Jen is only one tragic reason why CCF has been helping needy youngsters for a quarter of a century. Her misery is enough to break your heart—but multiply Su-Jen by millions, and you begin to understand why urgent requests come daily from CCF's world-wide staff . . . Seoul, Korea, 10 babies abandoned every day . . Vietnam, more war orphans . . . India . . . Hong Kong . . . Jordan . . . Athens.

You or your group can "adopt" a child equally as desperate as Su-Jen, for only $10 a month, in your choice of the 55 countries listed. Since 1938 Americans have found this to be the beginning of a warm personal friendship with a deserving child, making it possible today for CCF to assist over 43,000 children.

You will receive your child's personal history, a photo, the opportunity to exchange letters, Christmas cards, and love . . .

Our gay Christmas cutouts are easy to make

The reindeer, the angel and all the other figures that embellish our gift pages can deck your Christmas tree, parade along a mantel, add a fillip to packages or mark the places at a holiday party table. And making the cutouts is so easy the kindergarten crowd can do it. For patterns and instructions, send your request and a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope measuring 9½ inches by 4¼ inches to:

H&G Reader Service
420 Lexington Avenue
New York, N. Y. 10017

From your sketch, cut out each shape to use as a pattern for the appliqué. Fold your scraps in two, pin the patterns on the doubled fabric and cut out the shapes, adding a little less than a quarter of an inch all around for seams. (A material like felt that doesn't ravel may be cut to exact size.) Before you go any further, seam the double pieces together by machine, wrong side out, and turn them. It is much easier to do this than to try to turn under and hem the small pieces by hand, particularly circular shapes. Be sure to clip curves so that the finished shapes will lie flat.

Any additional stitchery such as the oval lines in the rug in our bedroom scene should be done next. When you have completed all the separate appliqués, pin or baste them onto the pillow face, overlapping the larger pieces (such as the foliage and tree trunk or the two sides of the house). Stitch them down by machine, close to the edge, leaving openings to form pockets. Start with the center pieces and work out toward the edges of the composition. Then sew on the buttons, hooks, eyes, snaps and other trimmings. Finally, embroider directly on the pillow face, either by hand or machine, any fine details such as the base of the bedroom lamp.

Now you are ready to assemble the pillowcase. First hem one end of the pocket piece—the free edge at the top—and the free edge of the flap. Then lay the pillow front on the table with the appliquéd side up. On top of this place the flap, right side down; then the pocket piece, right side down; then the back, right side down. Stitch together along top and sides, leaving the bottom open. Turn the pillow cover right side out, insert the pillow or a filler such as Dacron batting, and blind stitch the open side.

The Five and Ten will yield many little treasures to tuck in the pockets. Party supply stores, Japanese and Mexican shops have all kinds of miniature figures and furnishings. The candy store is sure to have something you'll need, and your own pocketbook ought to furnish you with a coin or two.

If you would like to duplicate one or all of the gift pillows on page 268, you can purchase a complete kit that includes fabric for the pillowcase and the appliqués as well as patterns for cutting out the motifs. Single kits for blue, yellow or pink pillow are $1.95 each, ppd.; kits for making all three are $5 each set, ppd. Please address orders, including payment to Hilltop House, Box 253, Chappaqua, N. Y.

For quiet, small-scale entertaining, the wing of the living room next to the bar is furnished as a games corner

The card area of the living room makes nice provision for the amenities of sight, sound and thirst. The greenery of the entrance court offers a pleasant view; one wall holds the hi-fi installation, and a second wall is mostly bar. Well-lighted by a luminous ceiling, game table and chairs are permanent fixtures.

The bar is handsomely paneled in matched flitches of walnut (every last bit of it finished by Mrs. Mont), and, like the card area and foyer, has a plastic, luminous ceiling. The painting next to the bar is the work of the Monts' favorite artist, Robert Natkin.

On the mixing side, the bar is a host's delight. Undercounter fluorescent tubes light the sink and wash-up area; a sizable cabinet houses reserve spirits and a bank of drawers holds everything from bar tools to cocktail napkins and peanuts.

Formal grace for an imposing room or cozy elegance for alcove or anteroom with this 18th Century duet that pays lasting tribute to historic craftsmanship. Chippendale love seat in Federal motif tapestry about $300. Queen Anne tea table in finest solid mahogany about $80. Send 50¢ for the complete showing of our award winning James River Collection of authentic reproductions.

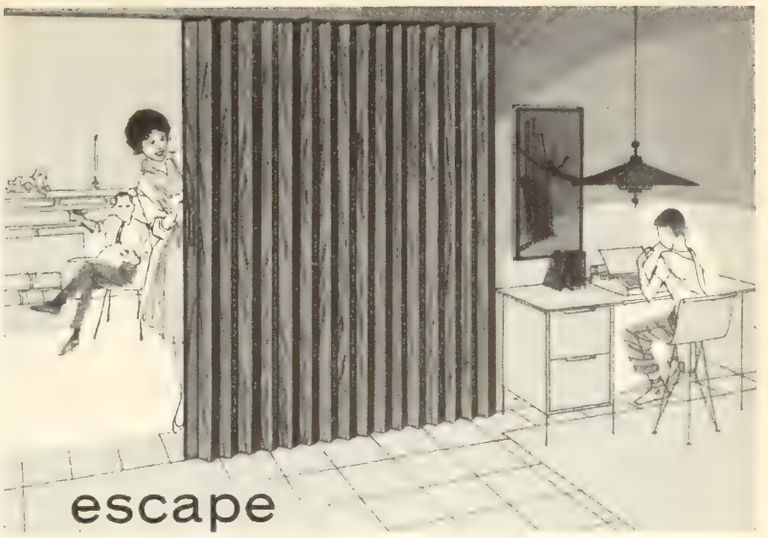
The kitchen, its sinews hidden under the gleam of walnut, is designed to be a perfect servant for a hospitable household

Pass-through in the cabinet wall between kitchen and dining room has proved a remarkable expediter of serving and clearing away. Between meals, two sections of little folding doors draw across the opening to shut off the view of the kitchen. Hi-fi speakers atop the cabinet wall are two of four. This duo is for dinner music and dancing, the other pair are in the conversation pit.



Kitchen side of the pass-through wall presents an almost solid flank of overhead and undercounter cabinets. Double wall-ovens and refrigerator-freezer are in the same wall. Opposite the ovens is a sink-and-dishwasher peninsula, and opposite that, the cooking counter. The triangular arrangement of work centers is a great step-saving asset to family meal preparation.

EZRA STOLLER

Laundry is housed in the little service entrance wing that extends into the carport and is also a hideaway for a vertical freezer. The frosted-glass door leads to the carport, the door at extreme left to the basement. Black-knobbed doors at far end of room next to the dryer hide an electric panel box.

escape from too much "togetherness" . . . into your own "little private world." It's done with PELLA WOOD FOLDING DOORS that come in veneers of nature's own AMERICAN WALNUT, BIRCH, PINE, OAK, WHITE ASH and PHILIPPINE MAHOGANY. We'll finish them at the factory or you can finish them at home. Available in Canada, too. Send for color pictures of wood grains.

Fresh from India, Italy, South of the Border and Heaven knows where else (but all via the North Pole), this enchanting assembly (see it in color on page 236) is presided over by: 1. A singularly unfearful octopus of red and orange polka-dotted cotton, stuffed to the gills. Papier Malcé. $7.48 ppd. 2. Pottery bank in the apt form of a purse painted and decorated with découpage. Henri Bendel. $5.45 ppd. 3. Wreath of natural wood with red and green paper holly leaves and berries. Wilburt. $4.50 ppd. 4. Straw basket to go a-Maying. Wilburt. $1.95 ppd. 5. From Mexico, a starfish key ring of Vermeil. Tiffany. $20.50 ppd. 6. Olinala chest (Olinala is the name of a Mexican village famous for this work). 29 by 13½ by 13½ inches. Phoenix Pan American Imports. $90 exp. coll. 7. Felt elephant gift container (new version of a Christmas stocking) with orange head and trunk, shocking pink body and ears. Stark Valla. $4.95 ppd. 8. Hide-a-way doll (its removable head is the lid of a cylindrical container) of cardboard with calico arms and legs. Seibu. $3.25 ppd. 9. Alabaster obelisk in multicolored stripes, 18 inches high. Rosemary Bouden. $65 ppd. 10. Red and gold tissue paper flower, very hothouse-ish. The Pink Balloon. $2 ppd. 11. Bowling-ball candle in fondant stripes. Wilburt. $2.50 ppd. 12 and 13. Two Olinala chests, cousins of the whopper holding the octopus. Phoenix Pan American Imports. 12 by 6 by 5 inches, $16.25 ppd. 6 by 3 by 3 inches. $10 ppd. 14. Candleholder covered in red and orange velvet and trimmed with gold braid. (Also in green and blue.) Stark Valla. $3.95 ppd. 15. Fat, pompous and wonderful: a red wood cat pepper mill, 13 inches high. Wallachs. $10.35 ppd. 16. Exotic multicolored flower tree with gold base. From Thailand. Stark Valla. $18 ppd. 17. Open face clock of black metal with red and blue "works," 4 inches in diameter. Wilburt. $15.85 ppd. 18. Felt fish gift container in blue and purple (for once the fish has turned the tables on the cat). Stark Valla. $4.95 ppd. Background of Christmas Red oilcloth is by Columbus Coated Fabrics. 46 inches wide: 79 cents per yard. 54 inches wide: 89 cents per yard.

Likewise from the North Pole—a long joy ride—comes the equipage above (see it in detail on page 237). Among its varied passengers are 1. A wild, wild rose of scarlet and gold tissue. The Pink Balloon. $2 ppd. 2. Tin Lizzie—a 1910 Model T with a 3HP gasoline engine and nostalgically authentic in every detail other than being half-scale. This wonder is not for highway motoring: normal cruising speed is 10 MPH. Hammacher Schlemmer. $425. Shipping charges vary according to destination. 3. Early American doll with white blouse and calico skirt. Stark Valla. $6.95 ppd. 4. Red and pink pillow in the "Italian Lily" pattern, 15 inches square. Nettle Creek. $9.95. 5. Plushy owl, giant-size and wondrous. By Steiff. F. A. O. Schwarz. $95 ppd. 6. Mingei drawstring bag of heavy handmade flowered paper, yellow on orange. Mayfair. $1.25, ppd. 7. Papier-mâché angel complete with trumpet and gold-trimmed red gown. 11 inches long. Anita Kott. $10.50 ppd. 8. Spice caddy of cardboard covered with orange and shocking pink glossy paper. Wilburt. $4.50 ppd. 9. Brass automobile horn from India (its hoot would scare a tiger). F. A. O. Schwarz. $11.45 ppd. 10. Lantern-shaped glass bank with red leather case, 10 inches high. T. Anthony. $16.95 ppd. 11. Owl's head candles, one green, one red. Inner core burns away so shell may be used as a votive candleholder. Stuart Becker. $2.25 each, ppd. 12. Della Robbia wreath, lush with pretty ersatz fruit, holds a large green candle. Altman's. $11 complete. 13. Garland of graduated red satin balls strung with gold glass beads on rayon cord. 9 feet long. Palley's. $3.88 ppd. 14. Alabaster tortoise from Italy (where the tortoise is an institution). Piazza. $52 ppd. Prices approximate, include Federal tax. For store directory, see page 293.

If greasy soil is HERE....it's HERE.....and HERE

The Duraclean® Method

absorbs this soil without ruinous soaking—without harsh mechanical scrubbing

Don't permit your costly carpeting and lovely upholstery to be worn away with harsh machine scrubbing. Don't permit your floor coverings to be soaked with water and risk the chance of serious shrinkage. The quick drying DURACLEAN Foam—applied gently, removed at once—cannot wear down the pile or fabric, cannot soak your rugs or carpets.

Swiftly this aerated foam separates the greasy soil from the fibers, then absorbs it so it can be sponged away with soft, clean sponges. In just a few hours your carpets are ready to walk on; your furniture ready to use. And, it's all done in your home without upsetting your daily routine. Like magic, the DURACLEAN Foam leaves your fabrics Flower Fresh and CLEAN!

Callaway's Chateau Rose is a rose is a rose is a rose.

None of your wishy-washy florals for Callaway! When they bring you a rose, it's a rose. A rose straight from an old Loire garden that borders a pool where a Marquise used to bathe. Pick this rose yourself now ...on thick white towelling...and bathe in a garden of your own. The look agrees with the "Label of Luxury"®...but you'll be pleasantly surprised at the price. In five brilliant colors. At Stern's, New York, and other fine stores. Callaway Mills, Inc., LaGrange, Ga.

the contemporary group

What you see: a pure and simple furniture grouping in good modern taste. Not so obvious: the cheerful colors, blue and yellow, on the drawer fronts. Contemporary should last through junior high; the only change you might make would be the substitution of a matching Youth Bed for the Crib. Note the little chair, step stool and lamps. Like all Child Craft accessories, they make excellent gifts.

Breakfast room and kitchen, like the rest of the house, reflect the emphasis on modern efficiency in a classic setting

The breakfast room contains as much storage for china and silver as an old-fashioned butler's pantry, but of a considerably more handsome type: handcrafted walnut armoire-cabinets. Floral découpage is Mrs. Baker's work—she took over when a local paperhanger reneged.

In remarkably small space in one corner of the breakfast room, Mrs. Baker has set up her household planning center. Curious old prints are grouped around an antique French bibliothèque filled with cook books.

The kitchen, too, has its quota of good-looking cabinets, all of walnut, all painstakingly made (as were the parquet floors throughout the house) by a furniture cabinetmaker. Up-to-date working equipment includes an infra-red warmer to keep food at serving temperature.

A pretty little Palladian wing houses the service entrance and varied storage

At side of house, next to garage, is a small extension divided in two. One section is a walk-in outdoor closet for garden and carpentry tools and air-cooling units. The other—a semi-enclosed porch outside kitchen door—includes two more closets and a little flower-arranging area.

Looking through the porch window, you see little evidence of anything utilitarian—only a charming picture of flowers, fresh from the garden, waiting to be arranged. But behind louvered doors are two compartments, one for firewood, the other for the traditional backyard orphans: ash cans and heavy metal containers for refuse.

GUERRERO

Delivery box for milk, groceries and packages is just inside the garage door and is built into the wall between garage and kitchen. This neat expedient saves time and trouble, and can be locked, of course, from the inside. The two adjacent closets are for garage paraphernalia.

Bonsai briefs: how to collect, care for, create your own

The art of bonsai is concerned with living, changing plants. It gives you the combined pleasure of keeping them alive and master-minding their changes. This does not mean you must create your own bonsai in order to enjoy it to the full (although "creation" is easier than you might think). But you will find any bonsai more rewarding if you understand what it represents in the plant world and how it gets to be the way it is (see pages 264-267), and also what care it needs, what esthetic ends it can serve. Then maybe you will want to try your hand at making a bonsai. Almost all forms of bonsai must receive unfailingly regular care if they are to retain their quality. We can only touch on the rudiments of the subject—and perhaps whet your appetite for more. In preparing the following notes we have called upon the knowledge of a number of professionals and on the typewriter and pencil of artist Ray Porter, one of the charter founders of the Bonsai Society of Greater New York. Here is the substance of his capsule recommendations on the care, and in at least a single instance the making, of bonsai.

How to take care of bonsai

1. Plenty of light and air is essential to all bonsai plants, although full sun may be harmful to many species. (Of course, a good many tropical and sub-tropical plants can be confined to greenhouse conditions.) Ideally a bonsai grows best on an elevated stand or open shelf (with no earth beneath, roots will not grow out of the drain holes of the container) and under a lath shade during the sunniest hours.

The amount of light your bonsai may require depends not only on the species but on the speed of the air circulation, the relative humidity and the amount of water the soil around the roots can hold. Overheated and overdry winter room conditions can quickly prove fatal. Trees and shrubs native to temperate zones of the world, especially the deciduous ones, must be allowed a period of relative dormancy that can be achieved only in low temperatures, as in an unheated greenhouse. A cool porch, with supplementary artificial light if necessary, and with a tray of moist pebbles under the container to provide humidity, will serve. Even a north-facing bay window that can be shut away from room heat might do. It is almost axiomatic to warn that all extreme conditions should be avoided, and that overbalance in one direction may call for under balance in another.

2. Adequate water is as important as good light and air. Good bonsai soil is porous and well drained (essential to maintenance of good root systems). Because most bonsai containers are always relatively small, and usually shallow (depending on the species and the individual plant), the soil tends to dry out quickly. In warm, dry, sunny weather, this becomes a real hazard. Water must be applied at least once a day during the growing season. Fruiting and flowering trees will require more water than the general run of decid- (Continued on page 304)

RALPH BAILEY

The range of plants in the collection of Yuji Yoshimura, proprietor of the Yoshimura Bonsai Co. in Tarrytown, N. Y., is even more extensive than it would be in the open landscape. Among species prominently displayed in the representative selection ABOVE are such evergreens as hemlocks, pines and spruces, deciduous elms (and the related zelkova), maples and (far right, front) a magnificent old azalea from the remote mountains of Japan. Miniature bonsai containers no bigger than demitasse cups, reflecting trays for water plants, ceramic pots of museum quality and the favored unglazed brown pans are all matched to the root shapes and over-all form of the plants they contain and are an important part of the whole effect.

Plants suitable for bonsai culture may be found in a New England orchard as well as on an Asiatic hillside. A weather-beaten apple tree, LEFT, enjoys new life, after only three years, in collection of Gerald Stowell, Armonk, N. Y. Small field flowers cover the mossy base. Other displays on next page.

"Winterize" your trees...now!

You "winterize" your car for winter protection, and if you stop to think, you'll realize it's even more vital to protect your living, breathing trees from winter's killing effects.

Think what a sudden early ice storm could do! Heavily iced branches could crack and break. Burdened limbs could split beyond repair at weakened forks.

Davey experts, with years of experience and modern equipment, can prepare your trees to stand firmly against winter's worst. They will brace and cable weak forks and heavy limbs – now. Dead limbs should be pruned away. And now's an excellent time for Davey to give your trees the vitality for a glorious spring awakening – with a deep-root feeding of new Davey Arbor Green Improved Tree Food, with special humus forming material. Your trees will go right on feeding until the ground is frozen.

uous trees. Evergreens, especially pines, may require much less. Miniature bonsai (those in teacup-size containers) may need watering three or four times daily. In very warm and sunny weather, a single watering around noon will serve as well as two waterings applied one in the morning (it will dry out by afternoon) and one late in the day. As a general rule, frequent watering from above is preferable to occasional soaking from below, although care should be taken to make sure the moisture penetrates all the way to the drainage material in the bottom of the container. As exceptions, willow, wisteria, bald cypress, rock plantings (page 266) and other wet-ground species can rest in water continuously during the growing season. And the very smallest bonsai can be safely placed in trays filled with moist sand.

Watering methods are largely a matter of convenience. Hand-watering with an ordinary watering can fitted with a fine "rose" is an obvious choice. So is a garden hose with a fine spray nozzle. Automatic sprinkling systems are a boon when a large collection of plants must be cared for and time is at a premium. Rain is fine when you get it, but check afterwards to make sure plants remain evenly moist.

3. Regular fertilizing is an essential part of bonsai grooming. Regular means, in general, weekly or fortnightly. Suitable fertilizers for such applications include weak liquid manure (possibly malodorous), soluble brands such as Hyponex at half strength or less and ground fish (in soluble form) in weak doses. Some species are excepted from the general rules of timing: Conifers should be fertilized only after spring growth has hardened, in mid- to late summer, with a maximum of six to eight applications before winter. Fruiting and flowering trees will set buds most abundantly for next year if they are fed weekly rather than fortnightly. Rhododendrons (including azaleas) and other ericaceous species require two or three applications of acid fertilizer during the early season, but none at all after August 1st.

4. Timely pruning is indispensable to keeping shapely bonsai shapely. When you get your bonsai from the grower, its shape and form is, or should be, permanently established. If the original character is to be preserved, you should partially remove new growth after its seasonal increase has become apparent, allowing only enough to remain to ensure the health and vigor of the plant. Removal of all new seasonal growth will, of course, ultimately destroy the plant, but retention of part of it will encourage desirable compactness, multiplicity of twig formation and thickening of trunk and branch. Useful pruning tools include surgical scissors, tweezers (for grooming needle evergreens) and of course your finger tips. Certain species have special pruning requirements: Prune new growth on maples, elms (including zelkova) and hornbeam to leave only two nodes. Shorten new "candles" of pines just before the needles unfold, leaving a cluster of only the lower three or four needles on the stub. Leave a ¼ to ½ inch at the base of fir and spruce shoots similarly pinched back. With your fingers or with tweezers, pinch out shoots of junipers that seem disproportionately long, taking care not to cut through needles that would forthwith turn brown and unsightly; over-all pinching (but not shearing) of junipers makes for compact growth. Remove all sucker shoots from around tree bases as they appear. Flowering trees should be pruned after flowering is over, the same as foliage plants. Fruit clusters should be thinned discriminatingly to produce larger and more effective fruits. If you have especially vexing problems, refer them to an expert. (In fact, routine matters affecting very valuable bonsai should be referred to an expert.) Even with established bonsai, some shaping of new branches by wiring may be required (see page 306); this may also be best handled or directed by either a professional or a skilled amateur.

APLIN

Regular watering and, more important, humidification of the air around the plants are essential in dry climates. Here automatically controlled mist nozzles supported on overhead pipes satisfy needs of many kinds of plants as required.

5. Winter care is not to be confused with non-care. Although most bonsai need a winter rest, none can be left to the natural elements. Fluctuating temperatures upset the growth processes. Snow and ice break branches. Frost breaks containers. The following protective measures may prove varyingly useful: Make sure all bonsai enter winter well watered. Use a north-facing deep cold frame (well drained and baited with rodent poison) for most hardy tree bonsai. They may stay frozen all winter without harm. By all means use a cold or cool greenhouse if you have one, but be sure to maintain an adequate schedule of watering to forestall drying out. Bury plants up to the base of their trunks in sand, or sandy soil, mulching the whole with dry leaves or an upturned fruit basket or both. Or improvise a shelter that will approximate these conditions.

6. Groundcover mosses, which are easy to grow and which do not deplete the soil, suffer greatly from chlorinated city tap water, which may well kill them. Before watering bonsai featuring fine mosses, let water stand overnight, so chlorine will vaporize.

7. Repotting is not for tyros. Let an expert do it, except with less valuable bonsai or those on which you feel experimentation is a justifiable part of the learning process. As a general rule, assume most azaleas need repotting every two years, maples every three or four, pines every five or six.

Finally, a few "don't's": Don't move a bonsai suddenly from a hot to a cold spot. Don't water young leaves in hot sun. Don't resort to foliar feeding. Don't display bonsai in your house for more than two or three days unless proper growing conditions —all of them—exist there.

How to make your own bonsai

You can make a true and lovely bonsai from a nursery-grown plant in half an hour as Yuji Yoshimura did for us, LEFT. Requirements are the ability to discern the possibilities in an 18-inch Mt. Atlas cedar, and a decisive hand with secateurs. Three sizes of copper wire were used to enhance and confirm the natural shape of this tree, and wires will be left in place for approximately six months. It takes at least two years for foliage to become full and compact.

Here step-by-step is Mr. Porter's brief procedure for making a bonsai from a balled and burlapped maple (any of several domestic or Asiatic species will serve).

Early spring is the most suitable time to make a maple bonsai. Maples are usually best trained to an informal upright style. Rotate tree, 1, on sculptor's stand or revolving stool to determine which will be front and which back when finished. Front view should best reveal structure of design, and you should visualize at least two thirds of trunk exposed. Trim out all dead wood, shorten long branches and eliminate branches growing at same levels as principal ones around trunk, 2, making sure that the first and second branches are on opposite sides, the third at the back, the fourth at front. Leave clean wounds, no stumps. Other branches toward top of plant should be left closer together.

Pull away burlap and expose main roots, 3, whose position toward front or back you determined when planning design (most interesting surface roots usually belong toward front). Root structure is part of over-all design and should be allowed to show. Blunt sticks are best for exposing soil over roots.

Start wiring, 4, with heaviest wire at base of trunk, inserting end in soil behind base of trunk and spacing spiral evenly. Better two wires of moderate stiffness than one very heavy one. Neat wiring is essential to immediate appreciation of tree. Bending of branches (with opposed fingers and thumbs, to avoid breaking) can be started after three main branches are wired. Use lighter-gauge wires, 5, to reshape or strengthen natural direction of lesser branches and twigs.

In a shallow container with drain holes covered with plastic mesh, thread anchor wires through holes and mesh, 6. Put coarse drainage material (turkey grits are good) in bottom of container. Expose roots of tree by combing away earth with sticks and shorten them, 7, to general shape of container. Position of spread roots is shown in cutaway sketch, 8. Twist anchor wires over main holding roots, 9, and tuck ends back in the main root mass. Put topsoil and coarse sand through ¼-inch sieve and spread in bottom half of container under roots. Remaining soil mix should be one part each topsoil, coarse sand and leafmold passed through ⅛-inch sieve. Work mix into and around roots with combing motion of sticks, 10, to fill all interstices. Place damp moss as desired on dry earth, and a small stone if it seems to add to the composition, and then water the whole thoroughly but gently.

Notes for November Gardeners

Between the summer and winter,
When the fall is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause as the gardener says glumly,
"I seem to have been here before."

First weekend

Bulb couplet. The annual ritual of last-minute bulb planting is as circumscribed as the mating dance of bowerbirds. The head of the house (male or female) brings home a few bags of tulips and daffodils from the bottom of the dealers' bins and all hands rush for the spade and trowel. Actually November is a perfectly good time to plant tulips in most temperate climates (though it is a little late for narcissi), because the soil has become cool without yet becoming heavy, and the process of root making can safely begin the moment planting is finished. Even the spading under of bone meal (or superphosphate, which is a much less effective source of the principal ingredient, phosphoric acid) is part of the wise gardener's bulb program. But fondly familiar as this exercise may have become, this year we suggest an added variant: Apply next year's complete fertilizer to the top of your bulb beds now, as well. The reason? Next year, by the time you get around to putting a complete fertilizer on the bulb plantings, spring flowering will probably be over and any nutrients used then will simply not reach the newly forming bulbs and offsets in time to give them any appreciable help in forming flower buds for the following year. With this second fertilizing application on the finished surface of the newly planted beds, you will make sure that slow-acting, long-range root nutrients will be supplemented by other needed nutrients, including nitrogen, when active foliage growth starts above ground next March.

It might be well to recall, in connection with this under-and-over performance, that sources of phosphoric acid are extremely slow to break down, or even to move through the soil, and that they should always be turned under during soil preparation. Subsurface application is, of course, not feasible when bulb beds have become established. It should also be added that excessive nitrogen under the base of the bulbs, especially if the soil is already rich in organic matter, may tend to foster rot in the plate or bottom of many bulbs. Yet nitrogen is essential to the production of the vigorous foliage that encourages a good root system and helps increase the bulbs themselves. Hence the dual deal.

Second weekend

Compost threnody. November's theme song is the rustle of newly dried leaves falling on the compost heap. It is a familiar enough tune to those who have learned their way around the cycle of the seasons. But we have a new note to sound here—two notes, in fact—one gently sibilant and one explosively raucous. The first note is supplied by a shovelful of dirt—anything from ordinary loam to old compost—scattered over each new layer of leaves on the heap. As we have suggested before, temporary corrals of snow fencing or hog wire can be quickly set up in a secluded corner or under any big tree to accommodate the purely seasonal leaf fall, leaving the main compost heap or heaps to the usual grist of garden wastes and grass clippings. The sprinklings of earth (sand will not do) are designed not so much to settle the leaves—which trampling feet will accomplish much better—as to introduce the bacteria of decomposition into the leaf pile to hasten the breakdown of the foliage when the fall and winter rains penetrate them. A handful of general fertilizer to each shovelful of loam will speed the process even more by providing readily available nitrogen for the hungry bacteria, which will not then be forced to take it from the leaves themselves. Since there is nothing esthetically pleasing about a circle of hog wire enclosing a soggy layer of half-rotted leaves in springtime, anything you can do to get the mess into usable form quickly will be welcome. By this casual speed-up process, a large heap of mixed hardwood leaves can be made fit to spread in the shrubbery border as soon as the ground warms up next year. Then the unlovely wire or fencing can be rolled up and stored away.

As for that raucous note: simply buy a motorized compost shredder—and stand back.

Third weekend

Pruner's tune. The snick of the secateurs among the roses is an old song. Not an especially pleasant one, what with the thorns and all, but unavoidable. The pruning of bush roses can be a fairly casual matter, assuming you have taken reasonable care of the plants during the season just passed. Floribundas—the twiggy bushes that bore their blooms in clusters—can be either "headed back" a few inches or left alone. Hybrid teas and Grandifloras—both of which are likely to be tall, passing 5 or 6 feet by season's end—need be cut back only enough so that the canes will not whip in the winter wind, thus causing the crowns to loosen at ground level and admit air—and ice—in winter. But the climbers must be given their annual rejuvenation. Obsolescence in the branches of climbing rose bushes can be determined by their appearance and history of productivity. In general, all bare dark brown canes that failed to produce leaves this year, let alone flowering shoots, should be cut back to ground level. This usually means the elimination of all growth more than three years old. As a result, more energy can be directed into the younger shoots that will be capable of producing good flowering laterals (which is what climbers have blossoms on) next season. This is also a good time to retie old canes that have outgrown their bonds and put in place new growth that has been growing too fast for training this year.

In addition to fall pruning, winter protection is in order now where winters are severe enough to make such protection necessary. With bush roses that customarily need a mound of soil around their bases to withstand prevailing local winters, a new procedure is gaining favor. This consists in buying any one of several plastic, aluminum or fiber glass strips that may be formed into a 15- or 18-inch collar around the plants and in which soil or shredded bark mulches may be placed. If such bands cover the lower 10 inches or so, the rose plants will come safely through even prolonged cold spells, in all but the most wind-swept states. Or make your own collars of roofing paper. Make sure the earth will shed water away from the stems.

Downspout dirge. Before you protest that any recommendation requiring you to climb a ladder and clean out your gutters and downspouts is not a fit subject for garden talk, consider what ice and snow falling from clogged eaves can do to your plants. So we say get out the ladder and clean out your gutters and downspouts. All but the most stubborn oak and beech leaves will have fallen by now, and your labors will not be wasted. There are, of course, numerous devices, such as wire rolls and net strips, that are supposed to keep falling leaves from filling eave gutters. But many of these, alas, prevent first rain and then, especially, snow from getting into the gutter at all. And if you let the leaves accumulate, they will almost inevitably form small dams at intervals and those that do reach the leaderheads and downspouts will almost surely form a glue-like sludge quite impassable to water. Later, when below freezing weather strikes, the sludge will freeze in the gutters, causing overflow and often dangerous icicles. Ice forming in the downspouts will inevitably expand—to the undoing of even the most securely locked seams and joints. If all this dire mess does not horrify you into action, consider what happens when the ice thaws, and water runs from the split downspout to loosen paint on house walls, gets beneath brick walks to cause washing or, later, refreezing and heaving. Steps and stoops can be lifted from their footings by water running down house walls. Valuable evergreens can be broken by the weight of snow that has been saturated with icy eave drips. The milkman and the postman can slip on icy patches and collect substantial damages. All because you wouldn't climb a ladder on a sunny Saturday morning. For shame.

When a more complex system of zone control is used or when the thermostat controls summer cooling as well as heating, these principles will still apply. When zoning is used to divide the house into two or more temperature zones, each thermostat in each zone should sense the temperature as it would be felt by the people occupying that zone.

In recent years, the outdoor thermostat has become an important addition to the indoor control system. In its simplest terms, the function of the outdoor thermostat is to eliminate the time lag by anticipating what the heating load will be. For example, the outdoor thermostat will sense a fall in outdoor temperature before the need for additional heat becomes known to the indoor thermostat, thus sending an early call for additional heat. The principles involved in locating an outdoor thermostat are similar to those outlined for indoor thermostats, but the application is much simpler.

The outdoor thermostat should be located on the north side of the house, high up under the eaves, so that the heat radiated by direct sunlight will be eliminated.

Using these principles, it is easy to locate a thermostat in its proper place in a new house, or relocate it in an existing house. When remodeling an old house, relocation of the thermostat should be considered, since it is not a major task, and may well represent the difference between comfort and discomfort.

KNOCKING NOISES occur when there is excessive water pressure in the pipes. This extra pressure in the system is a result of careless design. However, the knocking (called water hammer) can be lessened if faucets are turned off very slowly. Special units—an air chamber or a special shock absorber—may be added to the piping to reduce the vibrations set up by the knocking.

These last two problems do call for extensive repairs. They occur more often in older homes, but even in new houses inadequate plumbing is sometimes found. Since plumbing lines run within the walls, repairs may be hard to complete without breaking into walls, floors and ceilings. Your best bet for enjoying a long-lived plumbing system is to buy the best fixtures your budget will stand and obtain the services of a competent plumbing contractor.

How do you find one? Check with friends who have built or remodeled recently, or look for a contractor who handles a major brand of equipment. Since a bathroom fixture manufacturer is anxious for homeowners to be satisfied, the plumbing contractor who handles his product is selected with care.

By Thomas H. Ormsbee

SÈVRES URN

We have an urn decorated with a scene apparently depicting Napoleon's victory at Austerlitz. Can you tell us more about it from its mark? J. D. H.—Houghton, Mich.

The mark was that of Manufacture Imperiale de Sèvres, a famous French porcelain factory, from 1804–1809. Napoleon's victory was in 1805.

BALTIMORE PITCHER

I'd like to know the origin of this old pitcher which has an owl and crescent mark on the bottom and the initials E. B.

N. J. DeM.—Portsmouth, Va.

Your pitcher was made about 1880–90 at the pottery of Edwin Bennett, Baltimore, Md.—in business from 1850–1900.

HUBBARD ROCKER

Branded on the seat of our rocker is J. C. Hubbard, Boston. The parts of the chair are numbered in Roman numerals. Any information would be appreciated.

N. M. T.—Perkasie, Pa.

Hubbard, a Boston chair maker, had Roman numerals marked on the parts to guide the workmen in assembling the chairs. Your rocker dates between 1825 and 1835.

VICTORIAN MANTEL GARNITURE

Could you tell me approximately when these marble-based candelabras were made? The prisms are very heavy.

H. E. P.—Seattle, Wash.

Your mantel garniture of one triple and two single candlesticks are English Victorian, manufactured around 1850–65.

STAFFORDSHIRE PLATE

The dinner plate shown in the two photographs has been in the possession of my family for years. Can you give me the history and origin of it? J. C. R. Sr.—Greenwood, S. C.

The mark indicates your plate was made by Edge, Malkin & Co., Burslem, Staffordshire, England about 1880, when oriental decoration was very popular. Chang was the pattern name.

SETH THOMAS CLOCK

The label in this clock reads "Brass Clocks Made and Sold By Seth Thomas, Plymouth Hollow, Connecticut. Warranted Good." How old do you think it is? R. D.—Brunswick, Ga.

Seth Thomas made shelf clocks like yours with a mahogany veneered case and brass works about 1837–1845. The earlier clocks of this famous maker had wooden works. Plymouth Hollow became Thomaston in 1866.

GERMAN STEIN

Scenes from "Lohengrin" decorate this 33-inch stein. Do you recognize the mark? W. L. W.—Forth Worth, Tex.

Villeroy & Boch, Mettlach, Germany, made this ornamental pottery stein between 1890 and 1914.

AMERICAN CRADLE

We are restoring this cradle and want to know if it ever had a canopy. It used to have a foot pedal to rock it with, but this unfortunately was discarded. R. R.—Camillus, N. Y.

We doubt that American Victorian cradles like yours ever had canopies. They date about 1865–1875; some of them did have iron rocking pedals.

AMERICAN LEATHER-COVERED TRUNK

My black leather-covered trunk has a dome top and is lined with thin light blue paper. It measures 24" long, 13" deep and 10" high. Any information will be appreciated. D. M. T.—Schenectady, N. Y.

Small leather trunks like yours are American; many of them were made in New England. Some of them were lined with newspapers of 1810–1830; yours might be of that vintage.

"The Cheshire Cheese," in London, welcomes you with history, beefsteak pie and Canadian Club

Nestled in Fleet Street, this 296-year-old inn, erstwhile haunt of Dickens, Johnson and Boswell, attracts the literati of today's world. Here you will find pie in summer, pudding in winter, and, to your added delight, Canadian Club all the year round.

'here is nothing which has yet been con-ved by man by which so much happiness produced as by a good tavern or inn," ote Dr. Johnson to Boswell. And those 10 know the Cheshire Cheese agree.

To this very day, the atmosphere is rever-tly English, the conversation witty and erate, and the Canadian Club at the ready.

Why this whisky's universal popularity? It has the lightness of Scotch and the smooth satisfaction of Bourbon. No other whisky tastes quite like Canadian Club. You can stay with it all evening long—in short ones before dinner, in tall ones after. Try Canadian Club —the world's lightest whisky—tonight.

Notes for the Hostess

BY DIANA BRYAN

It's good to have company for breakfast now and then, to shake us out of our parochial habit of bacon and eggs, toast and coffee. When there are weekend house guests to serve, breakfast calls for imagination. A dependable rouser in winter is giant baked apples filled with cooked sausage meat and spiked with nutmeg and cinnamon. Spoon bread goes admirably with this.

Young Diana loves a home-for-the-holidays breakfast of smoked salmon with a side dish of eggs scrambled with basil and topped off with brioches. We all like breakfast shrimp, a Charleston importation: you cook the shrimp in bacon fat with chopped onions and peppers seasoned with catsup and Worcestershire sauce, thickened with flour. This calls for a side dish of hominy. Sometimes I make a cheese-and-tomato casserole that everyone seems to love, and if I'm feeling especially hospitable, I may even serve creamed finnan haddie. It's funny how the most insistent "Nothing-but-black-coffee-for-breakfast-please" guests always turn out to eat more than anybody else when you offer them a really interesting breakfast!

Went to cocktails in town recently at the home of friends who have what city dwellers prize highly: an apartment with a fireplace. We took them a decorative box of scrub pine cones to use as aromatic kindling. They were so delighted, Don and I decided to give them some nice country logs for Christmas. In fact, something for the fireplace is a fine gift for any hostess with a hearth. It could be a brass pot to hold kindling scraps, or a box of long fireplace matches, or—especially if there are children in the house—those chemically treated crystals that make flames burn pretty colors.

All of us rely most often on the time-honored buffet party, I suppose, but there is nothing, for my money, to compare with the small formal dinner. To me, it's the ultimate in entertaining. We set out our most cherished appointments, provide our most elegant cuisine, and—dressed in our best bib and tucker—do honor to our most favored friends. In this ambiance, we all seem to rise to the occasion and even the conversation seems more sparkling. I still feel a glow from Denise Bradbury's dinner the other night. She produced a triumphant evening for twelve of us.

First of all, the table was a masterpiece. Denise used her magnificent Flora Danica Royal Copenhagen porcelain, hand-painted with the wild flowers of Denmark. The plates have gold, pierced edges, and each has a different flower in the center.

Patrician dinner plate

Since a floral centerpiece would have been redundant with this china, Denise ingeniously worked out a perfect alternative. She had her florist make a short rope of smilax, which she sprayed with gold paint and laid in an oval on the center of the table. In the middle of this, she set another wreath of pachysandra and lemon leaves, also gilded. Instead of silver candelabra, Denise wisely used low crystal candlesticks.

The meal was superb, from the coquilles St. Jacques, through the rack of lamb, on to the Benedictine soufflé. Then, in the living room, we were all served mocha or Mexican coffee (coffee mixed with chocolate). For the mocha, Denise used her demitasses by Richard Ginori—little Empire-style cups decorated with gold, carnelian and blue—and for the Mexican coffee, matching high-handled chocolate cups.

Now that's what I call entertaining in style.

Never serve the coffee...without the Cream

[Harvey's Bristol Cream, that is]

An after-dinner drink should be sweet . . . but it shouldn't get sticky about it. Harvey's Bristol Cream doesn't. The sweetness of this rare imported sherry is subtle, its lightness refreshing. Small wonder so many enjoy it before the meal as well. IT USUALLY STARTS AT A PARTY

AT A FRIEND'S HOME

Farewell to Charades, Monopoly, Chinese Checkers, Bridge, and the like. The world's newest and most effective social "ice breaker" is right there in the room. You have trouble seeing it at first because of the crowd clustered around. But you can hear it. And its sweet tones seem to reach right out joyously and pull you into the circle of happy folks. Before you know it, your arm is over somebody's shoulder, you're singing along, tapping your toes, snapping your fingers and generally having one fine old time. Maybe up till this very moment you've never even seen or heard a Conn Organ. Now, suddenly, you find yourself wondering where in your home it would look best!

That's so often the way it starts, the way people first get intrigued with the idea of owning a Conn Organ. And, then, when they find out how easy it is to play... well!

You see, with Conn's amazing new learning method, "Instant Music," you can actually play any one of 39 familiar songs in a matter of minutes. If you know your alphabet from "A" to "G," it's that easy!

Not only that, but you play with both keyboards, with various instrumental effects, and with the foot pedals, too. You play, in fact, just the way a professional organist does—naturally, with true human expression.

That's because the Conn Organ is created by music men, not gadgeteers. It has no gimmicks, no pushbuttons, no one-finger chord makers. It is, instead, a professional-quality home instrument of great tonal versatility and musical potential... created by C. G. Conn, Ltd., world's largest manufacturer of band instruments.

There are seven beautifully-crafted models, with prices starting at $995. Your Conn dealer can arrange payments which are almost as easy as our "Instant Music" learning method! *For free booklet, "How To Choose An Organ," plus free "Caprice Capers" LP record, write to Dept. Lack of humidity or why we crack up

If, like the happy couple above, we were all camels, the lack of humidity would be no problem. But we are not, and being possessed of human respiratory systems, most of us spend our winters struggling with colds brought on by living in hothouses filled with warm, moistureless air. If you wonder what this excessive dryness does to us, notice the condition of our pets, plants, paintings, antique furniture veneers and book bindings. But today, none of this is necessary. We have the humidifier, a little machine, usually portable, that—when fed the necessary electricity and a few gallons of water a day—will release a cool mist and produce the 35-45 per cent of humidity that spells well-being for humans, quadrupeds and Old Masters. Here are some likely models. (In new houses with forced warm-air heating, incidentally, humidifiers can be installed as an integral part of the system.)

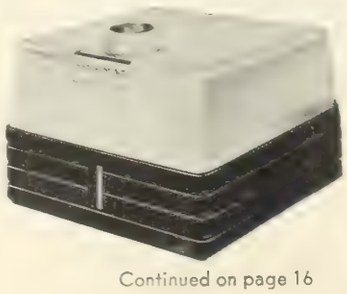

Table model, small and circular

Weighing in at only 7 pounds, the Herald model evaporates 3 gallons of water a day—enough, we are told, to humidify 4,000 cubic feet. All metal (no rust), it has a lifetime lubricated motor, operates quietly, measures 14 by 8½ inches. Walton Laboratories. $54.95.

Table model, small and square

Of lightweight, durable plastic, this portable model generates mist for 8 to 10 hours with one 14-pint filling. It is designed so it can also be used as a vaporizer, and is available with a mask to conduct the cool mist directly to face and mouth. By John Oster Manufacturing Co. $22.95, or, with mask, $27.95.

Dishwasher giving you spots? Look!

WATER DROPS—See what happens when even clean water is sprayed on dishes. Drops like these dry into ugly spots and streaks.

CASCADE—Because of Cascade's "sheeting action," drops don't form. Cascade with Chlorosheen does it—and only Cascade has Chlorosheen!

Cascade's amazing "sheeting action" eliminates drops that spot!

Nothing beats Cascade at getting dishes clean. Cascade's remarkable "sheeting action" even eliminates the drops that cause ugly spots. Water ripples right off in clear-rinsing sheets. Dishes, glassware and silver come from your dishwasher as spotless and sparkling as possible, all ready for the fanciest table without the need for towel touch-ups.

And Cascade is rated safe for china patterns. The makers of Castleton, Flintridge, Franciscan, Lenox and Syracuse china—through the American Fine China Guild—have verified Cascade's unsurpassed safety to delicate patterns.

What's more, every leading dishwasher manufacturer recommends Cascade. So do women everywhere. They've made it America's favorite dishwasher detergent by far!

Give your dishwasher the best—Cascade—it's got "sheeting action"

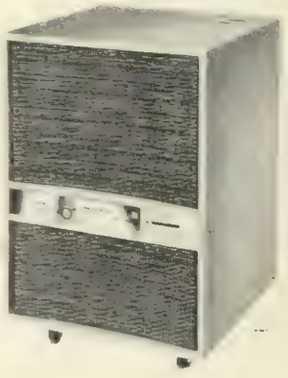
Cabinet model with wood-grain finish

The Mark IV humidifier is about the size of a TV (22 by 15½ by 15 inches) and rolls easily from room to room on a castered stand. Entirely rustproof and quiet, it is equipped with an automatic humidistat (a gauge that measures moisture) and a water-level indicator. Capacity: 5 gallons. By National Presto Industries. $69.95. Stand: $7.95.



Console model, small but powerful

The Fresh'nd-Aire humidifier is small (23 by 24 by 12 inches) but a powerhouse potent enough, probably, to humidify five or six rooms. A roll-about, it is made of steel with a beige baked-enamel finish, turns on and off automatically, has a humidistat that can be pre-set to keep air's humidity constant. By Cory Corporation. $79.95.

Portable console for sizable rooms

For large rooms (and attic and basement playrooms, which are often overheated), a console humidifier makes good sense. This model with push-button controls gives a choice of high or low rate humidification, has a built-in automatically controlled humidistat and a washable polyurethane filter to cleanse and moisten the air. Looking much like a piece of furniture, the console has a durable baked-enamel finish. By Toastmaster Div. of McGraw-Edison. $69.95.

The humidistat, a gauge for moisture

Humidistats act like thermometers, but record moisture rather than temperature. Some can be connected with the humidifier and, like a thermostat, will turn machine on or off to maintain degree you wish.

Automatic humidistat is mounted on wall, plugged into humidifier, set for degree of moisture desired. By Walton. $16.95.

For wall or desk, this humidity meter is very simple, but accurately indicates room's humidity. By Springfield Instrument. $1.

The notes of a happy housekeeper

BY MARY ELIZABETH FALTER

The first snow has arrived, and the town is bright with holiday lights in the early dusk. Large signs in the post office advise us to mail early and address clearly, and everyone seems to be hurrying just a little bit more than usual.

At our house, Christmas has been in the air for some time. Or at least it's been in the big brown box in the corner of the kitchen that holds the pine cones, bits of moss, acorns, nuts and dried pods the children have been collecting during the summer and fall. All our extra moments are spent around the kitchen table, carefully shellacking every little piece. The prettiest ones are gilded and fastened to a short piece of flexible florist's wire. Next will come tiny lady apples and tangerines, and wired loops of cranberries. By the weekend we'll arrive at the best part—making an evergreen wreath on a Styrofoam base and attaching all the fruit and dried things in a Della Robbia decoration. The wreath will hang over the fireplace in the living room and we'll admire it every one of the twelve days of Christmas.

My neighbor Pat dropped in the other day when we were working on the wreath, and after she'd been properly enthusiastic, she gave us a wonderful idea for storing the paintbrushes. They are difficult as they're apt to stick to a flat surface like a shelf or drawer, and if they're jumbled together, the bristles get out of shape. Pat has solved the problem by hanging a discarded dish drainer on the cellar wall and "filing" her brushes in the dish slots. This keeps them neat and orderly, and completely protected because nothing touches them.

An accidental but highly effective discovery: stainless steel can be wiped clean with a cloth saturated with club soda. It will remove smears and finger marks immediately. Good for sinks and countertops, and for serving dishes or flatware that have stubborn streaks.

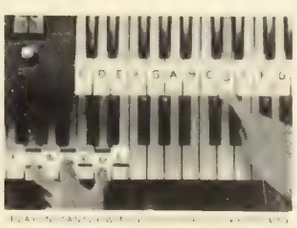
* * *

I'm certainly glad I discovered my new silver polish in time to get all our silver ready for the holidays. This is the best silver polish I have ever used because it combines cleaning and polishing in one operation and foams the tarnish stains away completely, so there is no messy sink and no dirty hands. You use it wet with a small piece of sponge and it will not cake. Hagerty Silver Foam is the name.

* * *

Speaking of silver, old torn wool socks are excellent for putting the final burnishing on silver or other metals after they have been cleaned. An old wool sock on each hand speeds up this final polishing. We use ours over and over, washing them in between.

* * *



If you have a maple kitchen counter, take a tip from the straw-hatted butchers of another era and clean it with an old-fashioned one-piece zinc jar top. We wash our counter with soapy ammonia water, let it stand a minute and then scrub it with the jar top, using a circular motion. When it is rinsed and wiped off, the counter is as good as new. The zinc jar top will even remove fruit stains and stubborn grease spots, and eliminates the need for cleaning powders which are apt to leave a gritty residue on wood.

WHAT'S NEW FOR LIVING

INSTANT ANTIQUES: A new furniture antiquing kit that contains all materials needed for the job enables amateur furniture finishers to achieve craftsmanlike results. Whether you have an unfinished chest or a pair of old varnished chairs to finish, you can give them an antiqued color glaze in three simple steps. It is not necessary to remove the old varnish or paint first. Glazes come in a choice of six traditional colors—Provincial Pink, Medici Blue, Old World Olive, Spanish Gold, Roman Red and Antique White. Kit includes one can of glaze, a can of Antique Undercoater, two brushes, sandpaper and cheesecloth in addition to an instruction brochure. "Antiquing Made Easy," that gives thorough information. Complete kit, $4.95. By Martin-Senour Paints, 2500 S. Senour Ave., Chicago 8, Ill.

CRUISES FAR AND NEAR are outlined in the 1963-64 "Guide to All Cruises," published by American Express and including the cruises of all lines. Besides listing schedules, ports of origin and ports of call for the cruises, the Guide offers pointers on "Who's who aboard ship," "What to wear" and "What to bring." For free copy, write to Cruise Headquarters, American Express Co., 65 Broadway, New York 6, N. Y.

SWISS NATIONAL EXPOSITION opens in Lausanne next April 30th—worth noting if you are heading for Europe in the spring. Exhibitions of industry, architecture and design, along with entertainments which reflect the folklore, arts and culture of Switzerland, are scheduled—even submarine trips to the underwater world of Lake Geneva. Exposition will be open to October 25th. For information, write Swiss National Tourist Office, 10 West 49th St., New York 20, N. Y.

JEWEL CLOCKS are news in decorative timepieces. Agate clock, above right, and others made of semiprecious stones—jade, rose quartz, lapis, obsidian—are cut to show off the natural markings and contours of the original stone. The agate clock measures about 18 by 10 inches. $125. Other wall hanging or desk models are priced from $50 up. Hands and numerals are gold plated; workings are battery driven. Available on order at International Gem Corporation, 15 Maiden Lane, New York 38, N. Y.

How the way you save money can help defend your way of life

Suppose you already have all the money you think you'll need for the years ahead. It still wouldn't be enough to make your future secure.

A secure future takes both money—and the freedom to enjoy it. Consider, for example, how little travel would be worth without the freedom to visit as you choose. And how little a man's costly education would be worth without his freedom to put it to use.

You'll need both money and freedom for the future—and with U.S. Savings Bonds, you save both.

It's a matter of the active dollars which your Bonds provide. While they're growing up to return you a nice profit tomorrow, Uncle Sam puts them to work today to strengthen our economy at home and to stand up for free men all over the globe.

So Bonds return you money—and more. They help defend your way of life, and help guard America's freedom now and tomorrow.

Look at it this way: you are free to choose not to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

Pretty good reason to buy them, isn't it?—even if you already have all the money you need.

Keep freedom in your future with

"The paper is exquisite. Thank you"

A gift of lovely paper at Christmas time is particularly thoughtful testimony to deep affection.

For it says, "Write to me. Share with me. You mean very much to me."

And it says, as well, "I know just how much you appreciate fine things."

Lovely paper means Crane—and has meant Crane at Christmas time since 1801.

You can tell Crane paper by its texture. For Crane makes only one quality of paper—100% rag fiber.

And Crane offers the most appropriate paper for any gift—stationery in just-right colors, or the most pristine white; or bordered note paper (each border hand brushed).

An experienced, selected dealer in Crane stationery is the most reliable source of information on the wide variety of textures, colors, weights and sizes; on all matters concerning engraving; and on your particular choices of Crane's for Christmas. Crane & Co., Inc., Dalton, Massachusetts.

Going places, finding things in Bermuda

The leisurely land of lilies and hibiscus,

Georgian houses,

afternoon tea and pepper sherry

By Doone Beal

EDITOR'S NOTE: On her way home to London from South America (see November H&G) Doone Beal stopped off in Bermuda, reports here her recent findings on that semi-tropical British island.

If any one place in the world truly embodies the word Transatlantic, it must surely be the scorpion-shaped island of Bermuda, lying one-third across the ocean from the East Coast of the United States.

To English visitors, Bermuda has an American flavor. Prices are quoted in U.S. dollars as well as pounds, hamburger shops abound, and you order eggs for breakfast —shirred, not scrambled. Yet to Americans, Bermuda is an almost theatrical representation of England, more English than the English, with tea shops full of copper kettles, china shops full of Royal Worcester and Spode, and practically every shop full of cashmeres. The fact that it was actually discovered by a Spaniard, Juan de Bermudez, seems irrelevant. It has no Spanish panache, but instead some of the innocence of Connecticut, and some of the coziness of Devon.

Bermuda's habits and way of life belong to a distinctly gracious age of immaculate sports clothes and dinner jackets, of housemaids, butlers and valets in abundance, of long, well-iced drinks and accustomed space and leisure. There is a 15-mile-an-hour speed limit in the towns, and transport by horse-drawn surrey complete with fringe on top is still a commonplace sight. Many people, including most visitors, use bicycles to get about, since a permit to drive a car takes thirty days to obtain. Bermuda is a rich, well-heeled community, but the government restriction of one car per family keeps traffic to a bare minimum. Yachts are almost as common, therefore, as cars, and the way of life is as nearly amphibious as any in the world, for no point on the island is more than two miles from the ocean.

From the air, the complex of islands, linked by causeways and bridges, is dazzling with its pink and white coral beaches and traditional white ridged roofs atop every candy-colored mansion and cottage.

Although Bermuda is some

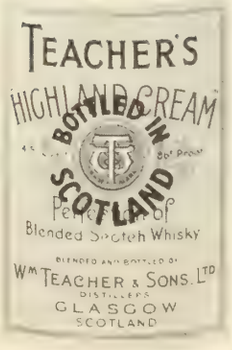
Picturesque St. George, founded 1612 and until 1815 capital of Bermuda, is a town of quiet lanes, seventeenth-century mansions, ancient churches, outlying forts

What's making the trend to Teacher's?



More people are saying "Teacher's, please" than ever before.

This is because Scotch drinkers have told each other about Teacher's unmistakable flavour.

It is a flavour created over one hundred years ago by William Teacher, and preserved exactly as it was by the personal watchfulness of the Teacher family.

They carefully supervise the making of Teacher's, and insist that it be bottled only in Scotland. (This is not the case with all Scotch whiskies.)

Read it on our label. Taste it in our Whisky. The flavour is unmistakable.

Word of mouth.

distance north of the West Indies, you see around its coastline the same jade shallows, striped with the dark blue of the deep, laced by the tall triangles of sails skimming the water. The countryside, too, has some typically West Indian features—feathery casuarina trees, palms, poinsettias, hibiscus and bougainvillaea. Practically every flower and shrub known to man can be persuaded to bloom there. But Bermuda's climate—mild and windy in winter, hot but still breezy in summer—has always a salty ozone freshness which appeals to many who dislike the full tropical treatment. Its deep-sea fishing and its golf (five courses, including the historic Mid Ocean, where Churchill and Eisenhower met in 1942) are second to none.

Cottage colonies are cozier

Bermuda has some classically luxurious resort hotels (Castle Harbour, Bermudiana, Harmony Hall and Elbow Beach), complete with every conceivable amenity including a Social Activity desk. But to me the whole pleasure of the island is to lead a more indigenous life in one of the relaxed and charming cottage colonies, of which I believe Bermuda was the original exponent. One of the most attractive is Cambridge Beaches at Somerset, on the lobster-tail of the island. The main house, built in 1675, is one of the oldest on the island. There is something beguiling about the polished wood and open fireplaces in this subtropical setting, with bougainvillaea framing open doorways and frangipani flower heads in silver bowls placed about to scent the room. Here, too, a feature is made of an English custom which in England is almost dying out: afternoon tea, to which guests help themselves in the drawing room. Traditional ingredients are freshly made scones, still warm from the oven, split and buttered; very thin sandwiches made from white bread, with a filling of shirred lettuce, creamed cheese and walnut, or even honey; and hot buttered toast spread with anchovy essence.

Tom Moore's Tavern in Hamilton Parish provides mooring, food and drink in the idyllic atmosphere that inspired the great romantic Irish poet

An added grace is a Georgian silver teapot. But you will, alas, pay top prices for one like it in the Bermuda shops of today.

Another charming old house which takes guests is Pomander Gate, close by Hamilton harbor. Its interiors embody some of the most attractive aspects of traditional Bermuda: the walls of each room are distempered in a solid color—celadon green, pale blue, pale sulphur yellow or terra cotta—but all the paint work, the ceilings, the curtains and louvers are white. Hurricane lamps have been wired to wall brackets with candles in them, and they are also used, mounted on brass bases, for table lighting. With the profusion of lilies, hibiscus and wild orchids so easily available, it would be hard not to achieve something fairly spectacular in the way of flower arrangements, but at Pomander Gate, I particularly liked their way of using a single flower head in a tall stemmed glass beside each place setting on the dining table at dinner.

In Bermuda people go to "pubs" in the English sense of the word, to drink ale on draught and play dice or skittles, as well as to dine. Two of the most famous are Detailed scale • 7½" long

Remember this great car? In its day it was a phenomenon, placing first 25 times, second 22 times and third 18 times in 80 races. It had a 4-cylinder engine, disk clutch, sliding gear drive, foot and hand brakes, a top speed of 60 mph, and all the other wonderful accoutrements you see, and which are faithfully reproduced in this all steel imported scale model — folding windshield, big headlamps, free-wheeling, rubber tires, etc. Moves at a goodly 10 mph; it's quite a gift! $9.95 ppd.

Whither the zither?

Ever since we heard the "Third Man" theme, we've been enchanted with the zither. You can play this Italian import without knowing a note of music. Printed song charts correspond to strings. Just pluck and play. Even children master it! Gray metal, 14" by 18". $9.95 ppd. Camalier & Buckley, HG12, 1141 Conn. Ave., Washington 6, D. C.

Silvery circles

Coasters for Christmas—our choice, these engraved circles by Vernon are certain to rate raves. A grape leaf wreath rings each 3½" circle. You may choose smart silver plate or elegant golden finish. Specify initials. 4, $2.95; 8, $4.95. Ppd. Lillian Vernon, HG12, 30 Evans St., New Rochelle, N. Y. 10802.

Oriental background

Handsome grass cloth makes permanent wallcovering of unusual beauty. Since it is entirely woven by hand, it has a charming irregularity of texture and color. Single rolls (36" by 12") $4.50 exp. coll. (Sold in double rolls only.) Swatches, 25c. Mayflower Wallpaper, HG12, 363 Mamaroneck Ave., White Plains, N. Y.

In character

Felicity, happiness, prosperity—three fine wishes for a new home owner. Gleaming solid brass trivets have rubber-tipped legs to slip under a steaming casserole. Decorative, too, under a vase or figure. With hanger backs to group a wall arrangement. Three 5" Oriental figures, $2.98 ppd. Harriet Carter, HG12, Plymouth Meeting, Pa.

Glove in hand

Damsels dote on deerskin gloves because they are flattering, easy to care for, and so very soft. Washing never makes them stiff or hard. Finished with a slip stitch, the gloves come in white, black, beige or chocolate-cream. Sizes: 6 to 8½. $2.99. Add 20c post. Here's How Co., HG12, 15 W. 26th St., New York 10010.

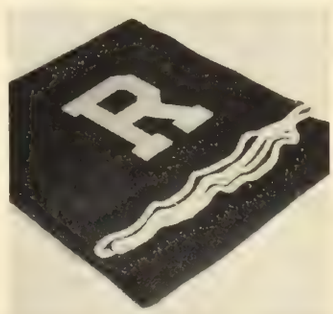
Music-go-round

Enchanting is this pretty music box that strikes a note of old world charm. Life-like wooden figures are hand-carved and hand-painted in Italy. Country girl, bobbing geese and tiny birds perch on box which revolves to "Never on Sunday". 28 note Swiss movement with stopper. 8″ high, $22.50. 60c post. Downs, HG12, Evanston, Ill.

Surprise package

Yes, it's Blue Willow, the traditionally lovely dinnerware pattern, but look again. The cup houses an efficient cigarette lighter; and the saucer serves as an ash tray. It's a unique gift idea for a friend who loves accessories that combine useful function with gracious design. $2.95 the set. Ppd. Greenland Studios, HG12, Miami 47, Fla.

Wide and handsome



Extra width is just one of the beauties of this ankle high Chukka boot. It's the real article clear through, from Java suede leather outside to wool fleece lining and watertight rubber sole. Comes in EE to 4/E widths. State shoe size. $11.70 ppd. Sixty other wide shoe styles in free catalogue. Hitchcock Shoes Inc., Hingham E106, Mass.

Grace note

Here's an occasional table of exceptional charm, the perfect finishing touch in a room of traditional décor. The top is carrara marble, 15″ diameter; the fluted column and triangular base are brass plated metal in a French antique gold finish. 20″ high. $27.50 exp. coll. Elizabeth McCaffrey, HG12, Northport, N. Y.

Sporting idea

Spectator sports and winter car trips are more fun when you're fireside warm. This woven wool and fibre blanket distinguished with one mammoth initial. Gold whip-stitched border on navy or maroon. Initial in red or white. 54″ by 43″. Good gift at a good price. $5.95 ppd. Edith Chapman, HG12, Rt. 303, Blauvelt, N. Y.

CIVIL WAR PICTURE MAP

Now . . at last . . the first complete picture map of the Civil War—as breathtaking and as magnificent as any map ever designed. All the pageantry and gallantry of that epic struggle is spread across the SEVEN SQUARE FEET of this giant wall map.

SHOWS NEARLY 100 CAMPAIGNS

Nearly 100 places, events and campaigns of decisive importance are pinpointed and numbered on the map and a special guide lists the dates and complete information on each. It's a treasure trove of facts on the Civil War, accurately and beautifully presented.

PRINTED IN BRILLIANT 4-COLOR

The facts are presented against a background of brilliant four color. A glance tells where the "Blues" and the "Grays" fought and the other colors brighten the map, make it easy to read and for framing.

INCLUDES 8 SIDE PAINTINGS

Some of the major events of the struggle are highlighted in individual oil paintings that serve as a vivid booklet for the map. They include:

1. A full length portrait of Stonewall Jackson during the Valley Campaign of May-June, 1862.
2. Grant's siege of Vicksburg, May 18-July 4, 1863.
3. The war at sea. The Alabama under Confederate Admiral Semmes, sunk by Kearsarge off France, June 19, 1864.
4. Portrait of Sheridan on his favorite mount during the Shenandoah Valley campaign, August-October, 1864.
5. Opening bombardment of Fort Sumter, April 12-13, 1861.
6. Battles of Bull Run-Manassas, June 21, 1861 and the 2nd Battle, August 27-September 1, 1862.
7. Battle of Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1863.
8. Appomattox Lee and Grant starting surrender at McLean House, April 9, 1865.

And in addition to each of these paintings (all in bright, full color), there are full length paintings of Union and Rebel soldiers, showing their uniforms and correct equipment in fine detail.

Used by Schools, Colleges and Libraries

Thousands have been sold all over the United States, many just to individuals interested in the Civil War, many to collectors, but also thousands to schools, colleges and libraries for use in teaching, for reference work and for prizes (well worth framing).

Created by Grosset & Dunlap
One of America's Leading Publishers

Grosset & Dunlap, one of the finest publishing firms in the world, commissioned and supervised the research on this map—research done by three leading scholars, and this beautiful map has been on sale in the country's bookstores for $2.95.

Only $1 ppd.

But now, House of Maps, by special agreement with Grosset & Dunlap, can offer this magnificent work to you for just $1 ppd. This is the first time this map has ever been offered at this price. Don't wait. Buy one now—for your children, for yourself, for your school or library. (Each map is shipped in a special mailing tube—prevents creasing.) Only $1 ppd. each—(5 for $4). On a small scale

Little people love furniture that suits their proportions. And when your very own name is hand-painted on the back, what joy! A superbly crafted New England bucket chair, hand-finished and hand-rubbed, is as appropriate in the living room as it is in the nursery. $9.95 ppd. Gotham Gifts, HG12, 67-85 Exeter, Forest Hills 75, N. Y.

Spray it away

Push-button problem solver to clear the air for a busy big wheel: Executive's Instant Anti-Panic Spray with gold label and "instructions". It's actually a pleasant room freshener, as are Parents' Anti-Child Tension Spray, Instant Anti-Birthday Spray, Instant Vigah. $1 ea.; 3 for $2.79. Ppd. Greenland Studios, HG12, Miami 47, Fla.

Dutch touch

In Holland, wooden shoes are purely practical; transplanted here they make charming decorative accents. This traditional shoe is 10½" long, of maple in a mellow brown finish, with ring for hanging. Use as a wall planter, or on table or hearth. $2.95 ea.; $5.50 pr. Ppd. Gifts and Gadgets of Dallas, 6327 Gaston, Dallas 4, Tex.

Warm welcome

Here's a cheery door mat that rings a Christmas note the moment your guests enter the house. For indoor use, it's made of natural burlap fringed in bright red and green, simply adorned with a cutout of Santa's boot in red felt. Foam rubber backed. 18" by 24", $3.95; 2, $7.50. Ppd. Jo-Mar, HG12, Box 287, Burlington, N. C.

Spice up serving

Here's a stunning trio that will cause comment on the buffet table. Fork, knife and spoon are of rare mvuli wood—a tawny shade—hand-carved in Africa with native motifs. No two are alike since each is an individual work of craftsmanship. More than 12" long, set of 3, $2.98. Ppd. Scott-Mitchell, HG12, 415 S. B'way, Yonkers, N. Y.

Classic crosses

Old interpretations of the Christian symbol reproduced by hand in sterling silver to capture all the delicate detail of the originals. A, Florentine; B, English; C, French; D, Cellini. With sterling chain, $3.95 ea., 4 for $15. 14 K. gold, $30 ea. Ppd. tax incl. The Jamaica Silversmith, HG12, 50 Delancey St., New York 10002.

THE YEAR'S MOST DISTINCTIVE NEW GIFT ITEM to brighten home life for your friends. For yourself, too! Time was when scatter rugs played only a minor role in the home. Not so today! The big fashion trend now is to use smartly styled small "accent" rugs to add a dash of decorative spice in living room, dining room, bedroom, guest room, child's room, den, hallway, bath. These colorful new Bigelow scatter rugs are at home "all through the house"!

DON'T CONFUSE these decorator-inspired creations with ordinary scatter rugs! "Daisy Belle" and "Visionary" were created by top-flight artists in the famous design studio of Bigelow, America's oldest, best-known carpet manufacturer. They are excitingly different from other "throw" rugs . . . different in their dramatic colorations . . . different because they are TUFT-DYED* by Bigelow's exclusive patented process which dyes colors through to the back!

The Worksaver House... a New Concept in Home Design... Features Ceramic Tile Throughout

Prominent architect Herman York designed the Worksaver House for easy care, family fun, and lots of living. That's why he uses ceramic tile in the kitchen, family room, entry way, and baths. Outside, ceramic tile adds practical beauty on the terrace and a distinctive touch in exterior wall panelling. Says Mr. York, who has designed more houses than any other American architect, "Ceramic tile makes the Worksaver House work-saving." That's because ceramic tile is stainproof, scratchproof, waterproof, dentproof, fireproof—and it will last a lifetime!

FURNISHED IN EARLY AMERICAN?

Send 25c For Our Big Handbook-Catalogue "900 Pictures Of Basic Items For Furnishing An Early American Home"

Everything in Early American from furniture to pewter — 900 unusual items assembled in one large, fascinating fully-illustrated catalogue, all available by mail at modest prices from historic Sturbridge, where artisans still ply the old crafts. Our town is the home of the celebrated "Old Sturbridge Village", a reconstructed New England museum — community of a century and a half ago. Our workshop has both made and collected over 2500 reproductions.

Tables, dry sinks, chairs, beds, chests, desks, benches. Lamps, lanterns, signs, cupolas, weathervanes. Pewter, ironstone, old-pattern glass, picture bottles. Racks, mirrors, books. Andirons, fire tools. Handmade hardware, furniture brasses, finishing supplies. Everything in faithful reproductions, from Sturbridge, center for authentic Early American.

NOW READY — 1964 "Covered Bridge" Calendar Towel. From Boucher's famous painting. Sepia brown and snow white on linen. Hanging rod and cord. Sent in gift tube. $1.10 ppd.

Gilbey's Vodka

by the makers of Gilbey's Gin

Gilbey's Vodka dramatizes flavor, not with taste of its own, but with smart, smooth, undetectable spirit. This real difference is why the people who discovered vodka are now asking for Gilbey's more and more. Sensibly priced, too.

MARTINI (Basic) — Stir 4 parts Gilbey's Vodka, 1 part Cinzano dry Vermouth in lots of ice. Pour into well-chilled Martini glass. Add onion, olive or twist of lemon peel, if desired.*

Hot pot.

Cool lid.

Kobenstyle casseroles have a sizzling reputation. And we're not just referring to the awards they've won for designer Jens Quistgaard.

Food people put our pots into their advertisements. Smart magazines put them into their scenes of gracious living. And museums put them on display.

We're flattered. But one thing delights us more: Kobenstyle is immensely practical. Not only for cooking. For serving.

Observe the trivet on the lid. Because it's pinpoint welded, very little heat is conducted to it. So when you flip the lid to act as a hot plate, the trivet won't harm your dining table. Or your hands. (The same idea applies to the handles.)

We've fashioned Kobenstyle out of strong, Scandinavian steel; onto which we've fired a surprisingly hardy, chip-resistant Frit. (That's the stuff most stoves are surfaced with.) As a result, you can cook with Kobenstyle over an open fire. Which leads to some pretty fancy barbecues.

The bottom is thick, to keep in the heat. But the sides are thin, to keep down the weight.

Notice how the sides are curved, to match the curve of a spoon. This makes for splendid stirring and serving.

The casseroles come in red, yellow and turquoise. 2-quart, 4-quart and 6-quart. There are also two open bakers, three pitchers, a sauce pan and two new skillets.

If you're tempted to buy the lot, don't worry about storage. You should display Kobenstyle.

"NEWS OF GREAT JOY, NEWS OF GREAT MIRTH"

Awe, reverence, wonder, splendor, sentiment—all these belong to Christmas.
But Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without laughter.
"Let us now both sport and play," goes a lively waits' carol, for the essence of the ancient carols was piety leavened with mirth.
H&G believes in old-fashioned Christmases.
We cherish all the beloved traditions including the waits' tradition of mirth and play that keeps the others green.
As you turn the pages of this issue,
you will find the venerable customs enlivened by playful flourishes as unexpected as a twig of bittersweet spicing a wreath
—as blithely irrelevant as china birds guarding a crèche or Goldilocks guarding a gift
—as endearingly absurd
as the walking Christmas trees above.
Surely you will recognize those imps as "neighbors' children whom you have seen before," bringing love and joy to you and to your wassail, too, and wishing you a Happy New Year.

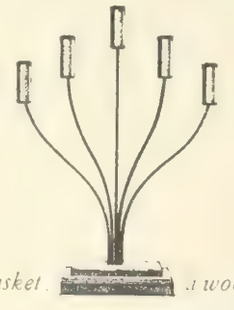
SUSAN GREENBERG WOOD

There is brand new enchantment in

A RED AND GREEN CHRISTMAS

Scarcely a color in the rainbow has not been used somewhere, sometime, to make a festive splash for Christmas. But in our part of the world none has ever surpassed the evocative impact of red and green. The colors of the holly and the ivy, of spruce and pine, of poinsettias' stars—these are the hues that never fail to stir up images of carolers and wassail, Bob Cratchit, Tiny Tim, Meg and Toby Veck. And this nostalgic combination is the main theme of H&G's Christmas decorations for 1963—wreaths, garlands, baskets and nosegays to make every room in your house radiant with comfort and joy. But these new holiday garnishes are accented with touches as fresh and unexpected as the first snowfall. Tucked among the simulated cedar and boxwood are sprigs of parsley that add a feathery lushness. Instead of holly berries, bunches of cherries contribute their red glow. For surprise seasoning there is a sprinkling of orange bittersweet. And everything shimmers gently with a powdering of "diamond" dust.

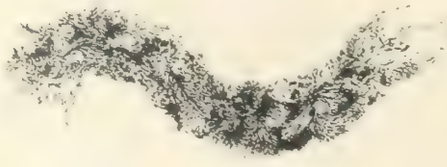


You can use these decorations as companions or extenders for the live greens you cart home from the woods or the florist. Since they are versatile and pliant as well as everlasting, you can also use them in spots where the real thing would be impractical. You don't have to give a thought to the problem of falling needles, or much of a thought (beyond ordinary common sense) to the dangers of fire. For the materials are flame resistant and can, if you like, be completely fireproofed.

Designed for H&G by Elise Platt, each of these decorations is ready to put in place, indoors or in a sheltered spot outdoors, exactly as it comes from the box. But if you want to embellish it further, you can—with tiny Christmas balls and lights, popcorn, cookies or extra bunches of cherries picked up in the Five and Ten. For shopping information, see page 190.

Nine basic components make up our collection of Christmas decorations. Since all share the traditional red-and-green color scheme, they are all kissing cousins and can be used in any combination you please. Here is the complete roster:

a jaunty 18-inch hanging wire basket;



a wood and metal five-branch candelabrum; wreaths in three sizes—10, 18 and 24 inches in diameter; a molded 8-inch tassel base; a garland,

54 inches long; a tiny frisk of a nosegay; an 8-inch gilded wicker basket; a cluster of five tiny oil lamps on a tray, and gayest of all, a kissing ball.

OPPOSITE PAGE: The kissing ball, a wreath and a dozen nosegays set an old brass chandelier ablooming and help dress the stage for a family gift table. Proof of their versatility: the brass-belled kissing ball has become a pendant finial; the nosegays form little ruches for the hurricane shades; and one of the cherry-studded wreaths makes a Christmas collar for the brass bowl that holds the presents.

RED AND GREEN SPICE FOR A CHRISTMAS TABLE

The hanging basket makes a floating centerpiece for a Christmas Eve supper, its decorative effect amplified by satellites—the little greenery filled baskets at each place. The larger basket can either hang or sit since it has four ball feet as well as hanging wires. Here, its hanger masked with velvet ribbon, it is impaled on the spike of the tassel base which holds it securely aloft. The smaller baskets, of course, can go home with the guests. The crackled green-and-gold table top with the look of Lalique glass is actually made of plastic. Silver flatware in the "Vivant" pattern is Heirloom Sterling by Oneida; the platinum-and-gold-edged china in the "Grace" pattern is by Syracuse and the cut crystal goblets and wineglasses in the "Venus" pattern, by Fostoria. Place mats woven of velvety "Islon" Chemstrand nylon by Matouk. Photograph and interior by Fotiades. For shopping information, please turn to page 190.

OPPOSITE PAGE:

A wreath-and-garland swag that frames the take-home table for a children's holiday party is embellished with strings of popcorn, candy canes and mock cookies (actually tree ornaments—the real cookies, needless to say, have been placed in a more accessible spot). Handfuls of nosegays deck the brass sconces overhead and each of the gifts bears the extra bonus of a small basket speared with a candy cane. Casting an old-fashioned glimmer over all is a cluster of oil lamps, their tray skewered to the tassel base and edged with red velvet ribbon. The final touch of red and green: marzipan strawberries.

THIS PAGE, TOP:

Oil lamps garnished with nosegays and extra bunches of cherries make a luminous centerpiece for a supper table too small to accommodate both flowers and candles. (The tray can be used without the tassel base, but takes up a little more room that way.) Fringed with daisies, say, instead of Christmas reds and greens, the lamps would be just as timely for a party on Midsummer's Eve.

CENTER:

The hanging basket and two little companions, after officiating at the dining table, can move to the living room to become part of another composition. Or, minus the tassel base, the larger basket can hang on the front door in lieu of a wreath.

RIGHT:

Cherry-studded wreath, like all of the other decorations, is sufficiently flame-resistant to pin up near a fireplace without fear of spontaneous combustion. Photographed by Grigsby at Doris Dessauer. Shopping information, page 190.

FESTIVE GARNISH FOR HALL AND BUFFET

LEFT:

Garlands spiked with extra bunches of cherries make enchanting holiday stoles for the mirrors in an entrance hall. (You could do the same with a window or a glass door.) Tiny Christmas tree lights sparkle amidst the foliage which is bushy enough to reveal not a sign of the cords. One of the 10-inch wreaths hangs from the top of each mirror, and a trio of hanging baskets suspended on invisible wires over the porcelain stove (in another hall, it might be a chest or a console), revolve slowly in the moving currents of air.

OPPOSITE PAGE:

The wood and metal candelabrum, plumed with bows and nosegays, sheds a gala glow over a holiday buffet, but takes up very little room on the table. The rest of the decorations—all planned as part of the composition—take up no table room at all: the pair of belled and ribboned kissing balls hanging from the ceiling beams like great pomanders, and the nosegay dotted garland twined around the table stretcher. The MOST SPLENDID TREE

Winning ideas from our Christmas tree contest of 1962

Last December, spurred by our discovery of Judge Alfred J. Link's magnificent Christmas tree in LaPorte, Ind. (see "Tree of Wonder," H&G, December, 1962), we decided to see what other splendors the forest might hold. So we announced a competition, inviting our readers to submit photographs of their 1962 trees in all their freshly trimmed glory and tell us the stories behind them. The response was overwhelming in quantity, superb in quality. Not only were the trees splendid indeed, they embodied hundreds of original and imaginative ideas. For in almost every case, the universal Christmas traditions had been interpreted according to a personal tradition or augmented by personal symbolism.

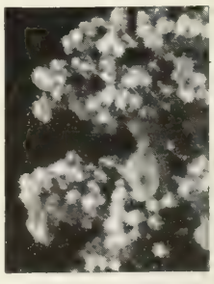
Some families, like Judge Link's, had achieved their distinctive brand of splendor with collections of ornaments gathered over the years, or during their travels. Others had made their own ornaments from such diverse materials as felt, eggshells, paper, marshmallows. Many of the trees themselves were also unique. In addition to the traditional spruce or fir, there were trees made of wood, of cardboard, even of regional materials like tumbleweed. One contestant wove a tapestry tree to hang on the wall.

The most splendid tree of all you see in part on our cover and in its full magnificence on the opposite page. We also photographed the leading runner-up which you will see on page 134. Other prize winners (all of whose owners were notified last spring, as promised) and several other entries as well offered so many stimulating ideas we wanted to share with our readers that we have packed the pages that follow with highlights culled from winners and nonwinners alike.

One entry merited very special notice. The work of a group of seventh graders in a Texas junior high school, its story illustrates what all our entrants intimated in their letters and H&G strongly believes: that the deepest satisfaction of a Christmas tree stems from personal involvement, that the investment of personal time, labor and care produces the most glowing results.

Because of the wonderful response to our Most Splendid Christmas Tree Competition, we are inviting you to share your ideas with us again this year. For the details of our Most Inviting Christmas Door Competition, turn to page 196.

1ST PRIZE



Traditional splendor achieved in a new way

The sumptuous tree created by the ROBERT W. JACKSTONS of Los Altos, Calif., was awarded first prize on three counts. First, it was quite simply a magnificent tree in the grand, old-fashioned manner. Second, its beauty was achieved with readily available materials. And third, these materials—2,400 balls—were used in a truly inventive way, so that they cascaded over the thick branches like a rainbow waterfall.

The luxurious contours of the tree itself were the result of Mr. Jackston's customary technique for improving on nature. He looks for a tree that is bushy and well padded to start with, then fills in any bare spaces with boughs from a second tree. The extra boughs are inserted into holes drilled in the trunk, then wired to other branches for support.

The first step in trimming the tree is to string the balls on green florist's wire in clusters of three. Some of these clusters are wired directly to the trunk of the tree where, even though hidden by branches, they reflect light and keep the center of the tree from being a dark, shadowy mass. Next, Mr. Jackston strings onto the tree forty-eight twinkle lights and wires the rest of the ball clusters to the tops of the branches. The final flourishes are the Styrofoam balls that Mrs. Jackston converts into maharajas' treasures with snippets of velvet and lace and all manner of beads and bibelots from the jewelry counter of the Five and Ten. Since the Jackstons usually decorate their tree several days in advance, by Christmas day the branches are drooping gracefully under their glittering freight.

2ND PRIZE

Exquisite ornaments lovingly made at home

ONRAD E. CURRY of West Newton, Pa., made ery one of the decorations for his breathkingly lovely tree—with the natural excepon of the candle lights. He started by makg a drawing of the tree he saw in his mind's e, then went to work on the decorations: nety paper snowflakes, no two alike; twelve uebirds, each in a different stance; twelve sts of hay, twelve dewy spiderwebs and inmerable clear glass balls.

The snowflakes, made of scored and olded paper, cut with a trimming knife, were dapted from some Mr. Curry had seen in &G years ago. They hang on white thread, and as they rotate in the warm currents of air, light sparkles on the sprinkling of silver glitter at their tops.

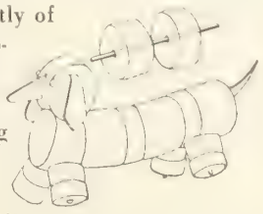
Small plastic birds made the foundations for Mr. Curry's bluebirds. He clipped off the tails, built up the bodies with papier-mâché, and shaped the wings from paste-saturated fabric reinforced with wire. Finally, the royal blue dyed feathers were glued on, one by one.

The birds' nests were made of real hay, sewn with raffia to papier-mâché bases. For the delicate spiderwebs, wires were soldered together, and rhinestone dewdrops added.

In order to get the clear glass balls he wanted, Mr. Curry had to wash the outer colors from old ornaments, then remove the silver lining by swishing damp sand around the insides.

Finally, he wrapped the gifts to go under his tree in the same color scheme of blues and white, decorating each gift with a different lifelike flower made of ribbon on crepe paper.

HIGHLIGHTS OF OTHER ENTRIES



Specially wrought decorations give many trees a unique flavor

MR. AND MRS. ALFRED BEADLESTON of Shrewsbury, N. J., adorn their annual tree exclusively with felt ornaments that Mr. Beadleston's talented mother made for them over the years. The collection started with traditional Christmas stars, snowmen, fruits and such. Then came reminders of personal enthusiasms or experiences: a golf bag with clubs, a cuckoo clock, a strawberry, a world globe, all finely detailed with sequins, seed pearls and beads. Most of these gay concoctions are red and white and they are hung on a stylized tree, below, made by wiring together two 3½-foot artificial trees. MRS. HAROLD L. BUCK of Panama City, Fla., decks her snow-coated Disneyland tree with another kind of felt ornament: storybook characters such as Pinocchio, The Mad Hatter, The Tin Man of Oz.

MRS. ETHEL VERGIN of San Francisco makes edible ornaments for the children in the psychiatric clinic where she works as a nurse. Her tree, above right, is a veritable menagerie made partly of marshmallows put together with toothpicks and powdered sugar frosting —partly of frosted cookies fashioned with a fantastic variety of cookie cutters she has collected for this purpose.

MRS. MARY E. DICKINSON of Austin, Tex., has made a hundred ornaments of eggshells, all so intricately detailed that her grandchildren sit and gaze at her tree for hours. Some shells are cut in half to make baskets that hold tiny candies. Others are cut out to frame tiny pictures or miniature birds, dolls or Santas. And all are studded with sequins, pearls, glitter or braid. Another tree trimmer who makes her own ornaments is MRS. JAMES E. DEGAN of Flossmoor, Ill. Like Mrs. Jackston (page 132), Mrs. Degan uses a Styrofoam ball as a foundation for her ribbons and spangles, but she leaves a good part of the snowy Styrofoam exposed. Thus her bright "snowballs" are as romantic as fairytale toys, and so gay that they provide her thick, ceiling-high tree, below, with all the adornment that it needs.

MANY FAMILIES ALSO FASHIONED THEIR OWN TREES

A variety of materials were imaginatively assembled into unusual shapes

L. JARMIN ROACH of Los Angeles, Calif., designed a half tree to decorate his fireplace wall. First, a wire framework in the shape of a shallow half-cone was fixed to the wall, then cedar branches were attached to it with florists' wire. (If you should be inspired to borrow this idea, it would be well for safety's sake to flameproof the branches first.) To keep his tree in key with the contemporary character of his living room, Mr. Roach confined his decorations to three types: small bee lights instead of regular Christmas tree lights, festoons of tiny gold beads, shimmering Japanese silk fruit, which he also piled on hearth.

PETER C. PORTMAN of Laguna Beach, Calif., composed an exceptionally elegant tree of pine cones and dry leaves, collected practically in his own backyard. The base of the tree is a 34-inch-wide plywood disk. From the center of the disk rises a 9-foot tree shaft, and from the edges, long poles which meet at the top of the shaft. Chicken wire wrapped around this structure completes the cone-shaped framework for the hundreds of leaves and pine cones painted by hand in autumnal brown and gold, then sprinkled with gold glitter. As a final touch, the tree is hung with balls of soft avocado green, graduated in size from top to bottom. Mr. Portman designed his tree specifically to harmonize with the panoramic view of hills, sea and sky framed by the window wall behind it. But, as he points out, the framework of the tree is easily adaptable to the vagaries of changing moods and tastes.

THE G. W. BOYERS of Mobile, Ala., made their flat, stylized tree with the big pine cones for which they have a particular affection. First they built a tier of shelves in graduated lengths to suggest the shape of a tree and edged them with cotton snow. Then they nailed giant white-sprayed cones to each shelf, adding blue lights and balls to symbolize night. An angel light at the top is the benign guardian of this snow-covered forest in miniature.

MRS. BOOTS ELVIN of Artesia, N. M., found the [m]aterials for her tree in a nearby cotton field. [O]n morning, after a showery night, as she watc[hed] the empty cotton burrs glittering like gold in [the] sun, a huge tumbleweed moved past inspiring [her] with a unique idea: Some days later, she dragg[ed] home two enormous tumbleweeds, pressed th[em] together, clipped them into tree shape with [an] electric hedge trimmer, and sprayed them w[ith] green paint. For decoration, she used hundr[eds] of cotton burrs, sprayed gold, plus hundreds of tiny gold-sprayed rings cut from empty plastic tubes that she had used in her beauty shop. The thick tumbleweeds and their stickers grabbed the ornaments and held them securely in place without benefit of wires or hangers.

MRS. MARIECHEN W. JACKSON of Honolulu wove her Christmas tree—a colorful wall hanging that is likely to grace the Jacksons' dining room for years. For the background, including the three broad bands, she used a warp of gold-colored yarn with a weft of bright green combined with metallic gold and split bamboo from a cast-off window shade. The trunk of the tree is woven of brown chenille. Some of the decorations were executed in tapestry technique, some are Eyes of God. Mrs. Jackson also added Styrofoam ornaments trimmed with glitter and the weaving yarns. The finished hanging, 28¾ by 36 inches, is held by inch-thick bamboo poles at top and bottom.

RNAMENT COLLECTIONS CH IN AMILY TRADITION

S. ANNE WESELOH of Escondido, Calif., treas-es a collection of ornaments that has decked r family's Christmas trees ever since her ench-born mother came to this country as a ide. Nostalgic for the toy-hung trees of her uropean childhood, she resolved to recreate em for her children and began to collect min-ure toys and old-fashioned ornaments, enrging her hoard during trips abroad. Teddy ars, rocking horses, soldiers, dolls and all manner of fascinating old ornaments make the Weseloh tree a Hansel-and-Gretel dream come true. To set off her heirlooms in 1962 Mrs. Weseloh was lucky enough to find an unusual tree with symmetrically placed branches called the "noble fir" (Abies procera). The species is not common, but it would be possible to reconstruct a comparable form from a spruce or fir with a thick shaft. Remove all the branches. Drill holes through the shaft at regularly spaced intervals, and reinsert the branches. To support them at perfect right angles to the shaft, run fine wires in from the tips of each branch and wind them around the shaft.

DR. AND MRS. KENNETH MAIER of Northbrook, Ill., have assembled a truly fabulous collection of old ornaments from Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Italy, many of which date back to the Eighteen Hundreds. Since some were handed down from the Maiers' grandparents, some were the gifts of friends and others were ferreted out of antique shops during the Maiers' travels, each evokes a personal association. Trimming the spectacular family tree, above, takes many nights of work. In addition, 3-year-old Joey Maier trims his own little tree with dessert treats, to be shared later with his friends. Likewise full of memories is the one-world tree of the GEORGE BURNHAMS in Detroit, Mich., which is laden with ornaments contributed by visiting foreign students and friends, or picked up all over the world by the Burnhams themselves. The ornaments range from tiny maharaja's shoes made by their cobbler in Delhi to a red paper bird fashioned by a Japanese friend. Over each object on the tree perches the flag of its country. MRS. HAL RACHAL of Midland, Tex., intersperses her travel-acquired treasures with dozens of white birds—German, Mexican, Japanese—doubly bright against the emerald green sprayed tree. And on the surrounding walls, more birds hover, each with a shiny ball in its beak.

THE TREE MONEY COULDN'T BUY

The story of the tree decorated by the seventh graders of a Houston, Tex., junior high school, as told by their art teacher, MRS. JANET FOX, was moving testimony to the rewards of personal involvement in a joyfully shared endeavor.

For several years, the school had been decorated for Christmas with a rubber-stamp succession of trees trimmed with old ornaments and faulty lights mindlessly contributed by the pupils. With lavish trees of their own at home (for the school serves a wealthy neighborhood), few took any pride in the school tree, with the result that, within days, the tree would be virtually wrecked through carelessness or outright vandalism. So in hopes of arousing more interest in the tree for 1962, the art department set up a contest. Seventh graders were invited to make the tree ornaments, themselves, using only discarded materials. Tin cans, paper cups, light bulbs, even a champagne cork, along with ribbon, yarn, tissue paper and a deliberately sparing allowance of gold paint and glitter were converted into incredible fantasies. Four hundred ornaments—clowns, Santas, angels, nameless abstractions—decked the finished tree. The superficial glamour of tinsel and glitter was purposely omitted in order to make the tree entirely a product of the childrens' creativity and inventiveness. Parents, friends, schoolmates came to look and stayed to gaze with astonishment. Not a single ornament was broken and the children could see they had contributed to the holiday spirit of the whole school. They also learned (some for the first time) the value of things money can't buy.

HOW TO STAGE AN INSPIRING CRÈCHE

Older than the Yule tree, the crèche is one of the most enchanting symbols of Christmas we know, and over the ages has inspired countless works of art. Even when the little tableau of the Nativity is the work of an untaught craftsman, it can be wholly charming—so much so that the quaintest of the familiar figures are as highly prized by collectors as the most sophisticated. Once strictly family treasures, crèche figures are appearing today in increasing quantity and variety in shops both here and abroad, and arranging the Christmas tableau has become as much of a holiday delight as trimming the tree. Some families, in fact, collect crèche figures as others collect Christmas ornaments, for a crèche may consist of a few figures or a hundred, many of them originally designed for other purposes—secular objets d'art, for instance, or children's toys. Moreover, the whole crèche need not be seasonal. Often its setting can be used the year round as a stage for almost anything small that a collector may want to display: tiny sculptures, semi-precious stones, lead soldiers, miniature porcelains. A child with flair can arrange a very effective crèche (early teen-agers are usually delighted to find they can adapt outgrown toys to a grown-up purpose), and an imaginative adult can approximate the wonderful. The examples on these and the following pages were part of a spectacular exhibition staged by architect Alexander Girard at the Nelson Gallery-Atkins Museum in Kansas City, Mo., and sponsored by Hallmark Cards for the benefit of the People-to-People program. From the prodigious array of 170 crèches, H&G chose eleven, some simple, some not, that offered ideas especially pertinent to the setting and arrangement of a crèche at home.

BELOW LEFT:

LITTLE HANGING CABINET with gaily painted doors makes one of the simplest of crèche settings, yet creates the effect of a medieval miracle play in dumb show. Lacking a cabinet, you could easily make one or have one made. If the workmanship is crude, that would only add to the folk flavor. The figures, as long as they are in scale, might vary widely in origin. These, of painted wood, are from Mexico.

OPPOSITE PAGE:

PAPER ARCHES, like a soaring halo of light, frame a pyramid of steps enclosed in a shadow box. Translucent tracing paper strengthened with struts was used for these arches, but similar ones could be cut from Styrofoam, which is strong enough to stand unsupported, easier to work with and translucent enough to filter a light placed at the rear of the box. The collection of wax angels is from Salzburg, Austria.

SITE PAGE:

LIZED FAÇADE makes a delightful showcase that could be paraphrased an old doll's house adroitly remodeled. Or a fairly expert r-toolist could produce a plywood facsimile of a façade with no ble at all. This setting would be a particularly good post-holiday 'ay piece for small pieces of sculpture, porcelain or bronze figurines, l obelisks or lead soldiers—one to a niche. Drawn to parade-ground tion on the steps of the pediment, a collection of plumed ars would make a dashing show. Here, the façade holds a gaily ted medley of Mexican clay figures: the Holy Family, the Magi, sfolk with gifts, the traditional angel and a roof full of lambs.

T:

ACKGROUND FOR A COLLAGE is a series of shallow steps made of plywood allboard covered in metallic paper and embellished with dried ses. The figures, anchored to the steps with clay, come from Germany kit which is available at a few museum shops (also by mail, from Doodlet Shop, Santa Fe, N. M.). Made of cast lead from antique ds, the painted figures are thin enough to be little more two-dimensional, so the whole composition is only about 4 inches and could very easily be framed and hung like a painting. ativity of this type would probably remain a permanent assembly, but same idea is adaptable to any kind of collage-type composition.

OW:

HE BELOVED AND FAMILIAR STABLE is a simple little structure made hin unpainted wood—plywood, if you like—in twelve pieces: a back, sides, crosspieces at floor and eaves, six rafters and a ridgepole. thatched roof is woven of raffia, the kind available at a hobby p. Here, the figures are from Poland, carved of wood, typical in their mnity of that country's religious handicraft. Any crèche group, vever—even one of bread and colored sugar such as those nd in Ecuador—could find peaceful shelter in this homemade byre.

1 A TABLE-TOP ARRANGEMENT can be composed in the manner of a theatre-in-the-round with miniature trees and shrubs instead of a scenic backdrop. The platform for the figures could be made of boxes painted white, the terrain of gravel, pebbles or marble chips, and the planting of bits of driftwood, twigs, dried shrubs. These Mexican figures are of glazed pottery.

2 AN ITALIANATE COLONNADE makes an unusual background for a crèche with a Renaissance flavor. Kings and nobles gallop up to a manger at the top of a ramp made either of wood or (simpler) illustrator's board cut to shape with a mat knife. Children's blocks, the architectural kind, could easily produce the colonnade. The equestrian figures might be lead horsemen. This rare group was carved of tagua nut in seventeenth-century Ecuador.

3 FLORAL GROTTO in a shadow box (which you can either buy at a frame shop or make yourself) can be arranged with just about any kind of pretty, dried vegetation: statice, huckleberry, straw flowers, live-forever. The arrangement will hold its shape best if the heavy stems are anchored in florist's clay and the feathery parts held in place with wire or florist's tape. The Nativity figures should be fairly romantic in style—not eccentric or too stern. These, from Guadalajara, are of painted pottery. Protected by glass, this type of crèche would be a permanent arrangement.

4 A STRAW STABLE offers an extremely simple, easy-to-make background for almost any kind of crèche figures. The platform could be made of a box covered in felt, the columns from dowels. The raffia stable is a simple half beehive, tied at the top, interlaced at the bottom to hold its shape, finished across the front with a raffia binding. In this case the straw creates an interesting contrast in texture to the glossy smoothness of glazed ceramic figures from Germany, and the composition is rounded out by a pair of quite irrelevant but nonetheless charming ceramic birds. Seemingly air-borne, the cherubs are suspended on nylon fish line.

5 THE ILLUSION OF PERSPECTIVE can be achieved almost magically by combining figures of various sizes and placing the largest in front, the medium size in the center, tiny ones in the distance. This riotous translation of the crèche into a Neapolitan street scene is a virtuoso composition almost 6 feet deep. But using the same large-to-small principle of figure arrangement, a similar scene could be staged on a smaller scale in a 3-foot-long carton or shadow box.

6 A CHILD'S TOY VILLAGE, outgrown but not discarded, could be put to likely use for a panoramic crèche along the lines of this Bavarian Bethlehem. The hillside could be built of unpainted wood or even of children's blocks (you might have to borrow a few extras) laid on a substructure of boxes of graduated size. You would need a lot of little people, too, to populate the town, but Bavarian figures such as these are available in goodly supply in this country.

ORNAMENTS THAT GO FROM PACKAGE TO TREE

This year's rich harvest of gift wrappings includes a host of delightful ornaments, some as basic as bows (glorified bows in new sizes, shapes and colors), others as special as a smiling sentry, splendid in red felt and gold braid. These charming but inexpensive fantasies inspired H&G with a new idea—i.e., to deck each gift package with an ornament that will come off, intact, when the package is opened, to deck the Christmas tree.

The gift packages on the opposite page, designed for H&G by Sanford Sigall, include not only ready-made bibelots, but some you can make yourself to go with this year's sumptuous papers—the new flocked textures that are rich, regal, romantic, the new foils like exotic metals. Package ties also come in a multitude of new forms: multi-striped ribbons in kaleidoscopic combinations; thick, brilliant yarns; a new elasticized string in mingled gold and jewel colors. There is also a new, very practical boon: rubber cement in spray form that makes smooth, bumpless gluing a fast and foolproof proposition. With these ingredients, you'll find our gift packages as much fun to create as they are a joy to receive—and your imagination will be tempted to devise all manner of other expressive wrappings that are entirely personal to you and to the recipients of your loving labor. For shopping information on all the wrappings, please turn to page 190.

ON THE OPPOSITE PAGE:
A SAMPLING OF ORNAMENTS TO GIVE YOUR PACKAGES
A FINAL FLOURISH,

A FAKE GINGERBREAD HOUSE to crown a pyramid of boxes. The three glazed paper wrappings take their color cues from the richly printed paper on the biggest box, and glittery elastic string holds them all together.

PAPER FLOWERS on pipe cleaner stems to blossom from a tissue paper flowerpot. The pot is a quick wrap for round objects like candy tins or perfume cartons. To make it, stand gift in center of several layers of tissue paper and cut a round large enough to extend above top of gift carton. Fix flowers to top of carton with Scotch tape. Put dabs of glue around top edge of carton, bring paper up, and attach at evenly spaced points. (If carton is a pretty one, prewrap it in plain paper.)

JACKS-IN-THE-BOX (inexpensive little felt toys) to herald a surprise package. The real present is in a smaller box nested within glazed paper-covered outer box. Straight pins hold lid open.

TINY WHITE TEDDY BEAR to accompany a smiling Goldilocks. Box is wrapped in pink glazed paper, then lower third is covered with flocked paper. Dime store doilies make the collar; paper scraps, the gay features; and the new yarn tie, the golden tresses. To fix hand securely, spray rubber cement on both the side of the box and the doily-cuffed paper wrist. Let dry about two minutes, then join.

MILITARY DECORATIONS to dignify a present for a man. Ready-made star and candy-coin medals are rubber cemented to scraps of a new multicolor gift tie. Epaulettes are gold paper and yarn; silver buttons are kitchen foil. The deep blue paper that forms the background is a new opaque tissue from Japan.

TICKTACKTOE BOWS with adhesive backs to be joined into three fat round ornaments for the tree. All you do is remove strip from adhesive back to adhere bow to the lustrous ombré foil on the box.

A POUFY BOW to echo the colors of a romantic flocked paper. To make bow, use plain narrow ribbon along with the broad tri-color.

PAPER BALLS to deck a miniature plastic tree. Open balls only halfway before attaching to package with dab of rubber cement. Later they can be opened to full spheres to hang on the real tree. Two sheets of a subtly flocked paper in different colors wrap the package.

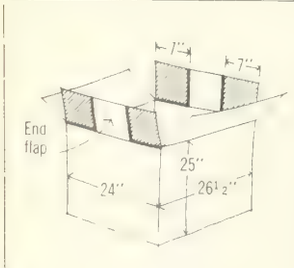
A ROSE TREE to blossom on a feminine gift. Ready-made ribbon roses are pinned into a half sphere of Styrofoam; tree trunk, grass and trim on flowerpot are self-sticking ribbon. Pot itself is folded from more of the copper foil that wraps the box.

GLITTERING SENTRY to turn a simple gift package into a child's delight. Box is wrapped in blue glazed paper; doorway is cut from black glazed paper. Black paper-covered cardboard makes the roof, which is held in place by tape strips along top edges of box.

CREAMY ROSETTE to complete a wine bottle's elegant disguise. Bottle is sheathed in corrugated paper, then printed paper is wrapped around and tucked over top and bottom edges of cylinder. Black tissue paper stuffed in both ends finishes package securely.

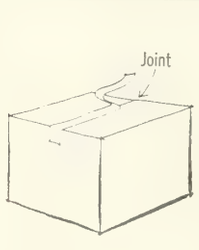
THICK TASSELS to add a fast flourish to any gift wrapping. Three made of the brilliant new yarn-tie accent bright orange glazed paper wrapping. (You might make dozens more to adorn your tree.)

A FANCIFUL FISH to signal a sportsman's gift. Fish is cut from cardboard to which blue glazed paper has been glued; scales are folded rounds of green paper and one half of each is glued to fish. Box is covered in new wood-grain paper.



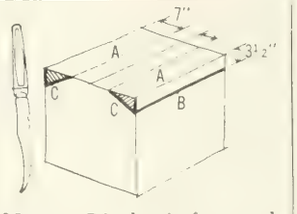
BUILD A BRIGHT REFUGE FOR THE ANIMAL KINGDOM

With cartons and crayons, you can construct a colorful shelter for the children's stuffed animals

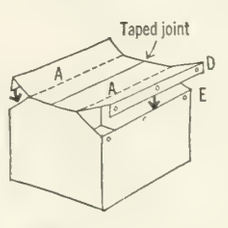


Any grownup who cannot remember the childhood joys inspired by stuffed animals must have been born old. From the first cuddly teddy bear to the sophisticated giraffes and kangaroos of later years, each creature continues to be treasured long after its ears are no more than a few shreds and its eyes, empty sockets. And since not one of these creatures may ever ever be discarded, the menagerie soon outgrows the toy shelf. So H&G has designed an ark as benevolent in its ways as Noah's, since it is not only a place for the animals to play, but a substantial shelter from the stormy seas of the playroom floor.

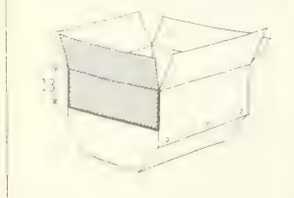
You can make the ark yourself of easily available materials, the most costly of which are two unfolded cardboard cartons. The ones we used each measured 26½ inches long, by 24 inches wide, by 25 inches high, but the precise dimensions are less important than the approximate shape. (You could make a smaller ark out of one carton.) Using a 5-inch utility knife with serrated blade, you cut or score the cartons, then fold them to shape hull, cabin and prow. The parts are assembled first with brass fasteners, then secured with gummed tape. Once the ark is constructed, you can decorate it with paper, Crayola crayons and tempera paint. To simulate the planked siding, cut unglazed shelf paper into 3-inch-wide strips; lay the strips on a plank of wood and rub with a brown crayon. Paste the planks on the hull (Firma-Grip paste is good for this) and accent with brown crayon. You can make the decking in the same fashion by rubbing black poster paper with white crayon over a plank of wood. Cabin and roof may be colored with tempera paint. The window shutters are made from cardboard scraps covered with paper crayoned like planking, and the roof shingles, from egg carton dividers. Gangplank is a separate piece of cardboard with cross-strips for treads, lollipop sticks and string for guide ropes. Roof lifts up for toy storage.



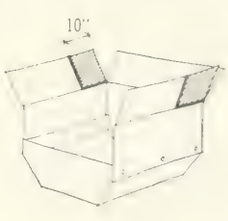
How to construct the three-part ark



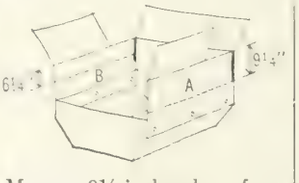
Measure 7 inches in from each end of end flaps. Cut along bold lines, using a sawing motion, to remove shaded areas.



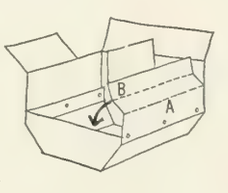
Fold in remainders of end flaps; fold the side flaps over them. Secure the closing across the top with masking tape.



Measure 7 inches in from each corner toward taped joint. Score top (do not cut) along dotted lines "A." Measure 3½ inches down from each corner and cut each side along bold line "B." Cut ends along line "C"; and remove shaded areas.



Fold down the top along the scored line "A," tucking inside box to point where the edge "D" meets cut edge "E." Fasten the two thicknesses with 3½-inch paper fasteners.



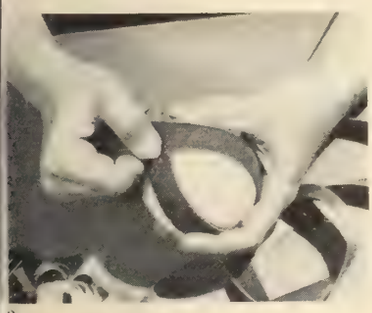
Turn ark over. Measure 13 inches down from the corners at one end. Cut along bold lines and remove the shaded area (save this piece—you will need it for the prow).

At opposite end of box, measure 10 inches from ends of the side flaps, cut along the bold lines, remove the shaded areas.

Measure 9¼ inches down from corners on each side, and score outside of box along line "A." Measure 6¼ inches down from corners on each side and score inside of box along dotted line "B." Cut the two corners along the bold lines to line "A."

Fold each side toward the inside of box along line "A," then toward the outside along line "B." These instructions are continued on page 184.

OPPOSITE PAGE: Kenny Graham, 6, and Gigi Hanover, 4½, put our ark through its paces, and prove it is not only sizable—2 feet wide by 5 feet long by 2 feet high—but shipshape (it may not float, but it is sturdy). If your children's playroom lends itself to a real stage setting, you might approximate our background by painting the wall with sky and mountains, the floor with waves. Steiff animals from F. A. O. Schwarz.



SPHERICAL FANTASIES YOU CAN MAKE YOURSELF

Brilliant ribbons, jeweled stick pins, a Styrofoam ball are all you need to make a Christmas ball as splendid as anything ever dreamed up by Fabergé. These fanciful spheres of glowing velvet and rich brocade look marvelous against the dark branches of a Christmas tree. You can also hang them from a window frame in festive bunches like those on the opposite page, or dangle a bright trio from a chandelier. Or you might give some as Christmas gifts, singly or in pairs. With sachet added (in a small pocket scooped out of the Styrofoam base), they would make a wonderfully pretty way to scent a closet. Since these regal conceits have the look of heirloom decorations, many families like to add a new ball every year to a treasured collection that memorializes happy Christmases. If you are a ribbon fancier, you may find the makings of several balls in your hoard of "someday" remnants and embellish them with more glitter in the form of beads, pearls, sequins, gold braid. Or you might plan a series of balls in special color schemes and shop for ribbons to carry them out. But if you are short on shopping time, you can do away with that part of the procedure this year by ordering from Ribbon Decor, P.O. Box 2, East Rutherford, N.J., a new kit that contains all the ingredients for making four 3-inch balls in any one of three color ranges: warm (reds, oranges, yellow), cool (blues, greens, purples) and the traditional red and green.

There is no end to the ways you can vary the ribbon coverings. But an appropriately splendid effect can be achieved with ribbons of three widths (1-inch and narrower), one short "jewel"-headed pin for a finial and one long "jeweled" hatpin.

1 Place end of widest ribbon at any point on Styrofoam ball, anchor at both corners with straight pins.

2 Pull ribbon firmly around ball to ½ inch from starting point. Cut and pin. With same width ribbon start second band at right angles to first.

3 Cross second ribbon over first ribbon at spot directly opposite starting point.

4 Cut and anchor second ribbon ½ inch from its start. Styrofoam ball should now be quartered evenly and have square bald spot at one end.

5 Bisect the four white areas in same with two more strips of same wid

6 To cover remaining white strips use one continuous piece of medium-width ribbon. Anchor end over bald spot, wrap ribbon firmly around ball, pin, then turn ribbon slightly and cover the next white area. When all the Styrofoam is covered, anchor ribbon with two pins and cut.

All the dearly familiar carols are sung informally every year shortly before Christmas around a towering tree in New York City's Amster Yard. This delightful tradition, started four Christmases ago by the East Forty Ninth Street Association, now draws hundreds of enthusiasts to its evening sing-song under the hostmanship of interior designer James Amster. The carolers, each wearing something red, collect in the Yard at about 8:00 P.M. Song books are distributed, flashlights beam on and after a brief rehearsal, everyone troops out to serenade the neighborhood. Later, a steaming wassail bowl awaits the shivering performers arriving back at the Yard.

"SING, BOYS, SING"

IN JOYFUL CHORUS

—the merriest way to celebrate the holiday outdoors or indoors

Every year as voices lift in the well-loved carols, another link is formed in the chain that makes all Christmases one. Even the carols that have become as familiar as your own name take on renewed eloquence when you hear them sung inside a candlelit church dancing with shadows on Christmas Eve, or wafted indoors from a snowy street where a band of very young wassailers struggle to keep on key, or outdoors around a gigantic glistening tree such as the one, above, in New York's Amster Yard. But the carols we all grew up with are no more than a tiny drop in the huge reservoir of songs—sweet, restful or rollicking—that men have sung at Christmas. Even a perfunctory run-through of the more than 5,000 Christmas chorales offered by today's music publishers will turn up an abundance of engaging music that can give a traditional holiday sing the piquant flavor of the unexpected.

The simplest of caroling parties, indoors or outdoors, is the unrehearsed sing-along kind at which amateur voices in unison are spurred on by a strong accompaniment and a few adventurous and sure-pitched sight readers. A rich source of fresh fare for such choruses are the Christmas folksongs that music researchers have garnered from all over the world. Two good collections are "Christmas Carols from Many Countries" (G. Schirmer) that

Unusual chorales culled from many centuries and from many lands are frequently performed during the holidays by the Schola Cantorum, a professional group directed by Hugh Ross. On this occasion, twelve singers accompanied by harpsichord, harp, violin, trumpet and percussion, gave a black-tie musicale at the New York City apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Derek L. O'Donoghue, founders of the Schola Associates who support the group. At the beginning of the evening the guests were served drinks, then they settled around the living room to hear such Christmas rarities as ancient Slavic folk songs, Renaissance motets, madrigals, songs by Scarlatti, Handel, Britten, range from Wales to Austria and Portugal to Poland, and "Fifty Christmas Carols of all Nations" (Willis Music Co.) that include Alsace, Italy, Sweden, Spain.

Somewhat more ambitious—and for that reason often more rewarding—is the indoor Christmas musicale complete with choristers, instrumentalists and an appreciative audience. For such a performance you would undoubtedly need a few rehearsals (part of the fun) by a reliable nucleus of twelve or more who know what part singing is all about. But Christmas ebullience can go far to make up for expertise, and an unconventional combination of instruments would only serve to enhance the flavor. A harp or a harpsichord, of course, would be an extremely happy find. But a flute, a fife, an oboe, a clarinet, a trumpet, a recorder—any or all of these could add brilliance even if they only reinforced the melody. And children might be cued to chime in with jingles, bells and triangles.

A choral program for such a group—made up presumably of more proficient singers—might include four-part arrangements of some of the less familiar folk songs interspersed with old English madrigals, perhaps, or selections from the classical repertory such as Scarlatti's "Alleluia," Tchaikovsky's "A Legend," Rachmaninoff's "Glory to God" or one of the easier-to-sing numbers from Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols." Help in selecting music feasible for whatever talent you can round up might be forthcoming from the head of the music department of your local high school or from the music librarian of your library.

Whether your friends are primarily singers or listeners, you will undoubtedly want to have some Christmas choral recordings at hand as an accompaniment for all kinds of holiday festivities. To add variety to your library of familiar stand-bys you might give a hearing to some of the newer releases such as: The Many Moods of Christmas—two cantatas based on traditional Christmas music arranged by Robert Russell Bennett and sung by the Robert Shaw Chorale (RCA Victor LM 2684; LSC 2684); A Ceremony of Carols by Benjamin Britten sung by the Texas Boys Choir (Decca DL 10060; DL 710060); Medieval English Carols and Italian Dances performed by the New York Pro Musica (Decca DL 9418; DL 79418); The Story of Christmas—folk songs from around the world sung by the Roger Wagner Chorale (Capitol T1964; ST1964); Sing Noel—new settings of carols sung by the Elizabethan Singers (London 5809; OS25809); Christmas in the Philippines (Capitol of the World T1305; ST1305).

THE PANTRY THAT MAKES THE PARTY is specially equipped to cope with every detail

Many a big kitchen bountifully blessed with storage space and all the newest equipment becomes the scene of scurried confusion on the day of a party merely because the planners forgot one very important fact —i.e., cooking and serving are distinct operations, but inevitably their schedules overlap. When food preparation is at its peak is very likely the moment when the dining table must be set; when the last vital touches are being added to the ragout is just the time when the hors d'oeuvres must be heated for serving. All of this was very carefully considered, however, when Valerian Rybar remodeled a complex of service rooms in his New York apartment. Instead of devoting the whole space to kitchen and dining area (see H&G, February, 963), he reserved a sizable part for a well-organized serving center.

The center is in two parts (see plan, below)—a large working ntry and a smaller storage room separated by an open passage from tchen to dining room. Ranged along one wall of the pantry section e a refrigerator-freezer (reserved for party foods only) by G.E., automatic ice-cube maker, a dishwasher and a double sink with a ose-neck faucet particularly convenient for filling large pitchers. n the opposite wall is a Black Angus rotisserie for browning canapés, d, built into the counter below it, a two-drawer food warmer that eps hors d'oeuvres not only hot, but moist or crisp, as desired. n both walls are banks of St. Charles cabinets that store all the household's china and crystal, along with the silver and linens.

The serving center's storage section, which has a door to close it off, is lined with open shelves stocked with a veritable warehouse of decorative table accessories, centerpiece containers, canapé trays and candlesticks. Another set of shelves is earmarked for liquor storage and adjoining that is a built-in rack for wine.

In these two areas take place all the behind-the-scenes activities for Mr. Rybar's parties—from selecting the china to washing up. For a large party, the pantry becomes a working bar. But whether plans call for a houseful of cocktail guests or a gourmet dinner for eight, the kitchen is blissfully undisturbed by pre-and-post-party clutter.

n the pantry section, OPPOSITE PAGE, crisp white abinets, sky-blue floor and ceiling and a unny yellow and white blind repeat the summery colors f the kitchen next door. The small sliding-door upboard over the sink holds spices and seasonings. or a complete roster of the equipment, see page 190.

n the storage section, RIGHT, a many-faceted vardrobe of table-setting accessories is laid out on pen shelves for see-at-a-glance selection. Near the loor, see plan, BELOW, is a built-in rack that tores extra leaves for the dining room table.

Kitchen and pantry were planned for livision of activities. In remodeling, the old pantry was widened and the new storage room made from a former gloomy corridor.

At the Calders'

where they believe it's foolish to buy anything you can make yourself

By Francine du Plessix Gray

The Alexander Calders' house is magical. Its magic comes from the uniqueness of objects chosen and made by two powerful personalities, from the Calders' individualistic and old-fashioned sense of comfort, from the warmth of their proverbial hospitality.

You feel the Calder hospitality the moment you drive up to the black clapboard house near Roxbury, Conn., which has been their American home for over twenty-five years. A hulking, silver-haired, benignly grumbling man, known as Sandy to his friends, dressed in blue jeans and a vermilion flannel shirt, walks out to the driveway in any weather to greet his visitors. He administers hearty embraces to the men, bear-like hugs to the women and a profusion of caresses to the children, whom he is apt to carry rather than escort into his living room. After this affectionate greeting, you are almost overwhelmed by the very particular perfume of the Calder house: the scent of the wood fire burning day-long in the fireplace, the smell of Louisa Calder's freshly baked or still-baking bread and the hot perfume of the jungle of tall plants that line the south window of the whitewashed living room. Hibiscus, begonias, orchids, flowering maples, jasmines, oleanders, camellias, bamboos, orange and rubber trees, some of them 8 or 10 feet tall, are fed daily, like pets.

Many great artists are indifferent to the esthetics of their home, but Calder can not stand living with a badly designed object. Moreover, he has a strong belief, unusual in our consumer age, that it is foolish to buy anything that one can make oneself. As a result he has filled his house with his own artifacts. He has designed and made every lighting fixture, door latch, fire screen, andiron, ashtray and candleholder in his house, most of its kitchen utensils, many of its chairs and cupboards. He has ingeniously hammered discarded gallon cans of Progresso olive oil into elegant serving trays, has painted the garbage cans in his kitchen with bold designs of red and yellow to "make them gayer," has encased fragile Chinese porcelain cups into jewel-like brass holders, has himself stitched an assortment of Colombian horse blankets into a living room rug.

Perhaps the most decorative aspect of the Calders' house is Louisa Calder herself, grandniece of Henry and William James, a beautiful Bostonian with sharp blue eyes and the most melodious voice I know. Louisa Calder, who usually greets you with a grandchild at her feet and knitting or stitching in her lap, is always adorned with a massive jewel made by her husband. It is also the Calders' joint passion for great design that has assembled on the tables and walls of their living room such objects as an African ceremonial mask, a pre-Colombian statue, a bull's head found in their pasture and a nineteenth-century hay cradle along with their collection of (Continued on page 189)

The living room of the Calders' early nineteenth-century house was once an ice house, served for some years as Mr. Calder's studio. The rough stone around the fireplace is part of the cliff on the side of which the house is built. Bold primary colors dominate the room. Beside the table, opposite page, that Mr. Calder brought from his family's home in Philadelphia is the rug and bench cover stitched by Mrs. Calder from her husband's design: next to an Early American hay cradle is an early Calder painting, a black mobile. The sofa, left, is draped with a woolen blanket from Portugal, a shawl from Colombia. The rattan stools are from Japan. Mr. Calder built the aluminum coffee table that holds his white mobile, fashioned the candleholders from sheets of bent aluminum and the bottoms of discarded beer cans.

In their kitchen, the Calders sit, eat and entertain. It is the busiest room in their house. An addict of good design, Calder makes most of his own kitchen utensils because he wants them to be more beautiful than the manufactured variety. By the same token, Mrs. Calder makes her own bread because it tastes better than what she can buy at the store, and there is often a fresh loaf, set on the table with a bottle of wine, to greet the visitor. Calder built the red cupboard out of packing crates, made the kitchen table and stools near the windows and the star-shaped ceiling lamp. The plant in the corner was started ten years ago from a grapefruit seed. The table they brought from France. In the big bowl is a mouth-watering purée of quince from their orchard.

BRAVURA COLOR COOLLY CONTROLLED

brings traditional furnishings magically up to date

There may be nothing new under the sun, but when we reinterpret the non-new and find fresh new ways to exploit its virtues, it can easily seem as up-to-date as today's headlines. Thus, the contemporary interest in traditional furnishings springs at least in part from the fact that we have developed unhackneyed ways to use them and make them a part of contemporary life. One of the most potent of these techniques is color. To see how it works in Dr. and Mrs. John Murray's house in Greenwich, Conn., is to discover all over again, as if for the first time, how magical color can be.

The Murrays recently bought for themselves and their two young children a house in the French Provincial style. They decided on French Provincial for the furnishings also, not only because that style of design would go with the house, but because they loved its woody warmth and graceful curves. But Mrs. Murray was also prepared, even eager, to venture into the offbeat and the daring. And her husband wanted to preserve the sense of light and space and the simple, uncluttered surfaces that had attracted them to the house in the first place. With interior designer Angelo Donghia of Yale Burge, Inc., they put all their ideas and desires together and brought into being rooms that are vibrantly alive and full of imagination.

Color was the key. Rich, deep hues like those in the boldest contemporary paintings give each room individual flair. In the living room, color is concentrated on the furnishings; in others, on the walls. And in each room, a single pattern, rhythmically reiterated, sets a mood that unifies a diversity of designs and finishes. Most of the furniture is in the country style of Louis XV, but the familiar woody, rural look has been replaced in this setting by the gayer look of painted finishes. Color, pattern and furniture each complement the other. But what helps them achieve maximum effectiveness are the expanses of cool, uncluttered surfaces: unbroken sweeps of wall; big, simple rugs; large borders of dark-stained floor buffed to a soft hand-rubbed luster. All this creates a setting in which antiques bloom as brightly as if they were new inventions.

THREE DARK WALLS PLUS ONE WALL OF GLASS

In the library, above and opposite page, walls daringly painted the rich, shadowy red of ancient Chinese lacquer are tempered by cool neutrals: the Roman blinds that frame the lush view, the crewel-embroidered linen upholstery, the pale sisal rug (which in winter is switched for a needlepoint rug in a warm rose pattern). But the unexpected alliance of unrelated elements—dark painted walls a glass wall, French Provincial furniture, crewel embroidery in the seventeenth-century English style—gives the room an unhackneyed charm. Another inspired combination: the grandfather clock that guards the entrance to the living room has an antique case, an old Parisian face, spanking new works.

DARK WALLS, WHITE WALLS WORK EQUAL MAGIC

VAN NESS

In the Murrays' bedroom, above and right, dark brown walls, as unexpected as the dark red walls of the library, create a restful mood, one in harmony with the shadowy woods outside. The yellow and white pattern that dapples the room like sunlight also papers the adjoining dressing room (doors, drawers and all) making it into a charming foyer. Chinese Chippendale bamboo chair and white-lacquered table are Mrs. Murray's work center: papers and typewriter are housed in the Louis XV armoire. Painting is by Greenwich artist, Vin Guiliana.

In the living room—in contrast to the other rooms—all the major surfaces are white, making a cool sweep that is uninterrupted even by curtains. Color is concentrated on the furniture, where it glows with jewel-like intensity, reflected and refracted by mirrors on all four walls. The glittery, color-bordered mirror over the large sofa is a rare Venetian find. Opposite that is a solidly mirrored expanse of chimney breast, and a pair of Regency mirrors face each other at the ends of the long room.
The controlled mélange of styles, including Louis XV armchairs (each covered, as the thrifty French used to do, in two different fabrics), a commanding Louis XIII chair, an elegant black and gold writing table and touches of chinoiserie, is an important part of the technique that brings tradition brilliantly up to date.

PICTURE YOUR WINTER WINDOWS

as frames for the form and color of living plants

Some people try to frame their winter windows with plants. Some people choose to frame winter plants with their windows. We prefer to do the latter. We are mindful that the most precious commodity of any winter window is light — especially sunlight. So we do not propose to try growing sun-demanding plants in a north-facing frame. Nor do we see any special point in wasting shade-tolerant varieties on a southerly exposure. What we have done is to ask James Fanning, a landscape architect with a special affection for fine pot plants, to fill a compass-round assortment of stock window frames with handsome plants—both flowering and foliage plants. In this case, the assortment of windows is basic, one facing east, right, three others facing west, north and south respectively (see next two pages). While we include two score plants in the total list, the top twelve, if we must play favorites, are those on the opposite page. They are shown at their peak of performance (of either flower or leaf), a condition they could not possibly maintain the year round in any single window, but could—and would—achieve at some time during any window year. And for one window or four, you choose plants not to fill the frame, but to enhance both window and room with a decorative picture. You will not, of course, need the whole group. And it is interesting to note that one plant (we won't say which) is a key accent in all four window schemes. For descriptions of the plants and notes on their care, turn to page 192.

In leaf and stem as well as flower, color keys good window plants

The twelve plants, OPPOSITE PAGE, are arranged without special regard for preferred orientation and in each case their chief attributes are emphasized. Most of them reappear in one of our four windows:
1. Otaheite orange 2. Clivia miniata 3. Chinese evergreen 4. Crown of thorns 5. Flowering-maple 'Apricot' 6. Jacobinea carnea 7. Rex begonia 'Mikado' 8. Boston fern 'Verona' 9. Campanula isophylla 10. Christmas cactus 'Orchid' 11. Spathiphyllum clevelandii 12. Strepotosolen jamesonii. All these representative varieties are perennial.

If you catch morning sun

Place chief reliance on foliage plants for your decorative staples. Elegant and graceful false-aralia (Dizogotheca elegantissima) reaches up at the right, with wide fronds of bird's nest fern and Boston fern around its base. On the other side of the composition are multicolored zebrina pendula and holly-like osmanthus fragrans, a charming shrub with fragrant flower clusters. Kangaroo vine, fastened to the frame, prefers diffused light. For windows with other orientations, turn page.

WINTER WINDOWS make ideal plant frames, whichever way they face

When you face west

Afternoon sun permits you to grow most of the plants that also take east light. The chief difference lies more in your own morning and afternoon outlook than in the plants. In pots on the casement divider, a pair of Aeschynanthus speciosus, shy kin of the African-violet, have trailing stems, flame orange blossoms. Beneath them are rex begonias. Far left and on sill at right are campanula isophylla and red-flowered fuchsia fulgens. On chair is a fourth rex, and repeaters osmanthus and kangaroo vine.

If you look northward

Sunless light can give you some of the loveliest foliage greens, but few blossoms worthy of the name. The familiar kangaroo vine hangs from the tall divider. A prickly Euphorbia lactea almost reaches it from the floor. At far left, a glossy bird's nest fern stands alone. Clustered Chinese evergreen (Aglaonema commutatum) and the variegated species, A. pseudo-bracteatum, are the chief accents among tiny pots of modest but durable Siderasis fuscata, within whose oval leaf cups blue flowers open. A rex begonia and the ubiquitous Boston fern are at far right. In this and the other three window arrangements, placement of the plants is merely a suggestion. With shelves, hooks, trays and chains you could position the pots in any arrangement that suits.

If you have sun all day

In a big, bright bay window there isn't much beyond your horticultural reach. The only risk is that you will try to grow too many plants of too many varieties — achieving color easily enough, but riotously and without repose. Nowhere is the distinction more apparent between a window obscured by plants and a plant collection framed, as it is here, by a handsome window. The dramatic central accent is the brilliant crown-of-thorns, with its ever present red blossoms. The glistening leaves and white spathes of the inflorescence of Spathiphyllum clevelandii dominate the right half of the sill, while trailing kangaroo vine (in its fourth appearance) and variegated aglaonema dominate the left. Small pots of dwarf pomegranate stand at the far left, their bright orange flowers surrounded by round calyces. A small siderasis balances the row at the far right. Boston fern spreads its feathers behind the table, while two pots of campanula isophylla perch on the upper window frames. You will find the proper or catalogue names of all these plants— keyed to their window locations—along with suggestions for their care on page 192.

Why and how to decant wines

By James A. Beard

A decanter is not merely an attractive container for wine—it is a very practical serving accessory. If you are one of the fortunate wine lovers who can serve vintage wines, which are bound to have some sediment, decanting is the way to make certain that no sediment gets into the glasses. The amount of sediment in old wine varies a good deal. In some cases it may be very little, but a truly venerable wine can contain as much as 30 per cent. Decanters are also practical for the wine drinker who buys his wines in large containers—California table wines in gallon jugs, for example—and must transfer them to smaller bottles for dispensing at table.

To decant or not to decant is a question that wine lovers often debate. There are those who would decant most of the time, those who would decant some of the time and those who would never decant. No matter what your stand, you can find a reputable authority to back you. Most great restaurateurs believe firmly in decanting all older wines. But even they agree that anyone arriving for dinner and ordering wine at the last minute should not demand that it be decanted. Nothing is gained by carrying a bottle of old wine up from the cellar and decanting it before the sediment has had time to settle to the bottom. Most fine restaurants will decant a vintage wine for you, however, if you order it a day or so in advance.

Decanting a wine that has thrown sediment must be done with great care. Carry the bottle gently from cellar or closet, jiggling it as little as possible. Stand it upright and let it remain standing for six to eight hours to allow the sediment to settle. Then, holding the bottle very steady, cautiously take out the cork and clean out the neck of the bottle.

Now, light a candle and place it so that it will shine just behind the neck of the bottle as you pour. Grasp the neck of the decanter a hold it tilted at a slight angle allow the wine to slip into it easi Hold the wine bottle in a horiz tal position with the neck of t bottle meeting the lip of the d canter. You must pour in one c tinuous motion. If you allow t wine to slosh back into the bott it will stir up the sediment.

As you pour, watch the wi flowing into the neck of the bott The light of the candle showi through the glass will reveal t slightest cloudiness from sed ment. The second that you see t first signs of this, stop pourin

Some people like to place t bottle on the table next to the d canter so that their guests can s from the label what they are dri ing. Other hosts like to display t cork, for in château and propri taire bottling the name of the wi is burnt into the cork, which th becomes as important an identi cation as the label. The classic w to display a cork is to tie it arou the neck of the decanter. For th purpose, some connoisseurs wh collect wine accessories use a tique English cork holders—silv pins attached to silver chains.

A handsome decanter is a ways a decorative addition, course, to the dining or servi table. Decanters also make exce lent gifts, particularly when a companied by a bottle of wine cognac, in which case the d canters should be of clear glas Green or amber decanters are be ter used for whiskey. You can gi the decanter already filled if yo like, but be sure—if you fill it wi wine—that you attach the co from the bottle.

Pudding and Pie Cook Book

CREATED AND BOTTLED BY THE HOUSE OF PEDRO DOMECQ, JEREZ DE LA FRONTERA, SPAIN. SINCE 1730. IMPORTED BY CANADA DRY CORPORATION, NEW YORK, N. Y.

In every bottle, there may be a bit of Lord Nelson's personal choice

Or of William Pitt, George IV, Louis Napoleon, Wellington. Others, too.

Pedro Domecq has been making sherry for the world's leaders since 1730. And because his sherries today are a blend of many vintage years, some of the bottle you buy could be as old as the House of Pedro Domecq itself.

Blended as they are, Pedro Domecq Sherries achieve distinctive clarity, brilliance, and flavor, whether you lean toward the dry or the sweet.

La Ina, Spain's favorite sherry, is light, pale, very dry. It has been described as the driest sherry in the world. Thus: a cocktail sherry.

Double Century, on the other hand, is almost sweet (but not quite)—a more full-bodied sherry for all occasions. Britain's best seller, too.

Lean either way and you're well directed.

To La Ina, the cocktail sherry. Or, to Double Century, the all-occasion sherry.

Imagine the historical significance of every sip!

Pudding and Pie Cook Book

By James A. Beard

Puddings and pies are good old-fashioned fare. Folklore is full of popular old sayings such as: "Promises are like pie crust, made to be broken," and "The proof of the pudding is in the eating."

Although the world's cuisines provide many examples of morsels encased in crust or dough, English cookery has by far the greatest number and variety. And it is from English cuisine that most American puddings and pies derive.

An early definition of the word pudding describes it as "the stomach or entrails of a pig, sheep or other animal stuffed with mincemeat, suet, seasonings, etc., boiled and kept until needed; a kind of sausage." Here we have, of course, the origin of the Scottish haggis, the English mincemeat pie and the plum pudding.

A later definition of pudding calls it a preparation of food of a soft or moderately firm consistency in which the ingredients, animal or vegetable, are either mingled with a farinaceous base or are enclosed in a farinaceous crust and cooked by boiling or steaming.

In today's vernacular, the term pudding includes fresh fruit puddings, puddings made with milk and puddings that are baked.

The old English word pie was originally spelled pye. At first, it probably meant mixture and may be the same word that is the source of piebald—meaning mottled—and the printer's expression, pied type, or jumbled type.

Most certainly the early pies were mixtures. The old Christmas pie, for example, contained various types of fowl—a goose, chicken, squab—plus fruits and spices. This combination was another forerunner of mincemeat.

Puddings and pies, then, were originally hearty dishes based on meats. Today we tend to think of them as desserts. Yet there are a number of excellent entrées in this category—meat pies, fish pies, cheese puddings and the like that are still very popular. Included in this cook book are a wealth of delectable puddings and pies, both sweet and savory, traditional and up-to-the-minute modern.

Pudding and Pie Doughs

There is an old saying that a light hand makes good pastry. This is very true. The best doughs are blended with the finger tips, and the task must be done evenly with a light touch.

Start then with clean, deft fingers. Make certain that you have a good work area, clean and smooth; marble is ideal. The butter or shortening should be cold for mixing, and you must work rapidly so that the warmth of your fingers will not melt the fat. (One excellent pastry maker always prepares her crust in a cool basement to keep the shortening firm.) If you are uncertain of your dexterity, you can make dough with a rotary electric mixer, using the beater paddle.

Chill pastry before cooking for best results. It can be chilled in a ball and then rolled out; rolled to fit the tin and then chilled; or rolled and fitted into the tin and chilled. A good way to roll pastry is between sheets of wax paper. Keep turning often, and with every turn loosen top paper to prevent it from sticking to the dough and wrinkling.

You may make pastry in large batches and freeze it. First fill your flan rings and tart shells and then freeze the pastry in them. To use, add the filling to the still-frozen shells and bake, allowing a minute or two extra cooking time.

You will note a pastry recipe in this cook book that calls for hard-cooked egg yolk. This makes a shorter, more delicate pastry. When you are working with very short pastry, don't worry if the pastry breaks when you are lining your tins. Just patch it by pressing the edges together with your finger tips. Always be generous with the overlap at the rim of the pie tin, tart shell or flan ring. You need the excess because the pastry will shrink.

When the pastry is to be baked before filling, line it with foil and fill with dry beans or rice—a foolproof way of keeping the pie shell in shape. The foil and beans can be used many times over.

Finally, always check pastry as it bakes. Exact cooking times are hard to give. In many cases you must use your own judgment and the knowledge that comes with experience.

There are several kinds of pastry doughs. Some are excellent for flans or tarts; some form the basis for old-fashioned pies; others make good steamed puddings.

Rich Pastry

(for flans and tarts)

2 cups unsifted flour
3 tablespoons sugar
3 hard-cooked egg yolks, mashed
2 raw egg yolks
¾ cup butter, or ½ cup butter plus ¼ cup vegetable shortening, firm but not icy
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ teaspoon salt

Put the flour on a marble work top, a table or in a bowl and make a well in the center. Put all the rest of the ingredients in the well. Working quickly with your finger tips, mix the flour with the other ingredients. When the dough is well blended, break off small bits and rub them on the work top with the heel of your hand. This mixes the dough thoroughly. Press the dough together and chill for at least ½ hour before using. Roll it out between two sheets of waxed paper. Roll away from yourself and then toward yourself; turn the dough, loosen the paper and roll again. Repeat this process until the dough is the size you need.

Cream Cheese Pastry

(for savory pies, quiche, deep-dish fruit pies)

½ pound butter
½ pound cream cheese
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
Heavy cream (optional)

Blend the butter and cream cheese together and mix in the flour and salt with your finger tips. If the pastry needs moistening to make it form a firm ball, add a little heavy cream. Refrigerate before rolling out.

Pâte Brioche

(for fruit tarts and tarte cassonade)

This is not a regular brioche dough, but a pastry dough with leavening.

1 package dry yeast
¾ cup warm water
2 cups flour
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ cup butter

Dissolve the yeast in the water. Sift the dry ingredients and combine with the yeast mixture, egg and butter. Stir and beat until well blended and bubbly. Set aside in a fairly warm spot to rise until double in bulk. Punch down and use to line a flan ring or pie tins.

MCKEVITT

Right equipment for puddings and pies will help turn out perfect results. Fundamentals: a pastry board, tapered rolling pin, pastry brush of fine hair or goose feathers, scales for weighing hard-to-measure ingredients such as chopped suet, and of course a flour sifter. Extra embellishments: pie funnel (a little English gadget that holds up top crust and lets steam out during baking), small tin cutters for pie-crust decorating and, hanging on the wall, a removable-bottom pie pan that produces a ready-fluted crust.

Suet Pastry

(for sweet or savory boiled suet puddings)

For this pastry, the suet must be chopped exceedingly fine. It is sometimes worked in a mortar and pestle until it is almost powdery.

1½ cups (6 ounces) loosely packed, very finely chopped suet
3 cups flour
¼–½ teaspoon salt
Ice water

Blend the suet well with the flour and salt and moisten with just enough ice water to make a firm dough. You will need about ⅓ cup water. Sprinkle the dough with flour and roll it out on a floured pastry board.

Rough Puff Paste or English Puff Paste

(for many meat, poultry and game pies)

This dough is not as delicate as feuilletage (French puff pastry), but it is exceedingly good.

2¼ cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup lard or butter
Dash lemon juice
Ice water

Sift the flour and salt and add the lard or butter, cut into pieces the size of large cherries. Mix and blend well. Make a well in the center and add the lemon juice and just enough ice water to make an elastic dough. Press into a ball and chill for 15 minutes.

Place on a floured board and roll into a long strip. Fold away from yourself into three folds. Seal the edges with the rolling pin and turn the pastry halfway around so that the folded edges are to your right and left. Roll again and fold. Chill for 15 minutes. Repeat the process and chill another 15 minutes. Then repeat once more and chill the dough until needed.

Pâte Sablée I

(for fruit flans, tarts or for lining barquette tins)

¾ cup butter
⅓ cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt

Cream the butter and sugar and add the egg. Blend well. Sift the flour and salt and gradually blend into the sugar-butter mixture. If the paste is too stiff, add a little ice water, but this is seldom necessary. The pastry should be the consistency of a good cookie dough. Mold into a flan ring or pan, or roll out and fit into the pan. Chill. Bake in a 375° oven for about 20 minutes. Cool before filling.

Pâte Sablée II

½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Cream the butter and sugar, add the egg and blend well. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt and gradually add to the sugar-butter mixture. Form into a ball and chill before rolling or fitting into a pan or flan ring. Bake in a 375° oven for about 20 minutes, or until slightly brown. Cool.

Pâte à Foncer (Short Pastry)

2 cups flour
¾ cup butter or lard
1 egg
½ teaspoon salt

Sift the flour onto a pastry board or work table and make a well in the center. Put the butter, egg and salt in the well. Working quickly with your finger tips, blend the pastry into a ball. Wrap it in waxed paper and chill for 1½–2 hours.

Savory Pies and Puddings

Clam Pie

1 carrot, cut in thin julienne strips
1 onion, cut in thin julienne strips
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
2 cups white wine
2 quarts clams in shell, well scrubbed
2 cups sauce velouté
1 pound mushrooms
5 tablespoons butter
Salt, pepper
3 tablespoons sherry or Madeira
1 recipe rough puff paste (see Doughs, left)
1 egg, beaten with a little water

Combine the carrot, onion, bay leaf, 1 teaspoon pepper and white wine in a large kettle. Add the clams. Cover and steam over medium heat until the clam shells open. Remove the clams from the shells and strain the broth through a linen cloth. Using some of the clam broth for liquid, make sauce velouté.

Slice the mushrooms and sauté in the butter. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Mix the mushrooms and clams with the sauce and flavor with sherry or Madeira. Taste for seasoning. Pour into a baking dish or pie dish and cool. Place a support in the center of the dish to hold up the crust and top the pie with rolled out puff paste. Brush with egg mixture and bake in a 450° oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to 350° and continue baking until the crust is nicely browned. With this pie, drink ice cold beer or a well-chilled white wine such as Liebfraumilch. Serves 6–8.

Chicken Leg Pie

6–8 chicken legs and thighs, according to the size of the pieces
Flour
6 tablespoons butter
4 slices bacon, cut in small pieces
2 onions, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 bay leaf, crumbled
1 teaspoon thyme, or ½ teaspoon each: thyme and rosemary
Salt, pepper
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
1 cup white wine
4 hard-cooked eggs
Rich pastry (see Doughs)
1 egg yolk beaten with 1 tablespoon cream

Flour the chicken pieces lightly and brown them in the butter. When they are nicely browned on all sides, add the bacon, onion, garlic and herbs and season to taste with salt and pepper. Add the mushrooms and wine and cover the pan. Simmer for 45 minutes, adding a little more wine if it cooks down too much.

Cool and remove the chicken pieces to a pie dish. Add the halved eggs and pour the sauce over all. Top with a crust of the rolled out pastry. Cut a small vent in the top and insert a paper cornucopia. Brush the pastry with the egg mixture. Bake in a 375° oven for 25–30 minutes, or until the crust is brown and the chicken heated. Serves 6–8.

With the pie, serve crisply sautéed potatoes and a salad and drink a light Fleurie.

Ronson introduces...remarkable new candles. They never burn down.

in antique white, ebony black or cardinal red enamel; or in satiny gold-tone or silver-tone. Suggested retail price, $24.50 per pair. (Includes candle holders and large-size Multi-Fill fuel injector.)

Ronson kept the romance of the candle. Threw out the wax and the wick. Added some ingenious ideas of their own. And the result: The Ronson Varaflame® Gas Candle, the greatest improvement in dining by candlelight since soft music.

The Varaflame candle is tall. Tapered. Tipped with a real flame. But it burns with a brighter, cleaner flame than any other candle.

No soot, no smoke, no waxy smell. It never drips, never burns down. Because this is a new kind of candle that burns butane, a gas.

Beneath its beautiful outer shell is a fuel cylinder that holds up to four hours of candlelight. (It even has a see-through fuel gauge.)

It's filled when you get it. And when it's time to refill, it fuels like a Ronson Varaflame lighter—from a Ronson Multi-Fill® injector. Clean, safe, easy. Fills completely in less than a minute.

And what candle ever had an adjustable flame? The Varaflame does.

A remarkable patented valve lets you turn the flame up or down. And it stays at the height you set it. High and bright for gay parties. Soft and low when it's dinner for two.

Set them out in the golden holders they come with. Or put them in your own. Varaflame candles are like your silver. A permanent part of your table.

You'll still be romancing with them a thousand candlelit dinners from now.

Beefsteak, Kidney and Oyster Pie

3 pounds beef chuck, cut in 1½"-2" cubes
Flour
Salt, pepper
Beef fat
½ cup finely chopped shallots or onion
Cognac
2–3 veal kidneys
2 tablespoons flour
12–14 mushrooms
2 onions, sliced
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon thyme
½ teaspoon rosemary
1 bay leaf crumbled
1½ cans beef gravy or an equal amount of brown sauce
12–14 oysters
Stock
Rough puff paste or cream cheese pastry (see Doughs)
1 egg, beaten with a little water

Dust the beef cubes well with seasoned flour. Melt the beef fat and sauté the chopped shallots. Add the beef cubes and brown on all sides. Place a support—an inverted glass or measuring cup—in the center of your baking dish to hold up the center of the crust. As the beef cubes brown, transfer them to the baking dish. Add the sautéed shallots. Rinse the pan with a little cognac and pour the juices over the meat in the baking dish.

Slice the kidneys rather thin, dust with flour and add to the baking dish. Add the next eight ingredients and enough stock to fill the dish ⅔ full. Top with chilled, rolled crust, sealing it to the edge of the dish with cold water. Crimp with your fingers. Brush with egg mixture. You may decorate the top of the crust with rosettes and leaves cut from the pastry. Stick them on with a little water. Bake the pie in a 325° oven for 1½–2 hours, or until the meat is thoroughly tender. If the crust browns too quickly, put a piece of brown paper over it. Remove the pie from the oven and let it stand for 10 minutes before serving.

With the pie, serve parsley potatoes and a well-flavored cole slaw. Drink a good beer or English cider. Serves 6–8.

Pork and Apple Pie

This is first cousin to the famed Melton Mowbray pork pies of England. The Melton pies were baked in a seamless raised crust and called for the deft hand of the master baker, but the local housewives made this excellent simpler version with the same seasonings and far less trouble.

4 pounds (about) lean pork, finely chopped
4–5 apples, peeled, cored and thinly sliced
2 medium onions, finely chopped
1 teaspoon sage
Salt, pepper
Stock or bouillon
Mashed potatoes
Melted butter

Arrange alternate layers of pork and apples in a deep baking dish. Sprinkle each layer with a little chopped onion, sage and salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with a little stock or bouillon. Cover with a thick mashed-potato crust and brush well with melted butter. Bake in a 325° oven for 1½–2 hours, or until the pork is thoroughly cooked. Serve with crisp bread, pickled walnuts and beer. Serves 6–8.

Tuna Tart

Rough puff paste or cream cheese pastry (see Doughs)
7-ounce can white-meat tuna
½ pound shrimp, cooked and shelled
¾ cup tiny green olives or anchovy-stuffed cocktail olives
¼ cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
2 cups rich béchamel sauce

Line an 8" tart mold that has a removable bottom with pastry, rolled a little thicker than usual. Place a piece of foil over the pastry and weight down by filling with dry beans. Bake in a 400° oven for 15–20 minutes, or until the shell is nicely browned and done. Remove from oven and take out the beans and foil. Keep tart shell warm until ready to use.

Flake the tuna quite fine. Cut the shrimp into rather small pieces, reserving a few whole shrimp for garnish. Mix the seafood with the olives, reserving a few for garnish. Add the cream and seasonings and enough hot béchamel sauce to fill the shell. Heat to the boiling point. Fill the shell with the mixture and decorate with whole shrimp and olives. Serve the remaining béchamel sauce separately. Serves 6–8.

Cannelon of Beef

This is apparently an early American version of canneloni.

Cream cheese pastry or rich pastry (see Doughs)
2 cups ground leftover beef
½ cup ground ham
1 medium onion, finely chopped
Grated rind of 1 lemon
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 tablespoon chili powder
Salt to taste
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½-¾ cup brown sauce (canned beef gravy may be used)
1 egg beaten with a little water

Roll the pastry out in a rectangle or square, reserving a strip about 3" by 6". Blend the ground meats, onion, lemon rind and seasonings and work to a moist paste with the 2 beaten eggs and a little brown sauce. Place the mixture in the center of the dough and roll up. Secure the ends of the roll with strips of pastry pinched on to seal in the meats and juices.

Place the roll on a buttered baking sheet and brush with beaten egg. Bake in a 375° oven until the crust is golden brown. Serve hot with a mushroom sauce, or serve cold plain. Serves 6–8.

Pheasant Pie

1 or 2 hen pheasants, depending on size
Flour
¼ pound butter
Salt, pepper
1 bay leaf, crumbled
½ teaspoon thyme
½ teaspoon quatre-épices or Spice Islands Spice Parisienne
1½ tablespoons flour
1 cup white wine
12 small white onions, peeled
1 or 2 slices Virginia ham (about ½ pound), cut in cubes
¼ pound mushrooms, sautéed in butter
¼ cup chopped parsley
Rich pastry or rough puff paste (see Doughs)
1 egg yolk beaten with 1 tablespoon cream

Cut the bird or birds into serving pieces. Flour them lightly and brown in the butter. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add the bay leaf, thyme and quatre-épices. Sprinkle with a little flour and blend well. Add the white wine and onions. Bring to a boil, lower the heat and cover the pan. Simmer for 35–45 minutes, or until the pheasant is tender. Cool slightly and transfer to a pie dish. Add the ham, mushrooms and parsley and top with the pastry dough. Cut a vent in the top and insert a small cornucopia of paper. Brush with the egg mixture. Bake in a 450° oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to 350° and bake another 10 minutes, or until the crust is nicely browned.

Serve with a barley casserole and puréed artichokes dressed with butter. Drink a good Burgundy, such as a Vosne Romanée. Serves 6–8.

Traditional molds and dishes

Charlotte (1) and savarin (3) molds are for baked desserts; pâté en croûte mold with hinged, removable sides (2) forms a pastry-encased pie. Covered melon mold (4), trio of English pudding basins (5), white china mold (6) and lidded, fluted mold (10) are for steamed puddings. French baking dish with rabbit's head design (7) is made of pottery that simulates pie crust. Another version (8) sports a snipe's head, while a pudding dish of the same crusty-brown pottery (9) pretends to be no other than it is.

Sweet Puddings

Steamed Fresh Fruit Pudding

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter
Cream
Fruits or berries of choice
Sugar, butter

Put the dry ingredients in a bowl and cut the butter into them. Add enough cream to make a delicate soft dough—about 1 cup. Roll and pat the dough out on a floured board and top with sliced apples or whole pitted cherries or sliced peaches. Other fruits may be used. Blackberries are good, and the wild huckleberry of the Pacific Northwest makes a delicious pudding. Sprinkle the fruit with sugar to taste and dot with butter. Roll up the pudding and fit it into a buttered mold. Cover tightly and steam for 1¾ hours. Serve with hard sauce, custard sauce or sweetened whipped cream flavored with cognac. Serves 6.

Ginger Pudding

½ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
2½ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
Pinch of salt
1 teaspoon ground ginger
3 tablespoons finely chopped candied ginger
1 cup milk

Cream the butter and sugar and when smooth, add the beaten egg. Sift the dry ingredients and mix 1 tablespoon with the chopped candied ginger. Add the rest to the butter mixture a bit at a time, alternating with the milk. When the dough is well mixed, add the candied ginger. Pour into a buttered 1½-quart mold and cover tightly. Steam for 2 hours. Serve with whipped cream. Serves 6.

Blueberry Orange Pudding

3 tablespoons butter
⅔ cup tightly packed brown sugar
Dash vanilla
2 cups blueberries (frozen may be used)
⅓ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 slightly beaten egg
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
½ cup orange juice
Grand Marnier, whipped cream

Melt the 3 tablespoons butter and stir in the brown sugar. Add a dash of vanilla and the blueberries and simmer for 8–10 minutes. Pour into a charlotte mold or pudding dish.

Cream the ⅓ cup butter and ½ cup sugar and add the egg. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder and add the orange peel. Add the dry ingredients to the butter and sugar alternately with the orange juice and a little Grand Marnier. Spoon over the blueberries and bake in a 350° oven for about 45 minutes. Serve with whipped cream flavored with Grand Marnier. Serves 6.

Superb English Plum Pudding

This pudding is really best when made a year in advance and allowed to mellow. It was customary to make it early in Advent—the religious season before Christmas—and use it the following year. Everyone in the family was supposed to stir the pudding once for good luck. If you can't make it the year before, at least give it a few weeks to age.

FRUIT MIXTURE: (make this 4 days ahead)
1 pound seedless raisins
1 pound sultana raisins
½ pound currants
1 cup thinly sliced citron
1 cup chopped candied peel
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 pound finely chopped suet—powdery fine
1¼ cups cognac

Blend the fruits, citron, peel, spices and suet and place in a bowl or jar. Add ¼ cup cognac, cover tightly and refrigerate for 4 days, adding ¼ cup cognac each day.

PUDDING:
1¼ pounds (approximately) fresh bread crumbs
1 cup scalded milk
1 cup sherry or port
12 eggs, well beaten
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Cognac

Soak the bread crumbs in milk and sherry or port. Combine with the well-beaten eggs and sugar. Blend with the fruit mixture. Add salt and mix thoroughly. Put the pudding in buttered bowls or tins, filling them about ⅔ full. Cover with foil and tie it firmly. Steam for 6–7 hours. Uncover and place in a 250° oven for 30 minutes. Add a dash of cognac to each pudding, cover with foil and keep in a cool place.

To use, steam again for 2–3 hours and unmold. Sprinkle with sugar; add heated cognac. Ignite and bring to the table. Serve with hard sauce or cognac sauce. Each pudding serves 12.

Delicious Bread-and-Butter Pudding

Softened butter, about 1 cup
8–9 thickish slices bread (homemade is best)
1 cup raisins soaked in cognac or sherry for 30 minutes
4 eggs
½ cup sugar
Pinch salt
1 quart half and half
1 teaspoon vanilla

Butter a 2½-quart pudding dish or soufflé dish. Trim the crusts from the bread and butter the slices well. Arrange them in the dish, buttered side down, in layers. Sprinkle each layer with some of the raisins. Beat the eggs lightly and add the sugar, salt, half and half and vanilla. Pour through a strainer over the bread and let stand for 30 minutes. Cover with foil and bake in a 350° oven for 35 minutes. Remove the foil and continue baking until the pudding is lightly browned and set. This will take about 30–35 minutes. Serve warm with cream. Serves 8.

Fig Pudding

1½ cups finely chopped beef suet
½ pound finely chopped dried figs
2½ cups bread crumbs
½ cup milk
1 cup sugar
Pinch salt
2 eggs, well beaten

The suet must be very fine. Knead it with your fingers until it is powdery. Work in the chopped figs. Soak the crumbs in milk and add the sugar, salt and eggs. Combine with the suet and figs and pour into a well-buttered 2-quart mold. Cover tightly and steam for 3 hours. Serve with hard sauce or cognac sauce. Serves 6-8.

Spotted Dog or Spotted Dick

This old-fashioned pudding was often served for dessert in English boarding schools and no doubt received its colorful name from the schoolboys.

1 cup (6–8 ounces) tightly packed chopped suet
1 cup corn syrup or molasses or English golden syrup
1½ cups sultana raisins
1½ cups bread crumbs
3 eggs, well beaten
1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk

Crumble the chopped suet with your fingers and combine with the syrup and raisins. Add the crumbs and eggs. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt, and add to the suet mixture alternately with the milk. Pour into a buttered mold and cover tightly. Steam for 3 hours. Serve with vanilla sauce or hard sauce. Serves 6-8.

Old-Fashioned Indian Pudding

1 quart scalded milk
⅓ cup yellow corn meal
Pinch of salt
½ cup molasses
1 good teaspoon ginger

Put the scalded milk and corn meal in the top of a double boiler over boiling water. Add the salt and cook, stirring frequently, for about 20 minutes. Mix with the molasses and ginger and pour into a buttered 2-quart soufflé dish or baking dish. Bake in a 300° oven for about 2 hours. Serve warm with vanilla ice cream. Serves 6.

Savarin with Fruits

½ cup warm water
2 packages or cakes yeast
2½ cups unsifted flour
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon sugar
½ tablespoon salt
⅔ cup softened butter
Cognac syrup (see directions)
Fresh fruits, sugared and flavored with cognac
Whipped cream

Put the warm water into a small bowl and sprinkle or crumble the yeast into it. Stir until dissolved. Combine with the flour and eggs and beat for 2 minutes. Add the sugar, salt and softened butter and mix until the dough is quite elastic. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Beat for 1 minute more and pour into a well-buttered 3-quart ring mold. Let rise again.

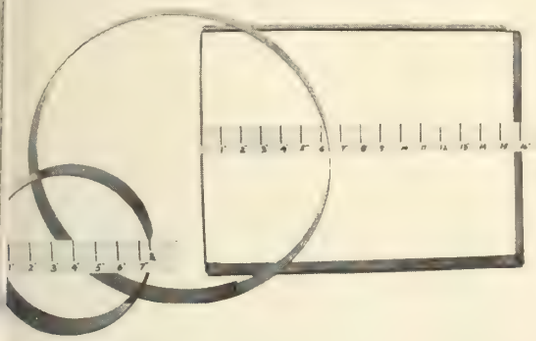
Bake in a 450° oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to 350° and continue baking until just brown and cooked through.

Remove from the oven and unmold on a platter. Spoon warm cognac syrup over the savarin and let it cool. (For cognac syrup, cook 1½ cups sugar and 2 cups water for 15 minutes. Add ⅓ cup cognac and blend.) Fill the center of the ring with any selection of fresh fruits, sugared and flavored with cognac. Garnish with sweetened whipped cream and serve. Serves 8–10.



Note: Instead of cognac syrup, you may cover the savarin with apricot glaze before adding the fruits.

Sweet Pies, Tarts and Flans

Flan rings are available in shops that specialize in equipment for the serious cook. They can be round, square or oblong. The standard oblong ring is about 12″ by 4″. Round rings vary from 4″ to 12″ in diameter. Square rings come from 6″ to 12″ in size. One New York shop sells an expandable flan ring—a most practical utensil.

To make a flan shell, set the ring on a baking sheet. Roll out the dough to fit the ring and carefully lift it into the ring so that the dough falls to the bottom, trying not to break it too much. Then, with the sides of your hands, press it in. Run the rolling pin across the top rim to give an edge to the dough and to cut off any excess. (See illustrations on next page.)

If you plan to fill the flan with pastry cream and fruit or just with fruit, you must bake the shell first. Cover the dough with a piece of foil and fit it in loosely. Fill it with dry beans and bake in a 425° oven for 10–15 minutes, or until the shell is just baked and delicately browned. Remove the beans and foil (you can save the beans and use them over again for the same purpose) and cool the shell on the baking sheet.

Expandable flan forms from France make it possible to bake flan shells of varying sizes with one piece of equipment. Sliding metal bands pull apart to stretch the ring from a minimum 7¼″ to a generous 14″, the rectangle from 16″ by 12″ for a small oven to 30½″ by 22¼″ or any size in between, to fit extra-large or hotel-type ovens.

Fillings for Flan Shells

1. Fill with pastry cream (see Crème Patissière). When the cream is set, cover with ripe strawberries or raspberries and glaze with melted currant jelly.

2. Omit the pastry cream and simply pile high with berries and glaze.

3. Fill with poached peaches or apricots and cover with a raspberry or apricot glaze.

4. Melt a 6-ounce package of semi-sweet chocolate bits and combine with ¼ cup finely chopped filberts or walnuts. Spread on the bottom of the flan ring. Cover with poached pear halves and top with an apricot glaze.

5. Fill flan rings with split seeded grapes, alternating black grapes with green, or purple grapes with red. Brush with currant glaze and serve with whipped cream.

Glazes for Flans

Currant glaze: Melt a 1-pound jar of currant jelly over medium heat and boil down for one minute. Brush over fruits and chill to set.

Apricot glaze: Melt a 1-pound jar of apricot jam and bring to a boil. Add 2 tablespoons of cognac and boil down for 2 minutes.

Raspberry glaze: Melt a 1-pound jar of raspberry preserves. Bring to a boil and stir in 2 tablespoons of crème de cassis. Strain.

Crème Patissière (Pastry Cream)

FOR 2 FLANS:
1 quart milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 cup sugar
8 egg yolks

Scald milk and vanilla. In a heavy pan, mix the flour, cornstarch, sugar and egg yolks. Place over low heat and gradually stir in the milk. Increase the heat and continue stirring until the mixture is thick and smooth. Cool before pouring or spooning into the flan rings.

You may add cognac or other brandies to the cream for flavoring, if you wish. Kirsch, Framboise and Mirabelle are delicious with berries; pear brandy, with pears and apples.

Apple and Mincemeat Flan

Line a 12″ oblong flan ring or a 10″ round ring with rich pastry dough (see Doughs). Chill thoroughly. Cover the bottom with well-flavored brandied mincemeat. Top the mincemeat with thin slices of cooking apples arranged in a neat pattern. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake in a 450° oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to 350° and continue baking for 30–40 minutes, or until the apples are tender. Cool and glaze with apricot glaze. Serve with cognac-flavored whipped cream. Serves 8.

Apple Flan

5 tablespoons butter
4–6 cooking apples, peeled, cored and cut into sixths
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sugar to taste
Rich pastry (see Doughs)
2–3 apples, peeled, cored and cut into thin slices
Butter
Apricot glaze

Melt butter in a heavy skillet and add the apples. Cover and steam over medium heat until the apples are just breakable. They must not be soft and mushy. Add vanilla and sugar to taste and blend. Line flan ring with rich pastry dough. Spoon the apples into the flan ring and press them down smoothly. Top with the thin apple slices arranged in a neat pattern. Sprinkle with sugar and dot with butter.

Bake in a 450° oven for ten minutes. Reduce the heat to 350° and continue baking for 30–40 minutes, or until the apples are tender and the crust is brown. Cool and glaze with apricot glaze. Serve with sweetened whipped cream. Serves 8.

Clafoutis of Prunes

1 pound pitted prunes
1 cup sultana raisins
Sherry or port
3 eggs
6 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons flour sifted with ½ teaspoon baking powder
3 cups milk
¼ cup cognac (optional)

Soak the prunes and raisins in sherry or port for 8 hours.

Beat the eggs well and add the sugar, salt and flour-baking-powder mixture. Blend with the milk and flavor with some of the wine in which the fruits have soaked, or with cognac. Arrange the fruit in a buttered 10″ baking dish and top with the batter. Bake in a 375° oven for 30–35 minutes, or until set. Serves 8.

Italian Fruit Tart

PASTRY:
2 cups sifted flour (measure, sift and measure again)
½ cup sugar
½ cup butter
Pinch salt
1 egg

Combine all ingredients and work them together deftly with your finger tips to make a smooth dough. Roll the dough into a ball and chill it for at least 1 hour. Roll the dough out on a floured board and then fit it into a buttered and floured 9″ pie tin.

FILLING:
2 pounds pitted bing cherries, fresh blueberries or pitted prunes
3 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons sherry or port

Arrange the fruit in the pie shell. Blend all the rest of the ingredients thoroughly and pour over the fruit. Sprinkle with a little additional sugar and bake in a 400° oven for about 40 minutes, or until the fruit is cooked and the cream set. Serve warm. Serves 8.

Raisin Pie

3 egg yolks
1 cup buttermilk
1 tablespoon vinegar
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
2½–3 cups sultana raisins plumped in hot water flavored with lemon juice
Rich pastry for 2-crust pie
1 egg beaten with a little water

Beat the egg yolks and beat in the buttermilk and vinegar. Add the sugar, flour, salt and grated rinds and mix well. Drain the raisins and add to the mixture.

Line a 9″ pan with pastry and add the filling. Top with crust and cut a vent. Brush with beaten egg. Bake in a 450° oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to 350° and continue baking until the crust is nicely browned. Serve while still warm. Serves 8.

Homemade Mincemeat

3 pounds lean beef—shin or chuck—boiled until tender
1 small fresh tongue, boiled until tender
1 pound finely chopped beef suet
2 pounds seedless raisins
2 pounds seeded raisins
1 pound currants
½ pound shaved citron
¼ pound each: chopped lemon peel and orange peel
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons each: cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice
1 teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon ground cloves
Cognac
Sherry

Chop or grind the meats and combine with all the other ingredients, except cognac and sherry, in a large crock. Add enough cognac to make a moist mixture. Then add 2 cups sherry and mix well with your hands. Cover the crock tightly and let the mincemeat stand for a month. Add more cognac or sherry to moisten and pack into jars or keep in the crock. If you add cognac and sherry occasionally, the mixture will keep for a year or more.

Mince Pie

Double or triple recipe for rough puff paste or rich pastry (see Doughs)
Homemade mincemeat (see above)
Apples, chopped
Cognac
2 eggs beaten with a little water

Roll out the pastry to fit a large 10″–12″ pan and a 9″ pan. Line the pans. Fill with mincemeat blended with a little chopped apple. Add ¼ cup cognac—or more—to each pie. Roll out top crusts to fit and lap over about ½″. Tuck the top crusts over the edges of the bottom crusts and seal well. For decorative pies, cut some leaves or rosettes of pastry and stick them to the top crusts with a little water or egg white. Bake in a 450° oven for 15–18 minutes. Reduce the heat to 350°, brush the pies with egg mixture and continue cooking them until the crusts are a golden brown. Serves 16.

Serve hot with whipped cream, hard sauce or cheese—either cheddar or Roquefort.

Chess Pie

For some reason this delicious sweet is almost unknown today.

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
3 egg yolks
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
9″ pastry shell, uncooked, or 6 individual tart shells, uncooked

Cream the butter and sugar and add the egg yolks one at a time. Beat thoroughly after each addition. Blend in the grated rinds, the salt and the lemon juice. Fill the pie or tart shells and bake in a 350° oven for 25–30 minutes. Serves 6. Note: Chess pies are really best made as individual tarts.

Tart of Les Demoiselles Tatin

4 tablespoons butter
1 cup sugar
12–14 green apples
Butter
Rich pastry (see Doughs)
1 egg beaten with a little water or cream

Blend the 4 tablespoons butter and ½ cup of the sugar in a heavy pie tin and cook over medium heat until the mixture is thick, syrupy and lightly browned. Slice the peeled apples. Arrange them on top of the butter-sugar syrup in layers. Dot each layer with butter and sprinkle with a little sugar. Build the apple slices up in the center to come above the rim of the pan. Cover with rich pastry rolled ⅛″ thick. Brush with egg. Bake in a 450° oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to 375° and continue cooking until the apples are soft and the crust cooked through.

Let the tart cool slightly and then carefully invert it onto a serving plate. The apples should have caramelized with the sugar-butter mixture, making a delicate brown top for the tart. Serve warm or cold with cream. Serves 8.

Chocolate Pecan Pie

CRUST:
1 tablespoon softened butter
¾ cup finely chopped pecans

Butter an 8″ pie tin with the softened butter and press in the chopped nuts.

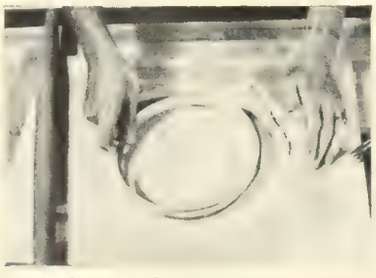
FILLING:
½ cup dark corn syrup
2 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate bits
½ cup coarsely broken pecans

Combine the syrup, eggs, salt and vanilla and beat well. Melt the chocolate bits over hot water and add them slowly to the syrup mixture, stirring constantly. Pour into the pie shell and sprinkle with coarsely broken pecans. Bake in a 350° oven for 25–30 minutes. Serve with vanilla-flavored whipped cream. Serves 8.

Rich Pumpkin Pie

Pastry for 9″ pie
2 cups cooked puréed pumpkin
1 cup brown sugar
6 eggs, lightly beaten
2 cups cream
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon mace
⅓ cup cognac
4 tablespoons finely chopped candied ginger

Line a 9″ pie tin with pastry and place foil on top. Fill with dry beans and bake in a 400° oven for 10 minutes. Remove the beans and foil.

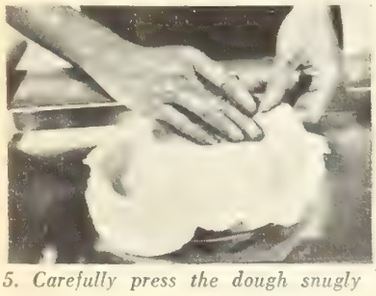


Combine the pumpkin with the sugar, eggs, cream, seasonings and cognac and blend well. Pour through a strainer into the pie shell. Sprinkle with chopped candied ginger and bake in a 375° oven for 30–35 minutes, or until the pumpkin is set. Serve slightly warm with cheese or whipped cream, or both. Serves 8.

How to make a flan shell

Technique demonstrated by Elaine Ross

1. Roll out dough. Turn it a little after each rolling to keep even circle.



2. Roll until dough will cover flan ring. Hold ring on dough to check size.

3. Working toward you, carefully roll up dough from board onto rolling pin.

4. Lift and gently unroll dough away from you over ring on baking sheet.

5. Carefully press the dough snugly against sides and bottom of flan ring.

6. Run the rolling pin over the rim of flan ring to remove any excess dough.

7. Crimp dough edge to make fluted rim; prick bottom of pastry with fork.

8. Cut circle of foil to fit flan shell; weight with rice to keep pastry flat.

decanter complete with a silver chain and label. A true antique collector will not be concerned about whether his decanters match; he may even deliberately seek a wide range of styles.

The earliest decanters probably evolved from the green bottles used for shipping wines and for drawing wines and brandies from casks in English inns and pubs. These bottles were usually square so they could be easily packed for shipping, and they came in a soft bottle green. They were blown of flint glass, and the cooling process often left the surfaces concave and the bottles slightly irregular in shape. The necks were very short and the corks or stoppers very small.

Later, the bottles were made from gunmetal molds which gave the surface of the glass a dappled texture. Such bottles were used not only for wines and brandies, but also for other precious liquids, such as scents and medicines.

You can still find some of these square green bottles in antique shops here and in England. Often they come at bargain prices, because many people think they are merely old medicine bottles, and do not realize their true age and charm. They make a fine addition to a collection of decanters, and although they should not be used for wines and cognacs, they are attractive containers for whiskies, gins and vodkas.

Occasionally you may come across crude but interesting examples of early American decanters. They are irregular in shape and usually quite dirty. But when cleaned up and polished, they can be very appealing as decorative accessories.

In the eighteenth century, decanters became quite elegant and were important additions to every well-appointed dining room, in the Colonies as well as in England. They were filled from wine or brandy casks in the cellar, then brought to the dining room and placed in large wine chests or coolers, which might hold as many as six or seven decanters. You will find some decanters of Colonial design among the Williamsburg reproductions.

In the southern Colonies, slaves were usually entrusted with replenishing the decanters, and since they could not read, the bottle stoppers were made in different designs to indicate what the bottle should hold—a diamond design for sherries, perhaps, a heart design for port, etc. The designs included crowns, spades, circles, flowers and many more. Sometimes such decanters turn up in antique shops in the tidewater region of Maryland and Virginia. If you see one, buy it. Today they are rarities.

Toward the latter part of the eighteenth century, it became the fashion to have sets or groups of square decanters fitted into cases of fine wood equipped with locks and keys. These were known as gardevins since they guarded the wine, making it impossible for anyone to deplete the host's supply without his knowledge. The cases held two, three, four or even six decanters. Often the bottles were elaborately cut in sunburst or diamond patterns to give a sparkling shimmer to the liquid within. Some of the bottles had chased or cut labels, or chains hung about their necks with engraved silver labels attached to indicate their contents.

Modern decanters come in an amazing array of designs, from the simple, severe bottles of Scandinavia, to the elegant Baccarat of France and the famed classical Waterford designs of Ireland. A truly elegant gift for someone who is a connoisseur of fine old beverages might be a Baccarat or Waterford decanter with a bottle of vintage port or excellent cognac decanted into it. Another would be a modern three-decanter gardevin containing port, a good sherry, an outstanding Madeira.

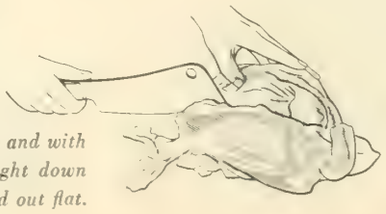
HOUSE & GARDEN'S COOKING CLUB

Ballottines and Galantines

Ballottines and galantines are boned, stuffed and rolled birds or pieces of meat. They both belong to the same order of French cookery; the main distinction between them is that a poultry ballottine is generally a boned bird with the leg and small wing bones left intact and is usually served hot, whereas a poultry galantine is completely boned and always served cold. (If a ballottine is served cold, which it may perfectly well be, it is technically a galantine, according to French culinary dogma.) A ballottine can also be sewn and tied into the original shape of the bird, instead of being rolled, and braised or roasted rather than poached, the usual method. Boned meats such as a breast or shoulder of veal are also called ballottines and galantines if they are stuffed, cooked and served like poultry.



Once boned, the fowl is laid skin side down and the center of the skin covered with a layer of forcemeat. Little strips of decorative meats, truffles or pistachio nuts are then laid on top and covered with another layer of forcemeat, the idea being that when the cooked roll is sliced, a kind of mosaic pattern emerges. The loose sides and ends of the skin are wrapped over the stuffing, forming the whole thing into a shapely, even, oversized sausage, and either sewn together with thread or skewered with toothpicks (meat would be rolled up like a jelly roll to get the same effect). The roll is then wrapped in a floured cloth and the cloth tied with string at both ends and in the middle. Or, it may be wrapped in heavy foil, which doesn't need to be tied. The wrapped roll is then poached in bouillon (if in a porous cloth) or in salted water (if in foil). The best way to do this is to use a long fish boiler or large oval cocotte with handles and tie the ends of the roll to the handles so the roll is suspended and partly steamed, rather than being completely immersed in the liquid.

After cooking, a galantine is cooled with a board and weight on top to press it into shape and let the liquid drain out. The cloth and thread or toothpicks are removed and the galantine coated with aspic or chaudfroid sauce, or both, and often decorated with edible flowers made from truffles, hard-cooked eggs, tarragon leaves and chives. For a ballottine, the cloth is merely removed after cooking and the roll sliced and served hot with a sauce and some appropriate garnish. On the opposite page is a good basic stuffing for a galantine or ballottine, although there are, of course, innumerable variations.

Spread out split turkey bone side upward. With a small sharp boning knife, start cutting flesh from bone at the hip, working toward the breastbone.

Work around carcass, cutting and scraping meat from bone and pulling flesh away with fingers as you cut. Always cut close to bone; do not pierce skin.

Sever tendon joining legs to body. Continue cutting until you reach ridge of breastbone. Slide knife under to release carcass, but do not pierce skin.

To remove leg bones, slit skin down one side of leg, cut and scrape meat from bone. Pull out loosened bones.

Basic stuffing for ballottines and galantines

Lightly sauté ½ cup finely chopped onion and 2 finely chopped garlic cloves. Combine with 1 pound ground veal, 1 pound ground pork, 1 teaspoon thyme (or to taste), ½ cup finely chopped parsley, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper, a pinch each of nutmeg, clove and ginger, ⅓ cup cognac, 3 eggs. An optional addition is ½ pound ground chopped pork or chicken livers.

It is a good idea to combine all the ingredients and then sauté a tiny bit and taste for seasoning; the mixture should be fairly highly seasoned. You may add Tabasco and a little more garlic if you feel it is called for. Spread half the mixture on the center of the skin and put the decorative pieces on top. These can be fingers of cold tongue, cold ham, slices of truffles or whole truffles, pistachio nuts; or, in some cases, the suprêmes or breasts of the various birds left whole which have been removed from the skin. Marinate the meats first in a little cognac or red wine and spice before putting on top of the filling. Pieces of fresh pork fat may be cut in fingers and added so that there are little squares of the white fat as the roll is sliced; pork fat also helps to keep the forcemeat moist. Makes enough to stuff a large turkey, breast of veal or two small chickens.

Spread boned turkey flat, skin side down. Fill with stuffing, bring skin over to enclose stuffing, shaping into long fat roll. Sew with strong thread.

Envelop roll in floured cloth. Tie around center with short lengths of string. Tie ends with longer pieces of string to suspend roll from pot handles. Poach.

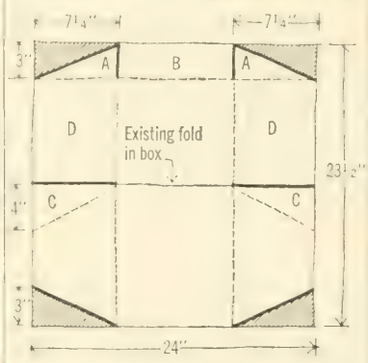
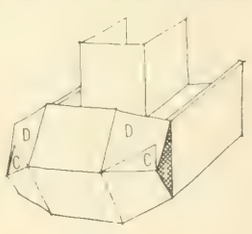
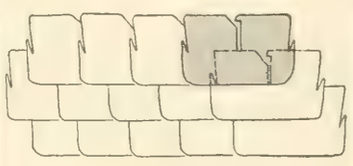
From each side of end flap measure 6½ inches in toward center. Cut along bold lines; remove shaded areas. Tape together the doubled cardboard that now forms the ark's railing. (As you go along, tape freely all joined pieces to hold them together; paper will cover them over.)



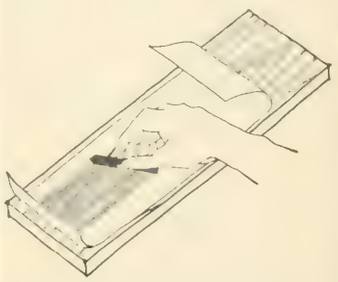
Score on outside of box along dotted line "A." Measure 3 inches up from "A" and score dotted line "B" on inside of box. Measure 8½ inches down from end of flap and score on inside of box along dotted line "C." Folding along lines, you will create railing, deck and end of the cabin.



Follow identical steps with second carton and attach the two cartons with brass paper fasteners. Remove brass fasteners along sides of hull and reinforce all seams with gummed paper tape. Trim cabin walls so that all are same height.



Score a 36-inch-by-18-inch piece of cardboard along dotted line and fold to form peaked roof. Place on top of cabin so that it overlaps sides; tape along one long side. Fill in gables with pieces of cardboard.



Shape prow from piece of cardboard removed from hull and reserved. Score along dotted lines and cut bold lines, removing shaded areas.

Overlap "B" with "A" triangles enough to shape prow of ark and tape to front of ark hull. Overlap "D" pieces with "C" triangles and tape in position. Fill in the triangular shaded areas at each side by taping in scrap pieces of cardboard.

Shingle the roof of the cabin with scalloped dividers from egg cartons. Paste these on, working from the edge of the roof upward so that they overlap. Outline the scalloped edges with blue crayon to suggest shading.

To make trompe l'oeil wood graining to cover the hull, lay a piece of unglazed shelf paper on a rough plank of wood and rub over with a brown crayon. (This transfers the configurations of the wood to the paper.) Paste paper on the hull.

'aterlot, a 300-year-old sea cap-in's inn, and an old estate house, 'alsingham, now known as Tom loore's Tavern. The cuisine, hich, I have to say, is not very dventurous, is divided between nported steaks and the locally aught lobster and shellfish. They so make a splendid fish chowder. ne thing well worth copying is epper sherry, which I have found owhere else but in Bermuda. ou put a handful of small chili eppers into a bottle of ordinary ooking sherry, cork it for a couple f months, and then use it—very paringly—to give dash to chow-ers and soups. I think it should e put at the table and left for ach guest to help himself, for it an be breath-taking. An alterna-ve which I far preferred is the ocal "black" rum (dark and aro-natic, but not particularly sweet), hich gives real depth and rich-ess to soups and stews. It is also nteresting to pour a dash over a ot, grilled grapefruit as an péritif. You might take a bottle ome as part of your bonded li-quor allowance.

Rum, and variations on rum, s the staple drink. The presenta-ion—whether Rum Swizzle, Rum Collins or Planter's Punch—is nasterly. Here are some lessons earned from the barman at Twen-y-One—a charming bar with a anopied, first-floor terrace on Front Street, Hamilton, where peo-ple gather any time from 11:00 in he morning onward: Whip a white of egg and add it to your Planter's Punch, with a dusting of grated nutmeg on top. Frost with sugar the rim of the glass for a Rum Swizzle. Experiment with the addition of slices of peach, ba-nana, pineapple or orange. Add a dash of orange bitters, Angostura or grenadine. Try a slice of grape-fruit peel as a garnish if you don't have fresh limes handy. Most re-freshing of all, mix a light rum half in half with freshly squeezed grapefruit juice. Above all, make each drink separately: rum quick-ly stales with fruit left in it.

Sight-seeing in St. George

Bermuda has nine different parishes, many with evocatively English names: Warwick, South-ampton and Devonshire among them. One of the oldest and most picturesque is St. George, whose "capital" town (the capital of Bermuda itself until 1815) is a sleepy, semi-deserted township of seventeenth-century mansions in which Bermuda's earliest families lived and besported themselves be-tween selling arms to the Confed-erate States during the Civil War, rum running during the days of prohibition, buccaneering in gen-eral, and the more pastoral pur-suits of farming lilies and onions, the island's original crop. St. Peter's Church, the oldest Anglican church in the Western Hemi-sphere, has wonderful carved cedarwood and a priceless silver Communion service, a gift from William III. Nearby is the old State House where Bermuda's parliament met as early as 1620, and, along on Water Street, the President Henry Tucker House, now a museum. The Tucker fam-ily were prominent in American Revolutionary days both in Ber-muda and Virginia, and the house, quite apart from its heirlooms and portraits, is an excellent example of eighteenth-century Bermudian architecture. You need only walk through King's Square, Church Street, Duke of York's and Duke of Kent Street to see that these houses, made of soft limestone mellowed into pale honey-gray, lit by the brilliant reds of the hibis-cus hedges, gabled and lofted in the Georgian manner, are some of the prettiest in the world. Still rel-atively plump and prosperous, they don't have the decayed, de-cadent beauty of the American South, but they have a poetry of their own. Some of the island houses are open to the public dur-ing the season, and the hospitable Garden Club of Bermuda, in Ham-ilton, will arrange visits for peo-ple who are interested in looking around them.

Near to St. George's, at Fort St. Catherine, is a huge nine-teenth-century fortification, now completely restored, that contains heavy muzzle-loading defense can-nons as well as replicas of the British crown jewels. You might look for antiques at St. George's, but make a point of visiting Flatt's Village, which borders Hamilton Sound. A shop named Lazy Corner has collated some of the best antiques from the old houses dur-ing their periodic sellouts, as well as some from the United Kingdom and Ireland. As I mentioned earlier, Georgian silver fetches (or asks) its price: $320 U. S. was the cost of a teapot, cream jug and sugar bowl at Lazy Corner. I also priced a handsome table made from Bermudian cedarwood at $270, but you might just be lucky with some smaller items. One unique island craft is the hand-carved cedarwood cigarette boxes, desk sets and ashtrays that you can buy in the Country Souvenir Shop at Hook 'n Ladder Lane, in the parish of Somerset. But for the most part—and certainly the most businesslike part of your shop-ping—you'll devote a day to Front Street, Hamilton.

Hamilton for shopping

Without going into details on prices, it is an established fact that perfume and china cost 40 per cent less than Stateside prices. And most of the stores, such as Trim-ingham's, sell everything from per-fume through china and cashmere to luggage. For any branded item prices are the same from one store to another. There is practically no part of the world whose merchan-dise has not been tapped by Ber-muda's remarkable buyers. Take your time, therefore, in deciding between Wedgwood, Spode, Crown Derby and Worcester, in choosing from Swedish, Danish and Belgian crystal or Swedish and German steel cutlery. Cashmeres and wool-ens are imported from Italy and Australia as well as Scotland. Calypso, where Polly Hornburg shows her own designs, is one of the best places for resort wear. Un-set stones from Stern's of Rio are on sale at A. S. Cooper. The Belfast Linen Boutique imports things from Madeira as well as Northern Ireland; I specially liked their hand-scalloped pillow-cases and their lace-trimmed guest towels that cost $1.15 each. One of the few things created on the spot is the Royal Lime Water, with matching soap. It has a coolly fragrant scent and is, incidentally, an effective mosquito repellant. French perfumes are far cheaper than in the United States.

White stone cottage on Great Sound displays characteristic ridged roof built to capture precious rain water

Such is the effect on the purse strings that I advise only looking in the morning, and actually shop-ping later on. You are not likely to find the little back-street shop unexploited, so you might just as well stick with the best and most obvious stores that stretch for a half-mile along Front Street itself.

Not that shopping is the only point of Hamilton: it is a white and handsome port, and the shops are located in charming eight-eenth-century buildings. You will find it enough just to sit and look at Front Street from one of the many veranda bars that line it, and watch the liners tie up almost to the lampposts across the cobbled way. The city's most endearing quality is its intimacy. As Mark Twain said of Bermuda: "It looks like a fishhook, only it's smaller."

It is also quiet. Night life, as such, is something which has been created by and for the tourists and so revolves around the big hotels, most of which put on a cabaret—steel band, calypso or straight Western—every evening. For a meal in town, try the Penthouse, on Front Street. But Hamilton beds early, as befits the island's atmosphere of unlimited leisure.

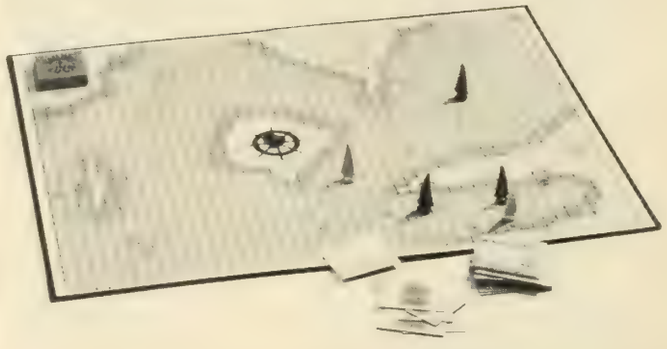
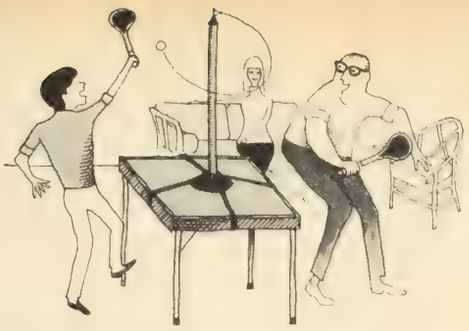
Fun and games for everyone



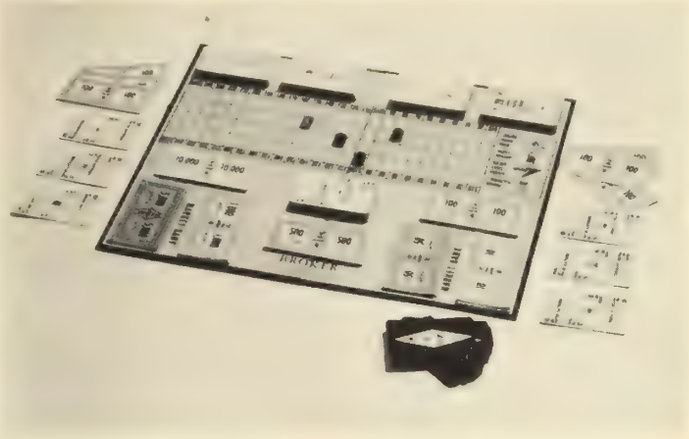
This year's crop of new indoor games ranges from contests of strategy played quietly on a board to some more athletic diversions for working off a little pent-up energy. Most of the games are ageless, can help young and old while away winter hours happily. All are available at F. A. O. Schwarz.

An indoor tennis game for the active

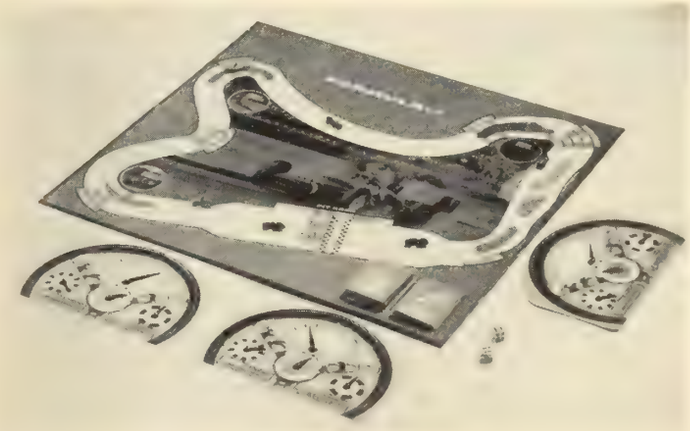
Mini-Tennis is much like Ping-pong except that the table and net are much smaller. Good-sized foam-covered paddles let the players hit a regular ball as hard as they wish—but keep it under close control. Two can play in a relatively small area on a diminutive table. $19.75.



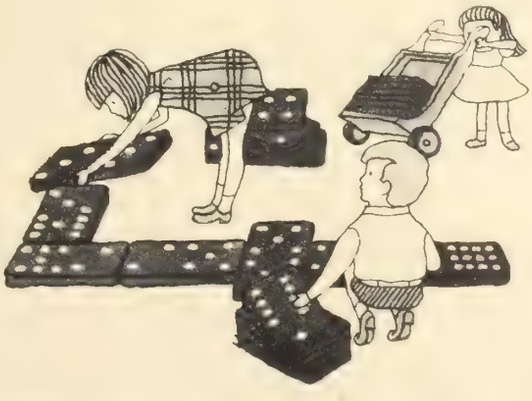
M.EHLMANN



Fun for winter yachtsmen: The Yacht Race can be played by expert or novice sailors—the winner is the first to complete one of several courses with Wind Change, Sailor's Luck and Spinnaker cards that dictate moves. From two to six people may play at the 20-inch-square board. $9.50.



A game of control: Pufferino is played with a small Lucite-covered oblong box which has a rubber bulb attached to it. By pressing the bulb either gently or firmly, a puff of air is exerted on tiny cork balls which are blown to make a score as they land on various numbers. $5.75.



Great energy outlet: Ping Ball is good exercise and keeps you on your toes. Just strap the base of this upright pole firmly to a sturdy table (card-table size preferably), pick up a paddle and commence. The object: to keep the ball in constant motion in its 36-inch radius. $6.95.

Stock market adventures: Broker is a challenging game involving rising and falling stock. You play on a board, with fake money and market action cards to tell moves. For two to six people, aged 12 and up. $5.95.

Game for racing car buffs: Formula-1 keeps racing car experts and beginners moving around the laps as Pit and Tactic cards designate moves. Dashboards with movable indicators for tire and brake wear, lap indicator and speedometer are part of the equipment. For two to six players. $5.

Indoor-outdoor dominoes: Lawn Minos comes stacked with a cover in its own trim cart and can be transported from the lawn to the playroom for the winter. Each black wooden domino measures 11″ long and ¾″ thick—a great size for the game or to use as building blocks. $35.

Only they know the secret

Only four monks of the Carthusian Order know the secret of making Chartreuse, a secret preserved for more than 350 years. Their dedication is rewarded by your enjoyment of this superb liqueur. Before or after dinner, or as a delightful chilled drink, Chartreuse is enjoyable in a variety of ways. For illustrated booklet on Chartreuse, write Schieffelin & Co., 30 Cooper Sq., New York, Dept. No, it's true. Some folks don't like shiny furniture. So Johnson's Cream Polish doesn't shine . . . just cleans and enriches teak, oiled walnut, all low-luster finishes. (Sealed finishes, too.) Won't leave a smeary, dust-catching film or powdery residue. Regular use does away with periodic re-oiling. A few drops on a dust cloth help remove fingerprints, smudges, keep dust from scattering. Suggestions for the bibliophiles on your Christmas list

At Christmas we think first of the children, so let's start with selections for them. A first-rate addition to the currently large pride of books about lions, real and fictional, is Lafcadio, The Lion Who Shot Back by Shel Silverstein (Harper & Row, $2.95). Uncle Shelby tells a witty tale through his famous drawings of Lafcadio in some of his most laughable getups: hunting white hunters, dining out, performing in a circus. He'll be a sensation to any sophisticated youngster from 8 to 80. . . . Home of the Red Man by Robert Silverberg (New York Graphic Society, $3.95) is a penetrating study of the American Indian and his culture from his earliest beginnings. Drawings and maps will guide TV Western addicts to a more realistic understanding of what really happened, before, as well as after, the white man arrived. . . . A charming coloring book titled Edward Lear's Nonsense to Color (Harper & Row, $2.50) will delight Lear's large following (that means virtually all children). Lear, of The Owl and the Pussy-cat fame, suited each of his original Limericks to a drawing with appealing pertinence, and here's a fine choice waiting to be crayoned.

For the dyed-in-the-wool art lover, throw caution, seasonably, to the winds and add a real Christmas treasure to his collection. The Complete Works of Raphael, edited by Ettore Camesasca (Hawthorn Books, Inc., 4 vols., boxed, $15.95), distributes all the paintings and frescoes throughout the four 5-by-7-inch volumes. The text is clear and the pictures, although small, are sharply reproduced. . . . Pictures in the Royal Collection, edited by Sir Anthony Blunt (Phaidon Press, 2 vols., boxed, $21), contains 226 reproductions of the Queen's collection by British artists or artists working in Britain during the Tudor, Stuart and early Georgian reigns. (The collection includes works by Holbein, Van Dyck and Hogarth among others.) Many of the pictures are here reproduced for the first time. These volumes—one of text and the other of plates—are the first of a six-part series which will show the Royal Collection from Henry VIII through the reign of Queen Victoria. . . . A big beautiful picture book is Great Styles of Furniture, edited by Charles Vandam (The Viking Press, $20). Furniture and room settings of England, Italy, France, Holland and Spain from 1500 to 1900 are included. Should make a marvelous gift for anyone seriously interested in interior decoration. . . . Tutankhamen by Christiane Desroches-Noblecourt (New York Graphic Society, $15) is a remarkable book about this young king and his treasures, so well written that it reads like an adventure story. Lavishly illustrated, the book comprises some of the most beautiful color plates we have ever seen. . . . Ben Shahn: His Graphic Art and Ben Shahn: Paintings, introduction and text by James Thrall Soby (George Braziller, Inc., 2 vols., boxed, $22) includes works from the Thirties through 1962. Shahn's satire, humor and immense compassion for the human race come through powerfully in this collection.

Speaking of the human race, several books on the manners and mores of the great and near-great make fascinating reading and viewing. The biggest and most impressive of the recent lot is The World in Vogue, edited by Jessica Daves, Alexander Liberman, Bryan Holme and Katherine Tweed (The Viking Press, $16). Seventy years of American art, letters, theatre, society and fashion are commented on, by camera and by word. The text is especially distinguished by the great names of those who have contributed articles to Vogue. . . . What makes a Philadelphian tick is thoroughly and engagingly reported by Nathaniel Burt in The Perennial Philadelphians, The Anatomy of an American Aristocracy (Little, Brown and Co., $10.50). The book covers the whole history of the city from its founding through the developing of the Main Line to the urban renewal that presently goes forward. Many amusing anecdotes are included, and if it isn't all from the horse's mouth, it's from as near as you can get to the closed mouth of Philadelphia's hierarchy. . . . Russell Lynes adds his gaily mordant comments on Americans at home in The Domesticated Americans (Harper & Row, $6.50). Here is a compilation of thoughts, photographs and drawings of our houses—from the log cabin to the ranch house—and quotes on our paintings by Miró, Toulouse-Lautrec, Tanguy, Max Ernst, Léger, Vieira da Silva, Tamayo and Wifredo Lam.

Sandy Calder, who is honored today as one of the great revolutionaries of twentieth-century art, is the son and grandson of prominent traditionalist sculptors: the statue of William Penn on top of Philadelphia's Independence Hall was made by his grandfather, one of the two statues of George Washington on the arch of New York's Washington Square was done by his father. And along with being an internationally recognized revolutionary, Sandy Calder is himself a traditionalist, a sentimentalist, a family man. On the east wall of his living room he has hung a large portrait of himself in a sailor suit painted by his mother when he was four years old—still a striking resemblance. In the small passageway between living room and kitchen are a profusion of personal memorabilia, postcards from friends all over the world, photographs of the Calders newly married, of the Calder daughters as babies, schoolgirls and mothers, of the four Calder grandchildren.

Except for large parties, the Calders with their guests eat in the kitchen, on a table brought years ago from France. Louisa Calder, a ferocious individualist with disdain for most modern conveniences, has never had any household help in her Connecticut home because, she says, "I can't stand anyone else touching my things." She still does some of her cooking on a coal stove of 1900 vintage, and takes advantage of its slow heat to keep large quantities of food warm for parties.

The Calders have spent a good part of their lives in France, and still spend half of each year in their French home, a sixteenth-century manor near Tours. And the hearty food at the Calders' house, liberally flavored with herbs and garlic, is unaffectedly and exclusively French. Favorites are leg of lamb or roast beef, cooked and served in a beautiful roasting pan of Sandy's manufacture; a daube of beef; roast goose at holiday time; rice served in a salad bowl with oil and basil; and for dessert, generous amounts of salad and cheese, followed occasionally by such an old-fashioned French dessert as gâteau de riz or a purée of quince yielded by the quince trees growing on the lawn.

Meals are accompanied by Louisa's daily baked bread and inexhaustible quantities of wine. Red wine is abundant throughout the house. California wine stands on the floor in five-gallon jars. Chianti in straw-covered jugs dots the tables. Bottles of Beaujolais are stacked in rows on window sills, offered to visitors at any time of day or night they may drop in.

Dancing is one of the Calders' favorite pastimes. Their record shelves are filled with every possible dance rhythm, from valse musettes to the latest merengue. And when Sandy dances, which he is apt to start doing whenever he hears music, his girth and weight are transformed into an incorporeal grace and lightness. The Calders give large dancing parties every spring and New Year's. One recent party made a notable addition to the collection of stories about the Calders' proverbial hospitality: Louisa fed some hundred people between the hours of 9:00 p.m. and 5:00 a.m., and when the last guest left, she single-handedly cleaned up her house to entertain a busload of twenty art critics and museum directors arriving for lunch a few hours later.

The Calders' hospitality, and part of the magic of their home, come from their boundless individualism, energy and warmth, and from the pleasure and simplicity with which they accept the fact that they are very famous, very sought after and very much loved.

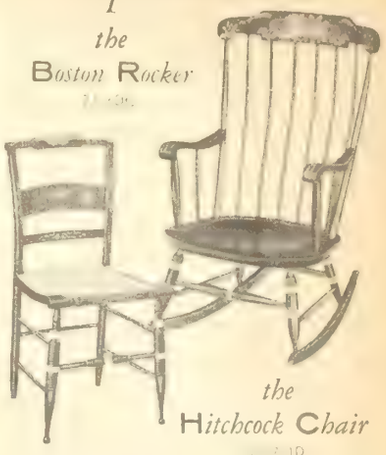
anners from other writers, archi-cts and artists. . . . Conclude your ek into American folkways with reat American Mansions and heir Stories by Merrill Folsom Hastings House Publishers, Inc., 10). Forty-five houses are pic-ured, inside and out, with accom-anying stories of the men who uilt them. Some houses go back o Colonial days, but most were uilt by the tycoons of the nine-eenth century when real status re-uired a house of 250 rooms and very newly rich man built his dream house in the image of a palace. Concluding the entertain-ng story of each mansion is a schedule of times when it is open to the public. (Tax and servant problems have induced almost all heirs to relinquish ancestral seats to the State.)

Servantless houses being prac-tically ubiquitous these days, and hostmanship being an art that does not develop automatically but has to be learned, tab the three fol-lowing suggestions to help young couples with their entertaining. The Art of Carving by the edi-tors of House & Garden (Simon and Schuster, $3.95) for husbands young or old—wives, too. The carving of all cuts of all meats is told with step-by-step pictures as well as succinct text. Also includ-ed: how to open oysters and how to cope with lobster. . . . For the busy young wife with a job, lay hands on Glamour Magazine's New After Five Cookbook by Beverly Pepper (Doubleday & Co., $4.50). This is a completely re-vised version of the very popular cook book first published in 1954. The same reliable formula as in the first book is used—a tally of staples and shopping lists for each week precede the dinner menus for each day of the year. A sepa-rate section for gourmets only has been added to make party and holiday menus exciting, but the menus are geared to realistic schedules. . . . Another remarkable volume is the Joyce Chen Cook Book (J. B. Lippincott Co., $5.95), with a foreword by Paul Dudley White, M.D. Mrs. Chen runs a Chinese restaurant in Cam-bridge, Mass., also teaches Chi-nese cooking. This cook book con-tains simplified procedures for preparing and serving authen-tic Mandarin, Shanghai, Chung-king and Cantonese recipes. Photographs and sketches make the directions perfectly clear.



Wind up your shopping ex-cursion with a thought for the lit-erary buff on your list. Dorothy and Red by Vincent Sheean (Houghton Mifflin, $6.95) is a combination of reminiscence (by the author), letters (of both Dorothy Thompson and Sinclair Lewis) and excerpts from diaries Miss Thompson kept at various times during her career in both marriage and journalism. The story starts with their meeting in Berlin—she a rising foreign cor-respondent, he already a risen au-thor. The book ends with an essay on Red and his family that Doro-thy wrote for the Atlantic Month-ly eighteen years after their di-vorce and one year before she died. . . . Another sweet-sad cor-respondence any aspiring writer will prize is The Letters of F. Scott Fitzgerald, edited and with an introduction by Andrew Turn-bull (Charles Scribner's Sons, $10). Letters never before pub-lished appear in this collection. Perhaps the most interesting are those to writer friends such as Ernest Hemingway and Edmund Wilson in which he discusses their work as well as, of course, his own.

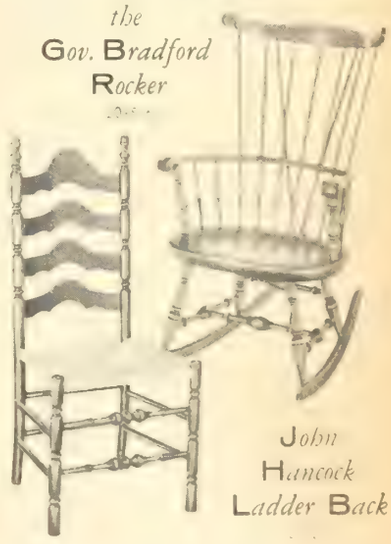
Early American Reproductions

the Boston Rocker



the Hitchcock Chair

The Boston Rocker was the first rocker ever made . . . way back about 1800. This reproduction faithfully copies the high gilded top rail, the slender tapering back spindles, and the low-slung saucer seat of an early model.

The original Hitchcock also dates back 100 years or more, and is here exactingly reproduced in fine detail. Even the genuine rush seat is hand-woven, just as it was done by the Colonists themselves.

the Gov. Bradford Rocker

John Hancock Ladder Back

The high, braced comb-back, with its carved head rest, and the sweeping armrail of this comfortable rocker are characteristic of the many and varied Windsors of pre-Revolutionary times.

With its four slightly curved back slats, sausage-and-ring turnings, and its hand-woven flagg seat, the John Hancock Ladder Back is obviously of colonial New England origin . . . and is also available in manor house armchair style.

Plant palette for winter windows

By James Fanning

There are several factors to be taken into consideration when you are selecting and placing house plants in your winter windows. First: Select plants that will do best under the light conditions that prevail. Second: Select plants that will mean something to the design of the room where they are to grow. Third: Place your plants to compose well within the framework of their window.

Plants should not just be set, helter-skelter, wherever they will get suitable light. Rather, they should be placed where they will form a pleasant composition. The twelve plants we have chosen from among the hundreds available as our "select dozen" (in color, page 164) represent the complete range of suitability to light and temperature, as well as the variety of color, leaf form, size and flowering characteristics that should be considered in selecting all your house plants. With these twelve as a nucleus, others have been added, window by window, to form the complete pictures on pages 164 to 167, and below.

A few general rules apply not only to these plants, but to all the others you might choose for your own windows. Their importance varies from plant to plant and location to location. But all should be considered before you place your plants.

1. LIGHT. When we speak of diffused light, we mean strong light, such as that coming through an unobstructed north window, but not direct sunlight. You might also get this kind of light through glass curtains or Venetian blinds. A great majority of plants thrive in light of this sort, and even those that really prefer direct sun do passably well in it. A southern exposure, of course, gives the maximum of direct sunlight, while east and west cannot, either one, be counted upon for more than half a day.

2. HEAT. Heat and light are directly connected, although their separate effects upon plants are quite different. The more direct sun, of course, the warmer; hence the fact that plants in a south-facing window must be tolerant of high temperatures as well as high

For an east window: 1. Cissus antarctica (Kangaroo vine). The all-purpose climber if there ever was one. It will grow vigorously in either weak or strong light, tolerate sun as well. Climbs by tendrils. Keep moist, not wet. 2. Osmanthus fragrans. A small shrub, hardy and evergreen outdoors in the south, with holly-like leaves and clusters of small white fragrant flowers. Prefers humus-rich soil, diffused light, moderate watering. 3. Dizygotheca elegantissima (False-aralia). Tall slender shrub with long leaves in narrow, toothed segments. Bronze foliage. 4. Zebrina pendula quadricolor (wandering Jew). Trailing pale green stems, pointed oval leaves streaked white, cream and pink. Diffused light or full sun, constant moisture. 5. Asplenium nidus (Bird's nest fern). Rippling light green leaves, dark midribs. Prefers diffused light, ample moisture. 6. Nephrolepis exaltata (Boston fern, in color on page 164). The variety 'Verona' has unusually graceful fronds. Tolerates some sun, but too much brightness may burn tips; diffused light better. An occasional syringing keeps fronds fresh and green.

For a west window: 1. Aeschynanthus speciosus. Trailing stems, dark green fleshy leaves and flame-orange flowers with divided petals. For most of the day it should have diffused light, but morning or afternoon sun does no harm. Requires a rich, porous soil and continuous moisture. 2. Campanula isophylla (color, page 164). Slender semi-trailing stems and bellflower blossoms (there are both white and blue forms) that persist generously for months. Requires several hours' sun each day—the more the better. Grows best in humus-rich soil, moderate moisture and relatively cool locations. 3. Rex begonias. There are many variants, all notable for the color and form of

Every maker of pictures has his techniques—and that includes the gardener when he moves indoors light intensity. Plants in a north-facing window, conversely, must be able to take lower temperatures as well as lower light intensities.

3. AIR. Plants, like people, have to breathe; hence the need for clean, fresh, reasonably humidified air. While people, nowadays, incline to scoff at the idea that drafts are unhealthy, it is definitely true that drafts, either hot or cold, are often extremely harmful to indoor plants. This is because plants cannot adapt themselves quickly to changing temperature: a suddenly opened window when the outdoor temperature is below 50 degrees may well mean the death of a begonia on the window sill of a 70-degree room. A blast of hot air from a heating register may be just as fatal to a fern or other cool-temperature species.

4. WATER. Unquestionably, water is the one most vital factor in the life of a plant. Indoors, the supply is under direct control, so there is no reason, other than carelessness or ignorance, for house plants to suffer from too much or too little.

The best method of watering house plants is to stand the pots in a bucket or tub with water deep enough to just miss slopping over the rim of the pot. When the water, having soaked up from the bottom, has thoroughly moistened the soil surface and air bubbles have stopped rising, remove the pots and let them drain for an hour or so before returning them to their windows. Admittedly, this is a laborious operation, but it has the advantage of leaving no question about the plant's being adequately watered but not soggy.

How often watering should be done depends, of course, on so many variable factors that it is unwise to set up a rigid schedule for doing it, even if you think you know your own conditions perfectly. The wise rule is: Get to know your plants well enough so that you can "feel" their needs. Water is important to the top growth—stems and leaves—as well as to the roots. Dust, for one thing, must be removed from the leaves, and this may be done either with a spray (a shower bath is fine) or by swabbing with a wet—not just damp—sponge.

5. SOIL. Practically all house plants grow best in a soil that is rich in humus, porous and well-drained. A good test for the condition of potting soil is to squeeze a handful of it. It should not make a sticky, cement-like lump, even when wet. If you're making your own potting soil, use a humus that is flaky, rather than powdery, plus "sharp" or "builder's" sand (about the same as canary or parakeet gravel) and sifted garden soil, about equal thirds of each.

6. FEEDING. The amount of nutriment a plant needs depends on the (Continued on page 195) their leaves rather than the flowers. (For variety 'Mikado' in color, see page 164.) All do best in diffused light, but tolerate some sun. A porous humus mixture is best, watered only when dry. 4. Fuchsia fulgens. Little-known species with small, narrow leaves and bright red flowers dangling in clusters. Rich but porous soil, diffused light with little sun, and steady moisture. 5. Osmanthus fragrans (see east window). 6. Cissus antarctica (see east window).

For a north window: 1. Cissus antarctica (see east and west windows). 2. Euphorbia lactea. Cactus-like relative of the crown of thorns and the poinsettia, it is unlike both. Has great sculptural value as used here. Three-sided stems are armed with short but spectacular spines. Enjoys strong light, but does not require sun. Porous soil, only moderate moisture. 3. Asplenium nidus (see east window). 4. Aglaonema commutatum (close kin of the old reliable Chinese evergreen). Prefers diffused light, but will tolerate almost any kind. You may even occasionally see cream-colored jack-in-the-pulpit-like flowers, followed by red or yellow berry clusters. Use loamy soil, but water sparingly. 5. Aglaonema pseudo-bracteatum. Strikingly variegated twin of the preceding species. Same conditions. 6. Rex begonia (see west window). 7. Nephrolepis exaltata (see east window). 8. Siderasis fuscata. An "untypical" and self-contained member of the wandering Jew family. Deep in the cluster of broad, light-striped, olive-green leaves a lavender-blue flower may appear, even in the diffused light it thrives on. Needs moist, porous soil.

For a south window: 1. Campanula isophylla (see west window). 2. Euphorbia splendens (crown of thorns, color, page 164). A (Continued on page 195)

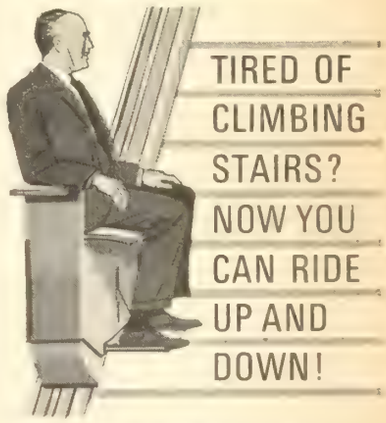
When you receive your first Wayside Catalog, be prepared for a wonderful surprise. You will see a colorful 224-page book . . . each page more beautiful than the last, and filled with so many lovely, rare and unusual subjects you never suspected were available to the home gardener.



Of course, your surprise will be understandable because Wayside lists over 1600 of horticulture's finest subjects . . . all excellent items that have been collected from every part of the world and rigidly tested in America's most carefully supervised nursery.

But it will not take long before you feel right at home with your Wayside Catalog. It is written in layman's language with everything in its place, neatly catalogued with sections for shrubs, trees, roses, bulbs, vines, etc. Every item is accurately described . . . including common names, botanical names, colors, blooming periods, size of plants and more helpful cultural information than in most garden books.

Notes for December Gardeners

Once a gardener always a gardener, even during the twelfth month if need be

First weekend

Mulcher's moon. Winter mulching is worthwhile. We make this statement categorically and unequivocally. The best gardeners apply winter mulches. And the best gardens are properly mulched during the cold months where cold winter temperatures are a factor in the success of perennial plants. (All these italics are deliberate.) Rationalize as you will and advance whatever arguments you can think of for withholding winter covers that may retard the spring performance of your plants or promote the incidence of rot or disease: the fact remains that the best performers through the year are the herbaceous garden biennials and perennials around which winter temperatures are stabilized to best advantage, yielding to spring thaws gradually and but once when the season finally turns. All this is but another way of saying that the winter care of your garden is of vital importance after all. And that although you may leave your plants to the vagaries of your climate from freeze-up to thaw—and expect good results—you will get superlative results only if you take superlative pains.

There are, of course, two basic kinds of winter mulch: the kind that you apply when the ground becomes cold in order to delay and soften the severity of the drop in winter temperatures; and the kind you apply after the ground is frozen in order to keep it frozen and minimize the unsettling effects of alternate freezing and thawing before spring really sets in. Both kinds of mulch are valuable—the second far more than the first except in regions where freezing temperatures are infrequent and moderate. What material you use for a mulch is less important than putting your mulch on at the right time, keeping it in place during the worst of the winter and removing it when seasonal temperatures take a real spring turn. The conclusion is inescapable that the ideal mulch is a permanent snow cover that builds up just after the ground freezes and stays on until just after thawing temperatures arrive. And in many parts of the country such a choice mulch is readily come by. The only trouble is that the same climate that produces permanent snow mulches in winter also tends to restrict the range of plant material that may be grown the rest of the time. So you would do well to be thankful that you must apply artificial mulches—and apply them. Straw, salt marsh hay, fir bark, sugar cane bagasse, buckwheat hulls, pine needles, excelsior, hardwood leaves, ground corn cobs—all these are suitable. Use the one most convenient. And apply it when the ground-frost strikes in for good. Hold the mulches down with boughs, board, brush, wire fencing, even stones if necessary. And leave it in place until false spring has come—and gone. You'll never go mulchless again.

Second weekend

Hardware review. This is not what you think. The hardware review we have in mind is a survey of the wires, hooks, bolts, ties (even string), nails, paving blocks, braces and the like that you may have used to ring or penetrate your tree trunks or branches for one purpose or another. Guy wires on newly planted trees, eyebolts or loops for children's swings, hooks for holding electric lines for summer barbecue lights, stones and bricks laid close over tree roots or around trunks—all should be checked now. For one thing, the leaves are gone and you can see what you are doing. For another, if you don't do it now, you probably never will. A pin, bolt, nail or screw that pierces tree bark at one point is unlikely ever to harm the tree seriously—unless it somehow permits disease or rot to enter or actually weakens the tree structurally. But a girdling wire or loop can kill the limb around which it draws tight—or the tree above the trunk that is thus girdled. The fact that a guy wire, for example, is enclosed in a piece of rubber hose is of little advantage if the whole thing becomes a strangling noose when trunk diameter increases. As a matter of fact, a mess of hose taken into the cambium layer by a tight wire makes a more serious wound than wire alone—although no more fatal. So all guy wires that can be removed should be removed as soon as need for them is over. And all tight guys should be loosened every year. Swing ropes—especially if they have worn grooves in the bark of a limb—should be untied for the winter, to be replaced next spring in a different location. (Better yet, replace all loops with ring bolts drilled clear through the limb.)

Less obvious, but with delayed results that may be even more severe, are nails and screws that permit disease to enter before the growing bark heals over them. Rather than withdrawing such miscellaneous metal, leaving an open hole, remove the protruding part with a hacksaw, just as you would remove a dead limb—close to the trunk. A little tree wound paint will serve as a temporary antiseptic.

Third weekend

Machine-age logistics. Power tools are great labor savers—provided they are accessible to do the work that has to be done when they have to do it. If the weather is good and the tools are light, there is no problem. But when the snow blower is drifted tight behind the tool shed door and the power mower is blocked from the lawn by a flight of steep steps or an overgrown shrub border, what you would do well to have around is a muscular teen-ager. Or a well-planned, well-paved, well-graded path on which to transport your tools around the grounds. Such work-ways used to be called sneak-paths. But it is hard to "sneak" a four-horsepower snow plow or a riding lawn mower anywhere. It is not so hard to bypass a short flight of steps with a wheelbarrow if you have a graded slope alongside. But four-wheel tools that must be ridden or power-driven are another matter. In summer you need wide, firm walks on a one-to-four grade or better. In winter you want hard-surfaced walks (brick, stone, macadam or well-laid gravel) on which to move not only wheeled equipment, but heavily laden feet. (The damage a lawn may suffer from mere foot traffic in wintertime is a whole story in itself.) Distance is no problem. It's the planning that counts.

Book note. Here is stop-press news of a new garden book so attractive and so costly that the best way to acquire it is to be given it for Christmas. We suggest you arrange the matter forthwith. The book is Peter Coates' unbelievably handsome "Great Gardens of the Western World" (Putnam's, $19.95 until January 1st). The book is a picture album without parallel. The author is one of the most discerning as well as knowledgeable garden writers now practicing. The point of view is cosmopolitan, the restraint British. Sir Harold Nicholson has written a warm introduction.

Fourth weekend

Penny wise, pint foolish. Freezing and oxidation are two of the worst enemies of your garden chemicals. Humidity is a fast third. Fertilizers and many powdered preparations deliquesce (dissolve in atmospheric moisture) almost as fast as they oxidize. In either case, the net result is a loss of effectiveness with the passage of time and changing season that may make them somewhat worse than useless. We say worse because often the loss of effectiveness is of more importance in your garden than mere waste of money would be. Liquids that freeze in tool sheds and unheated garages may crystallize, change their chemical or physical properties, or even break their containers. In most instances, such materials bear a warning on the label against dangerously low temperatures (or, in some cases, high ones) and freezing. So you have one more good reason for reading the labels on the preparations you buy. In the case of powdered materials vulnerable to moisture (the nitrogen in many plant foods, for instance), the lumping of the compound may be warning enough. The obvious answer is a fall housecleaning that will extend to all the garden supply shelves. Don't discard fertilizers, of course. Rather put them in dry locations—winter and summer. Store all chemicals that are in glass bottles where they cannot freeze. Discard without hesitation all those materials that you suspect may have been previously frozen and shouldn't have been. Elevate all paper and cardboard cartons—rustable metal ones, too—clear of wet floors. Make sure all tightenable caps and lids are tight. And for good measure, throw out all superseded formulations that you will never use again. This goes, on the average, for about two-thirds of the junk you find lying around in bottles, jars, cartons, bags, boxes and tins this time of year.

rate at which it is growing and this, in turn, depends on the variable factors of heat, light and day length. Unless you stretch the daylight hours with artificial light, it is pretty obvious that indoor plants do the most growing exactly when outdoor plants are doing the same: in summer, when day length and heat are at a maximum. This is when they want to grow, and this is the time for maximum applications of fertilizer to make sure the growth is strong, healthy and floriferous.

Don't make the mistake, though, of thinking that one heavy application of fertilizer early in the season is going to keep plants in prime growing condition throughout the season. Like people, plants need food at frequent and regular intervals: Too much at one time is simply wasted. In bright, sunshiny warm weather, any normal house plant should have a mild liquid feeding every ten days. In dark, cool, cloudy weather the interval should be lengthened, and fall and early winter, when days are short, with little of either light or heat, feeding should be stopped entirely. However, don't forget that the days begin to lengthen and the light to strengthen about the first of January, and this is the time when house plants begin to "sit up and take a little nourishment."

7. PESTS. As with human diseases, the time to bring plant ailments under control is before they have time to get a foothold and do real damage. This means keeping a sharp eye on your house plants. examining every suspicious symptom and dealing with it immediately and, if need be, drastically. A leaf, for instance, that seems to be dying of disease, should be removed and burned immediately, before it has a chance to infect others. The same rule applies to bugs: The very first mealybug that appears should be swiped away with an alcohol-soaked swab—it may quickly become dozens if left alone. Syringing, too, is an important part of bug control. Aphids, for instance, are quite easy to drown, and a little extra attention when plants are being given their regular shower bath will take care of them.

8. HUMIDITY. Plants, by and large, prefer an atmosphere as damp as it can possibly be. This level of humidity is not quite ideal for people, though, so we have to compromise by giving house plants an atmosphere as close to the one they like as may be feasible in the room within which they have to live. Syringing, spoken of earlier, is one highly effective way of giving each individual plant its individual climate of dampness. A few plants are so demanding in this respect that they need syringing every day. Setting the pots on a tray of wet pebbles, again, is a help, so long as we remember to keep the pebbles wet. An up-to-date heating system, with air that is automaticaly humidified, will go a long way to giving house plants the dampness they need, but even this is usually not quite enough, so try, by hook or crook, to get those few extra droplets of humidity into the air that immediately surrounds each plant.

succulent—like many of its kin, its chief glory is the constant procession of small but brilliant red blossoms along the flexible, sparse-leaved stems. It does best in porous soil, in full sun. May be trained like an espalier. 3. Punica granatum nana (dwarf pomegranate). Airy and graceful slender-stemmed shrub with narrow leaves and bright orange-red flowers set in big round calyces. Although it requires full sun, it should be only moderately watered, in porous well-drained soil. 4. Cissus antarctica (see other three windows). 5. Aglaonema pseudo-bracteatum (see north window). 6. Zebrina pendula quadricolor (see east window). These members of the tradescantia family will thrive almost anywhere. 7. Nephrolepis exaltata (see east and north windows). 8. Spathiphyllum clevelandii (color, page 164). Fleshy, dark green lance-shaped leaves in great bursts from the roots. Flowers, though sparse, are almost continuous—white spathes around rod-like spadixes. Requires fertile loam, extra fertilization (occasional dilute fish emulsion is good) and repotting every two years or so. Continuous, even moisture. 9. Siderasis fuscata (see north window).

You are welcome to enter

H&G's most inviting Christmas door competition

Last year, when we invited our readers to enter H&G's Most Splendid Christmas Tree Competition, we frankly did not know what to expect. We are now happy to report that the response exceeded our most fantastic estimates, and the winning entries were indeed most splendid (see our cover and pages 132-137).

Heartened by last year's success, we cordially invite you to share the holiday season with us again by entering our Most Inviting Christmas Door Competition. The rules are just as simple as last year's, and the rewards are equally appealing.

Our competition is limited to Christmas decorations placed on your front door—not on entranceway trees or shrubbery, nor on any other part of the house. By "most inviting," we mean a Christmas front door decoration which, by virtue of its beauty, its appropriateness, its originality or its artful use of materials, imparts a sense of welcome.

How you enter

1. Photograph your front door in color, with the Christmas decoration in place, and write a brief description of how it was made and what materials were used.
2. Fill in the entry blank below or a reasonable facsimile thereof and mail it with your color photograph (not smaller than 3 by 5 inches or larger than 8 by 10 inches) and the description of your front door decoration, not later than January 31, 1964, to:

HOUSE & GARDEN
CHRISTMAS DOOR COMPETITION
420 LEXINGTON AVENUE
NEW YORK, N. Y. 10017

H&G's editors will again be the judges. And once again, recognition will come in two ways: (1) The most invitingly decorated front door will be published in the December 1964 issue of H&G, and (2) its owner will receive a Voice of Music DeLuxe stereophonic high-fidelity component system. We are not forgetting those other important participants in any competition—the runners-up. For the next ten best entries, each contestant will receive a copy of "House & Garden's Cook Book."

WHO CAN ENTER: Anyone residing in the United States or Canada may enter the competition. No entrant may be in any way connected with The Condé Nast Publications Inc., nor related to any of its employees. It is not necessary for an entrant to subscribe to HOUSE & GARDEN to participate.

JUDGING: The decision of the judges will be final. The winners will be notified by mail on or about April 1, 1964. All entries become the property of The Condé Nast Publications Inc., and none will be returned to the senders.
